USS LONG BEACH COMMISSIONED . . . Nation's First Nuclear Surface Ship

Sky Spy, Nike-Zeus Blow Up

By LEE CRAIG
Aviation Editor

America's defense plans suffered a double setback Saturday when a Samos sky spy satellite that was intended to orbit over Russia exploded on its Point Arguello launching pad and, a half-hour later, a Nike-Zeus anti-missile rocket blew up six seconds after launch at Point Mugu.

Army officers, however, declared they were pleased with the Zeus test, despite the blow-up.

* * * *

LAUNCHING equipment worked perfectly and the 48-foot rocket designed to protect this country from nuclear attack by intercontinental ballistic missiles, performed as planned until just after its second stage ignition.

The Army will study preliminary data to determine what caused the 450,000-pound-thrust missile to destroy itself.

Air Force spokesmen in charge of the Samos project had no explanation for the Point Arguello explosion.

Concussion from three rapid-fire explosive shocks rocked the press observation point a mile distant from the pad. When the smoke lifted, the satellite and its rocket booster were gone, blown to pieces.

* * * *

THE TWO-TON Samos III had been scheduled for a polar orbit that would have taken it regularly over the Soviet Union and other iron curtain countries approximately every 27 hours.

First successful satellite of this type, Samos II, was launched at Point Arguello last January. The Air Force refused comment on whether the spy satellite's cameras are still working.

A network of 8 to 12 Samos satellites is planned, which

USS Long Beach Joins the Fleet

By BOB WELLS

BOSTON—The guided missile cruiser USS Long Beach, the world's first nuclear-powered surface warship, officially joined the U.S. fleet in commissioning ceremonies at the Boston Naval Yard Saturday afternoon.

More than 1,500 persons, including 30 from Long Beach, sat in folding chairs along a concrete pier under a hot New England sun and heard Navy Secretary John B. Connally salute the Long Beach as "a ship that will herald the beginnings of a new navy."

* * * *

AS THE RED, white and blue pennant formally putting her in the Navy was hoisted, Connally told 960 crewmen and the guests, "our goal now, in these non-war days, should be to insure that if we should have to fight again, there could be no question that we would finish strong."

Connally gave no hint of the future missions of the Long Beach, but said her range is "practicaly unlimited and she will be traveling the sea at an unprecedented speed."

"Jane's Fighting Ships," the British publication on the world's navies, said her speed is 45 knots (52 miles an hour).

On the speakers' platform aboard the bunting-draped quarterdeck of the cruiser were Representative and Mrs. Craig Hosmer, Mayor Edwin W. Wade of Long Beach, Capt. Eugene P. Wilkinson, skipper of the nuclear cruiser, and Mrs. Wilkinson and numerous Navy dignitaries.

* * * *

A SCANT three miles away across Boston harbor, other crowds were touring USS Constitution, "Old Ironsides," the first great fighting ship of the American Navy, which is moored here as a naval museum. The two ships provide a historic contrast: Old Ironsides, which swept the seas with her round shot and subdued the Barbary pirates, cost approximately $300,000 to build.

The Long Beach armed with Talos and Terrier missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads cost $320,547,000.

Mayor Wade told the crowd the reason the atomic cruiser bears the name USS Long Beach is the fine relationship which exists between the United States Navy and the people of the City of Long Beach.

He reviewed the past history of that relationship, noting that Long Beach was a

Jobs Hit Record in Area

Increased hiring in the aircraft industry in Los Angeles and Orange counties marked a zoom to an all-time high of 2,780,000 persons with jobs in the two counties last month.

Irving H. Perluss, director of employment for the State Department of Employment, said the outstanding development of the job picture in August was that the aircraft industry posted its first increases in hiring in two years.

* * * *

THE OVERALL increase in employment in August for the two counties was up 16,300 from July and 45,800 over the figure for the same month last year.

Another bright spot in the employment picture was that unemployment in the areas dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time this year.

Unemployment fell from 206,600 in July to 199,500 in August, compared to 168,500 in August 1960.

JFK Hits at K for Fallout

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Saturday night accused the Soviet Union of violating its own health rules for the world by splashing the atmosphere with radioactive fallout from nuclear weapons tests.

The chief executive and the prime minister joined in a statement of "deepest regret" that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev turned down their Sept. 3 proposal that fallout-producing tests in the atmosphere be halted immediately.

* * * *

"THIS ACTION contrasts vividly with the Soviet Union's own repeated expressions of concern as to the health hazards of such testing," the joint Kennedy-Macmillan statement said.

Possibly because Khrushchev complained that an agreement with Great Britain and the United States would not stop other powers such as France from testing in the air, Kennedy and Macmillan repeated their willingness "to negotiate a controlled nuclear test ban agreement of the widest possible scope."

Khrushchev, in his note delivered Saturday to the American and British embassies in Moscow, gave no indication of willingness to halt the current Russian series of test shots.

* * * *

AMERICAN officials expect Khrushchev to end the series with explosion of a weapon to support his claim of being able to produce a 100-megaton bomb.

U.S. Airliner Crashes With 82 on Board

Loaded With Army Personnel; 'Heavy' Loss Is Reported

SHANNON, Ireland, Sunday (AP)—A chartered airliner carrying 82 American Army personnel and their families crashed in the River Shannon early today, a U.S. Air Force spokesman reported.

"It appears that casualties are heavy," the spokesman said.

Most of those aboard the plane were women and children.

(The wire services carried contradictory dispatches on the identity of the passengers. UPI called them Germans; the Air Force spokesmen in London informed the Associated Press that all those aboard were U. S. Army dependents.)

* * * *

THE AIRLINER—a DC6—went down soon after taking off from Shannon airport in a thick fog.

The fog hampered rescue operations.

The River Shannon, where the plane was reported to have crashed, is about two miles from the airport.

The four-engine plane was flying from Germany to the United States and stopped at Shannon for refueling.

Airport officials said the plane was believed owned by President Air Lines.

A thick fog covered the airport area as the big airliner set out at 3 a.m. Shannon time).

* * * *

OFFICIALS said the aircraft was believed to have come down about two miles from the airport—near the banks of the storied River Shannon.

All ambulances and hospitals in the Shannon area were called.

Telephone lines out of the airport and nearby Limerick were taken over for emergency purposes.

JFK to Address U.N. Sept. 21

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—President Kennedy plans to address the U.N. General Assembly Sept. 21, diplomatic sources said Saturday night.

One source said the date was "as firm as anything can be" in view of Kennedy's uncertain schedule due to the world crisis. The source said the speech would set forth the U.S. stand for a nuclear-test ban and disarmament under proper controls.

It also was believed Kennedy might bring up the Berlin question and state his views on a possible meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

RED EMBASSY SET AFIRE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet Embassy spokesman said Saturday night an attempt had been made by unidentified persons to set fire to the Embassy building during the day, but the fire was quickly put out.

The embassy, through its press officer Oleg Sokolov, issued this brief statement:

"An attempt was made today by unknown persons to set fire to the Soviet Embassy. The fire was quickly put out by the embassy personnel. "The charge d' affairs (Mikhail) Smirnovsky called on Secretary of State Rusk and stated strongest protests against this unprecedented criminal act."

State Hailed in Longest L.B. Parade

160 Units of Native Sons, Daughters March to Cheers

By BILL JONES

The longest parade in the history of Long Beach marched past thousands of cheering spectators Saturday night in the annual observance of California's admission to the United States.

Though the crowd was described by police traffic officials as disappointing, the line of marchers certainly wasn't.

More than 160 units, led by Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, took part in the 20-block march along Ocean Boulevard.

* * * *

THE GREATEST cheers were reserved for the governor's wife. After Brown finished speaking — mentioning that he was a native son—he handed the microphone to his wife and asked her to address the crowd. "No, thank you," she answered. "I'll leave the speech-making up to you."

Rousing cheers greeted San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, who led the largest single group of entries in the parade. Preceding him was the famed San Francisco Police Motorcycle Unit.

Spectators had a lengthy wait before viewing drill teams and bands as a cavalcade of parade officials, state and local government officers and past heads of the sponsoring Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden

10-Foot Waves Hit Gulf Coast

Bulletin

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—The U. S. Weather Bureau here said Sunday night hurricane Carla may flood 90 per cent of Galveston Island with tides up to 15 feet above normal.

"All persons planning to evacuate Galveston Island should do so immediately since the lower sections of the Galveston-Houston freeway likely will be flooded before daylight," the bureau said.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—More than 200,000 persons fled the Texas and West Louisiana coasts Saturday night, leaving only ghostly towns for on-rushing hurricane Carla and her 135 mile-an-hour winds.

They fled areas where nearly 7,000 persons died in storms of 1900 in Galveston, Tex., and 1957 in Cameron, La.

Red Cross national headquarters in Washington, D.C. called it "the greatest evacuation of persons in the face of a national calamity in modern times." President Kennedy, in Hyannis Port, Mass., offered "all possible federal assistance" to officials in both states.

Saturday night Carla was 255 miles southeast of Galveston and pushing through the Gulf of Mexico at about 10 miles an hour. It continued in a northwesterly direction.

Ten-foot waves began lashing Cameron about dusk, crashing through city streets and belting the court house—the only building to weather hurricane Audrey's awesome blow in 1957.

* * * *

AS CARLA PONDEROUSLY pushed her deadly winds toward land tides rose five to 10 feet above normal, squalls began lashing extreme southerly coastal areas and winds reaching gale force over most of the area from Grand Isle, La. to Port Aransas, Tex.

More than 150,000 residents fled the Port Arthur and Galveston Tex., areas. At least five highways leading out from Port Arthur were choked with cars three lanes deep. They stretched bumper-to-bumper for 20 miles in some cases.

"Port Arthur is rapidly becoming a ghost town," radio newsman Dusty Rhodes reported late Saturday afternoon. "There is a solid line of cars from Port Arthur to Beaumont."

Other towns in the area were equally deserted, Rhodes said while refugees tried to flee the storm, rain squalls triggered by the fringe of Carla's disturbance whipped down on them.

* * * *

NEARLY TEN THOUSAND PERSONS moved out of Cameron, and the marsh of Cameron Parish. As they traveled by every means of conveyance northward to Lake Charles, they remembered the dead left by hurricane Audry in 1957.

East of Cameron, along the Louisiana coast, an estimated 10,000 persons fled from the marshy lowlands to higher ground in and around New Orleans. Without waiting the Weather Bureau's warning, they took livestock and personal property in a quick evacuation.

Although more than 300 miles east of where Carla was expected to go inland, two national highways were closed near New Orleans.

Carla was pinpointed at latitude 25.8 and longitude 92.6 about 275 statute miles southeast of Galveston by the New Orleans weather bureau in its 8 p.m. (CST) bulletin. The storm continued its ponderous trek in a west northwest and northwest direction at about 10 m.p.h.

Hurricane warnings were displayed from Port Aransas, Tex., eastward to Grand Isle, La. Gale warnings were posted from Brownsville, Tex., to Pensacola, Fla.

The bulletin warned of tremendous tides and cautioned every possibly precautionary measure should be completed Saturday night.

* * * *

BY LATE AFTERNOON CARLA was following a path parallel, but about 150 miles southwest of the great hurricane in 1900 which killed more than 6,000 persons near Galveston. And Carla was approaching the path of hurricane Audrey which blasted through Western Louisiana.

Preparations continued for Carla in both states.

The Red Cross in Beaumont, Tex., said it was prepared to handle 400,000 refugees. Hotels and motels in inland cities were swamped with reservation requests from families seeking a place to stay.

An estimated 250 schools along the coasts of both states were accepting evacuees.

A Lake Charles weatherman, Joe Worrell, warned that

L.A.C. Says: The Profit System

President Kennedy has made a very definite move toward abolishing the profit system. He has, in effect, told the steel industry—made up of many individual companies—that if they increased prices to make up for increased wage costs they could expect government interference. He says his "economic advisers" tell him the companies can make adequate profits without increasing prices—therefore they must not do so.

We do not know to what extent the companies can absorb wage and other labor increases. But we do know that no two companies have exactly the same conditions. We also know that they must compete with each other—and more important, they must now compete with cheap foreign labor and new modern foreign plants. These are factors that have always controlled their prices and the only way prices should be controlled in a free, competitive industry.

It will be noted that neither Mr. Kennedy or his advisers had a word to say to the unions about freezing wage or fringe benefits in an effort to avoid inflation. He says a steel price increase would cost more for our armaments — but ignores what the new wages — new insurance programs — longer vacations and numerous other fringe programs will cost. Of course, the one-fifth of our working population belonging to unions means votes.

This attempt to freeze profits in the steel industry is the starting point for the attempted freezing of profits in all segments of our economy. We may be sure it will be used in the automobile industry. Prices are already fixed by government in most of our food production. The next move will be to freeze rents and retail prices. As the trend continues, wage freezes will be ignored until a firm grip is had on all industries—then a freeze on wages must come if the controls are to be effective.

When that time arrives, we will have a socialistic-fascist or nazi society. It matters little what it is called. Any one of them means totalitarianism and the end of free enterprise as we have known it, and upon which the entire prosperity of this nation has been based. We are finding a small group of so-called liberals changing the system. They are undoubtedly sincere in their belief that they know what is best for this country. The same could have been said for Mussolini and Hitler and Lenin. But only tragedy came to Germany and Italy from these dictators—and the people of Russia remain slaves of a ruthless dictatorship.

We have written many times about the importance of adequate profits to provide more jobs—reasonable returns to investors and technological research. We know that our system has been the envy of the entire world. Now we are facing an arrogant attempt to change this system. If there is monopoly or dishonesty among producers, there are laws to curb them. But the workers and investors of this nation will never profit from a dictator that sets prices—profits—rents and wages. But that is exactly what the President's threat means.—L.A.C.

The new queen, from Asheville, is 5 feet, 5½ inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, and measures 35-24-35.

A former member of the Radio City Rockettes in New York, she hopes for a career in the entertainment field after completing college.

24 Bombs 'Ready' for Nevada Tests

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The United States, says an authoritative source, has 24 bombs "ready to go" at the proving ground for its arsenal of nuclear weapons.

Authoritative sources that cannot be named also say:

1. The first blast almost certainly will be in a deep tunnel under Rainier Mesa at the north end of the Nevada Test Site, 65 mies northeast of this gambling resort.

2. It could be set off within hours after officials at the Atomic Energy Commission's Camp Mercury get the green light from Washington. Sources in the Kennedy Administration said on Sept. 7, though, that the first shot would be fired in about two weeks.

3. Camp Mercury, Rainier Mesa and construction offices on the site—now closed to newsmen—are bustling with activity reminiscent of 1951-58 boom days halted by the international ban on atomic tests.

4. A test shot with conventional explosives, to check tunnel instrumentation, was set for Sept. 6—but called off to speed up nuclear tests.

Preparations for the possibility that the United States might resume nuclear tests have been under way for months. When the Soviets announced they were resuming tests, activity here went into high gear. President Kennedy's subsequent announcement that the United States would resume, with underground tests, was an added spur.

* * * *

EVEN NOW, some scientists make it plain they favor United States tests in the atmosphere, where Russia is testing. These are easier, cheaper and provide information not obtainable underground.

The big argument against it is radioactive fallout, loaded with political implications.

AEC officials have imposed a strict information clampdown. They decline answers to questions about preparations, and have cancelled scheduled news tours of the test site.

The source that said there are 24 bombs ready to go would not, for instance, elaborate on whether all could be tested underground.

Trio Held in Try to Get Dope

Off-duty Patrolman Jim Rodda went into a drug store at Fourth Street and Bonito Avenue Saturday to get a sandwich.

A few moments later, he had arrested three suspects, including a 16-year-old girl on charges ranging from attempted extortion to narcotics addiction.

While Rodda was in the store, the young girl handed druggist William Scott a note demanding narcotics.

* * * *

"A HOSTAGE will die if you don't," the note said. The girl said two men were holding her baby as a hostage. Scott showed the note to Rodda.

Rodda circled the block in his car, then drove up an alley near the drug store, where he found Denny Blackwell, 24, of 632 Orange Ave., and Fred Meece, 18, of 906 Ohio Ave. The two had been watching the store, Rodda said.

The officer arrested both youths, then arrested the girl as she left the drug store.

* * * *

THE GIRL, who later admitted she had no baby, was turned over to juvenile authorities for investigation of her part in the attempt to get drugs from the pharmacy.

Blackwell and Meece were booked for investigation of extortion and narcotics addiction. Blackwell also was booked on a charge of possession of narcotics after police found marijuana in a jar in his house, officers said.

Colonel Loses Job as Result of Paar Show

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Saturday removed one officer from his job and admonished another for their roles in helping Jack Paar film a television show on the touchy border between East and West Berlin.

The Defense Department announced this quick windup of an investigation of the incident undertaken only Friday with White House approval. Army participation in the filming of a Paar showing for use in the United States next week had been bitterly denounced in the Senate as "shocking . . . highly dangerous."

* * * *

ACTION IS being taken to prevent repetition of any such incidents in the future, the Pentagon said.

Relieved from his post for "improper performance of duty" was Lt. Col. Dallas Hoadley of Baltimore, information officer of the Berlin command.

Admonished was Col. J. R. Deane Jr. of San Francisco, commanding officer of the 2nd Battle Group, 6th Infantry, in Germany. The investigation report said he was on hand with 13 enlisted men "solely to participate in the filming."

He was accused of "exercising poor judgment in diverting a squad from regular training duties in order to participate in activities beyond the scope of their military mission."

* * * *

THE ADMONITION is being administered through the commanding general of the Berlin command, the Defense Department announcement said.

Army participation in the Paar show Thursday at the delicate Friedrichstrasse border crossing in Berlin caused a storm of criticism in Congress and elsewhere.

Protests were raised that the use of U.S. armed troops for such a show might have led to shooting, with tremendous consequences.

The critics also said the display of unusual armed might at the border crossing would be grist for the Communist propaganda mills, which picture the United States as an imperialist warmonger.

200,000 Flee Gulf Hurricane

Carla "is one of the biggest hurricanes and one of the worst" to ever approach the Louisiana coast.

Wherever the hurricane strikes land it will be as large — or larger — and as strong — or stronger — than Hurricane Audrey.

Between Carla and the coast are hundreds of offshore oil wells in the rich tidelands. Operations on the big rigs ceased and equipment and workers sped ashore in boats and helicopters.

Gale winds buffeted the coastal area south of New Orleans.

Most of Grand Isle was inundated, Sheriff Eddie Ste. Marie of LaFourche Parish reported.

Ninety-five per cent of Theidland's residents have already been evacuated.

* * * *

CIVIL DEFENSE authorities ordered all coastal roads in Louisiana closed.

Lake Pontchartrain lapped over U.S. 11 east of New Orleans as winds kicked up high waves on the large lake.

Louisiana Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said National Guardsmen will remove all persons in the path of the hurricane if necessary.

Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas put guardsmen in the east Texas area on alert.

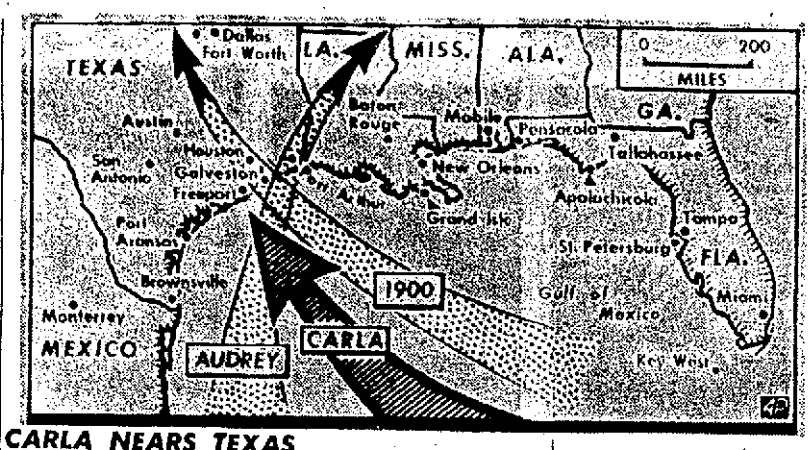

Civil defense and the Red Cross put emergency plans into operation and made plans to house refugees. Government surplus food was being used to feed the evacuees.

Military airfields along the entire coastal area sent planes to other areas.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A meteorologist aboard a Navy plane which penetrated the eye of hurricane Carla Saturday called the storm the biggest he has ever seen.

"The storm was affecting wind patterns over the entire Gulf of Mexico," Lt. John Lincoln said. He is a meteorologist assigned to hurricane hunter planes operating out of Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

Lincoln flew into the eye of Carla three times early Saturday in a Navy Constellation. The eye which then was "almost right in the middle of the Gulf of Mexico due south of New Orleans," fluctuated between 45 and 50 miles in diameter.

CARLA NEARS TEXAS

Heavy arrow indicates approximate path of Hurricane Carla, described as extremely dangerous, as she nears the upper Texas coast late Saturday. Other arrows show paths of two previous hurricanes, Audrey, which left 590 dead in 1957, and the great 1900 hurricane which killed more than 6,000 persons around Galveston.—(AP Photo)

Red Pact Nations Boost Defenses

MOSCOW (AP)—The Communist Warsaw pact nations announced Saturday night they are strengthening their military defenses because of what they called stepped-up military preparation by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The decision was reached at a two-day meeting of the eight-nation bloc's defense ministers in Warsaw, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

* * * *

THE ANNOUNCEMENT did not spell out what military measures would be taken.

Members of the pact—the Communist counterpart to NATO—are the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Albania.

The Tass dispatch said:

"The meeting noted that the countries of the aggressive North Atlantic military bloc have of late sharply stepped up military preparations and are intensifying the arms race and increasing their armies in reply to the proposals of the Soviet Socialist countries for the conclusion of a German peace treaty, and are even threatening a new war.

* * * *

PROCEEDING from the situation obtaining, and guiding themselves by the directives from their governments the ministers of defense and chiefs of general staffs discussed specific questions concerning the enhancement of military preparedness of the troops belonging to the joint armed forces of Warsaw Treaty States.

"The meeting instructed the chiefs of general staffs to work out practical measures towards the further strengthening of defenses of the Warsaw Treaty States stemming from the agreement reached at the meeting."

would enable the Air Force to keep all parts of the world under constant surveillance.

The Nike-Zeus launching was the first firing test at Point Mugu of the weapon's guidance and control system. Preliminary testing was done at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico.

* * * *

THE ANTI-MISSILE rocket left its launching pad like a scorched cat, in contrast to the leisurely lift of the ponderous ICBM's. Trailing a long tail of flame and smoke, the Zeus streaked skyward until it exploded spectacularly thousands of feet overhead.

Saturday's test was aimed specifically to check the rocket's response to guidance commands from its fantastically complicated ground control equipment.

Only two of the missile's three stages were to be utilized in the test. Three-stage firing of the Zeus will be held within a few months, it was indicated.

Slayer Kills Self as Police Kick in Door

SARNIA, Ont. (UPI) — A young father shot and killed himself Saturday as police were kicking in the door of his house to arrest him for the savage slaying of a 45-year-old neighbor and her 10-year-old son.

Only minutes before, Thomas Crawley, 23, had confessed the killings to his wife, Judy, and he was in the midst of writing a suicide note when officers began breaking in the door.

However, the note gave no clue to the motive for the slayings of Mrs. Evelyn Moore and her son, Danny, and an officer said "I doubt if we'll ever know why he did it."

* * * *

MRS. MOORE and the boy had been beaten with a claw hammer. Police said Mrs. Moore died of strangulation and Danny of a broken back.

Crawley's wife and another woman, Mrs. Doris Currie discovered the bodies early Saturday.

Crawley left a note to his wife saying: "I don't know just what to say except that it was I who killed those people. I can't find any reason for it. Don't tell the kids and take them away from Sarnia. This is the only way out for me. So I am going to take it. Tom" resume underground testing, but has taken the position that tests adding to radioactive fallout are not necessary.

Kennedy returned from an afternoon cruise on Nantucket Sound, examined an English language version of the Khrushchev note and then approved the joint statement.

* * * *

HE AND Macmillan apparently had agreed in advance through their aides on its language. It was a comment on Khrushchev's position rather than a direct communication to the Soviet leader.

Kennedy and Macmillan last Sunday sent Khrushchev a proposal for an immediate three-nation agreement to forego above-ground testing.

Khrushchev responded Saturday morning with a flat refusal. He said such an agreement would not bind France.

GENEVA (AP)—The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union recessed their negotiations for a nuclear test ban in failure Saturday and passed the unresolved problem on to the United Nations.

U. S. delegate Charles C. Stelle said "it is idle and useless to keep up a pretense of negotiating in these circumstances."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

De Gaulle Escapes Bomb Plot Death

PARIS (UPI)—Right-wing terrorists believed to be rebellious army officers tried to assassinate President Charles de Gaulle but failed when a bomb burned instead of exploding, police disclosed Saturday.

De Gaulee escaped injury, but his speeding limousine was slightly damaged and blackened by smoke as it sped through a sheet of flame during the incident Friday night. The right fender and headlight were smashed and the car was blotched with sand and dirt.

VANUXEM

It was the first attempt against De Gaulle's life since the Algerian "General's Revolt" against him early this year. Police conducted a mass roundup of suspected members of the outlawed secret army organization OAS that hopes to "keep Algeria French."

Two generals were seized but there was no official statement linking them with the assassination attempt. They were identified as Gen. Jean Crevecoeur and Gen. Paul Vanuxem, both graduates of St. Cyr, France's equivalent of West Point.

"It seems . . . following inquiries yet to be verified, that the heads, or at least those mainly responsible for the OAS in metropolitan France may be Generals Crevecoeur and Vanuxem," investigating officials said.

L.A. Teamsters Boo Hoffa

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Some Teamsters Union members booed and hissed national president James R. Hoffa in a stormy meeting on their new contract Saturday.

Hoffa pounded the gavel and called for order throughout the more than six-hour session.

Irate teamsters repeatedly shouted down, with cries of "sellout," his reading of the lengthy proposal. Many said the terms fell short of promises Hoffa made to the union here last July.

18 Children Attend Parents' Wedding

CARMEL (AP)—Flanked by their 18 children — including a cooing baby cut-up who almost stole the show—Navy Chief Warrant Officer Francis Beardsley and Mrs. Helen North were married Saturday in historic Carmel Mission.

The children marched into the mission in a double-rank military-style formation, tallest in the rear. A baby and a toddler were carried in. At the front pew they divided and half sat on each side for the Roman Catholic ceremony.

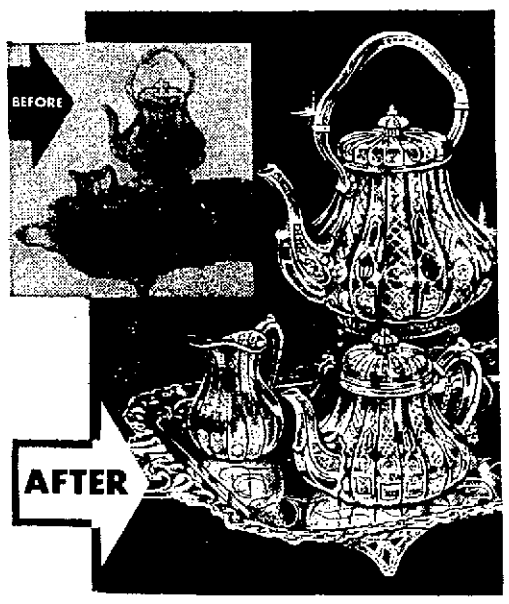

Beardsley was left with 10 children when his wife died last year after a short illness. Mrs. North's husband was killed in a Navy jet bomber crash. They exchanged condolence prayers after learning of each other's tragedies, began corresponding, dated and then decided to get married.

Gorilla Born in Capital Zoo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Moka, a young Washington Zoo gorilla, gave birth Saturday to the fourth gorilla ever born in captivity but the male infant had to be turned to a human substitute mother for care.

The newcomer, who was discovered around 6 a.m., weighed 5 pounds, 4¾ ounces. When Moka, an 8-year-old female, showed no interest in the baby, it was turned over to Mrs. Bernard Gallagher, wife of a zoo keeper, who has been preparing for the role of foster mother for months.

Lively L.B. Girl Visits 28 Lands

By GEORGE ERES

Ninety-nine of the 100 U.S. girls in the American Aquacade Ballet Group who went to Europe to give exhibitions of precision swimming last year came home after the Olympic Games.

The 100th girl, Gail Reynolds of Long Beach came home last week to report she had a wonderful time. She—

—Waltzed with an Austrian prince in the Imperial Palace in Vienna;

—Discussed the hazards of playing football with Leopold Stowkowski;

—Covered the President Kennedy-Premier Khruschev meetings as a "press photographer" by wangling credentials from a friend;

—Sneaked into the Vienna State Opera House for a chat with American singer Leontyne Price.

—Travelled in 28 countries and scooped in facts and impressions to feed a growing political-economic interest.

She managed all this and made a B-plus average for a year's study at the University of Vienna.

* * * *

SOME of Miss Reynolds impressions:

Vienna—"Vienna is reputed to be a cheerful city. I didn't find it so. Maybe it's because it just got its freedom back. After all the Russians only left six years ago.

East Berlin—"I was in East Berlin on May Day and saw people carrying banners with slogans and marching. I speak German and talked to some of the people. They didn't even know why they were marching. Somebody just told them to march."

Egypt—"I was in Egypt on July 23. Overnight, Nasser's program for confiscation of wealth was put into effect. The people who had money lost it. Naturally, the government press hailed the move. But the mass of the people can't even read. Presumably, the action was taken to help the poor and illiterate. I hope it will. Only, I noticed soldiers marching through the streets. I suspect the confiscated money went to pay for uniforms."

About scheduled tours — "I've taken some of these and if I had my way I'd abolish them. The way to travel is to take a guide book, wear tennis shoes and a smile. Talk to the people; ask questions; they like it when you're interested in them."

* * * *

WHILE VINNEA may not be as cheerful as it's pictured, its interest in music has not diminished over the years. People stand in line for tickets. Admission prices are low.

"I paid 32 cents for a ticket to hear Stowkoski conduct the London Symphony Orchestra. Afterwards I was invited to a reception for him. We talked about football. He'd broken his shoulder playing football with his children, he told me."

The Leontyne Price appearance in Aida in Vienna was to sell-out houses. "I saw the big line and knew I'd never get a seat, so I 'sneaked' in through the stage entrance.

"A guard asked me what I was doing thre. I said I wanted to see Miss Price.

"So he took me to her dressing room to see her."

* * * *

MISS REYNOLDS returned home with a collection of musical instruments and native costumes she bargained for in her travels: drums from Lebanon; an Austrian zither; flutes from Karachi, Dehli and Yugosalvia; a mandolin from Paris.

Most of the items she picked up, she understands. But one thing she never learned is why the toes of the slippers she bought in Pakistan come pointed and curled.

Miss Reynolds was busy packing again late last week. Not for a long trip to a far country; this time she's going to Berkeley for her senior year at the Univirsity of California. She's an education major.

Naturally, she's put in an application for residence in International House.

THAT'S A SAZ, or bagalama, Gail Reynolds is holding. It's from Istambul where she paid $4 for it. Other instruments she collected are grouped on the floor and chair. What looks like three vases on the floor are drums purchased in Lebanon. Miss Reynolds's skirt, is from India. The embroidery work is more than 100 years old.—(Staff Photo by Kent Henderson)

Big Rate Hike Seen in Sports at Reservoirs

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—City reservoirs could be opened for public recreation only if the public would be willing to support a 50 per cent hike in water rates, according to Samuel B. Nelson, water department general manager.

Nelson said if reservoirs were opened for boating, fishing and other sports at least $132 million would be needed to install filtration plants and other facilities to prevent pollution.

Nelson's remarks came in a policy statement on proposals by several outdoor and athletic groups.

U.S. Beefing Up, Modernizing European Units

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is taking steps to increase the mechanization — and thus the mobility—of its three infantry divisions in the critical German area.

The aim is to equip them better to meet on equal terms the highly mechanized Soviet forces they face across the Iron Curtain.

Gen. George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, said each of the divisions—the 3rd, 8th and 24th Infantry—is being given 1,000 additional men.

"This reinforcement will permit 7th Army to man and maintain an additional number of armored personnel carriers which they will be provided promptly to improve their mechanized strength," Decker said in a speech to the Association of the United States Army.

Kansas Unit Picnic

The Columbus, Kan., annual picnic will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. next Sunday in Bixby Park.

Freeman Names 32-Man Council on Grain, Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has appointed a 32-member advisory committee on feed grains and wheat.

The committee will hold its first meeting here Sept. 19 and 20. It will advise Freeman on major legislative proposals and other matters connected with feed grains and wheat.

Fred Heinkel, Columbia, president of the Missouri Farmers' Association, was named chairman.

Brown to Be Feted at Party Luncheon

Hugh Evans of Democratic Associates, Inc., said guests will include Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk and Assemblymen Jesse Unruh and William A. Munnell.

THOMPSON (L), KRUSZ . . . Inspect Local Industry

KRUSZ IN CHARGE

C. of C. to Boost Industrial Plan

Harry Krusz, executive vice president of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, has assumed over-all direction of business and industrial development activities for the chamber, it was announced Saturday.

The operational change was described as a move to speed development of new businesses and industries for Long Beach.

"This important phase of our community development will receive the fullest possible attention from both our staff and volunteer workers," Krusz said. "Our Industrial Development Committee, headed by Richard Caldwell, is accelerating its activities."

Krusz also announced he has appointed Dick Thompson, former staff writer, as fulltime industrial research director. Operation of the new research department will include economic research, statistics, processing of industrial inquiries, industrial publications and industrial relations activities.

Bill Boyd, manager of the chamber's International News Bureau, will assist in promotional phases of the program, Krusz said.

In addition, the new changes are to emphasize the industrial program created a year ago by a special economic study committee headed by Ben Clawson.

Objectives of the program are to seek new industries; serve existing industries through services including industrial relations and legislative activities; industrial advertising and promotion, and researching and accumulating data.

U.S. Farm Totals Top Russ

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States still tops the Soviet Union in farm production by around 60 per cent despite Communist efforts in recent years to surpass this country.

This was reported by the Agriculture Department Saturday in a detailed comparison of production of important farm commodities. For the most part, these comparisons are based on output in 1960.

* * * *

IN THE important livestock category, Soviet production last year was only 33 per cent of this country's for beef, 54 for pork, 26 for poultry meats, 46 per cent for lard, 26 per cent for margarine and shortening, 92 per cent for milk and 43 per cent for eggs.

* * * *

THE SOVIET Union led in lamb, mutton and goat meat with production equal to 265 per cent of this country's, and in butter at 126 per cent. The Soviets also led with a wool production of 259 per cent of this country.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has been anxious to duplicate this country's corn production—the basis for America's great superiority in the output of meats and other livestock products.

But in 1960, the department said, Soviet corn production was only 15 per cent of that in this country.

Laws Urged to Ensure Voting Right

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Rights Commission said Saturday that Southern Negroes must have more help from Congress to avoid a long and expensive delay in achieving voting rights.

It told President Kennedy and Congress that the civil rights acts of 1957 and 1960 have helped some Negroes reach the polls but that new and broader laws are needed to hasten voting equality.

The commission's report, a heavily-documented indictment of voting denials in eight Southern states, found "some basis to be encouraged" over the progress achieved in the last two years.

* * * *

BUT THE commission stopped short of saying it is easier for Southern Negroes to vote today than it was in 1959.

It said that under present laws the government must still proceed slowly, suit by suit, county by county. It added that the suits were expensive and time consuming and the Justice Department could not file and prepare all the warranted suits.

Director Berl I. Bernhard said reports on housing, education, employment and discrimination of justice would be presented later this month.

Court Order Clears Huge Bank Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — A government move to block a merger of the Manufacturers Trust Co. and the Hanover Bank was rejected Saturday by U.S. District Court Judge John M. Cashin.

Cashin, however, granted a government request that the banks show cause Tuesday why a temporary injunction should not be granted. Cashin's action will permit the banks to open Monday in merged form.

The State Banking Department had argued that a restraining order would have caused chaos Monday, leaving the combined bank without authority to issue checks or make loans.

* * * *

THE MERGED bank would be the fourth largest in the world and the third largest in the city.

The Department of Justice held that the merger would lessen competition and create a monopoly.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said in Washington "we believe the merger of these banks would result in increased concentration of financial power in a city where such concentration already is heavy."

Officers of the two banks said in affidavits a restraint against the merger would have a chaotic effect.

* * * *

CHARLES J. Stewart, president of Manufacturers Trust and of the merged bank, said relations with a number of customers would be affected adversely.

He said issuing a restraining order would damage Manufacturers Trust "in ways that cannot be measured in dollars and cents."

John M. Toohey, an attorney for the Justice Department, said if the merger went through and later were dissolved "on the merits," it would "inevitable cause and compound extremely entricate and complex problems of unscrambling, identification and separation of assets and other relief."

Bank Car Bandit Faces FBI

An armored car guard, charged with the $42,000 robbery of his own truck Tuesday in Santa Ana, will be deported from Tijuana Monday, Mexican authorities said Saturday.

Jerry Reece Peacock, 23, of 1110 S. Pacific St., Santa Ana, will be arrested at the border on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for armed robbery and kidnaping, the FBI said.

He will be returned to Santa Ana for trial.

* * * *

PEACOCK was arrested early Saturday in Tijuana in the midst of a $3,000-a-day night club spree.

Mexican police said they found more than $29,000 in cash and a .38 caliber revolver in his possession when they arrested him.

They said Peacock arrived in the border town only a few hours after he allegedly held up Kenneth Grissinger, a fellow employe of the Armored Transport and Depository Co. of Santa Ana, forced him at gunpoint into Grissinger's apartment, and left him bound and gagged.

900 Exiles Peril Castro Cubans

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Some 900 screaming Cuban exiles threatened the lives of a small group of Fidel Castro's adherents at Miami International Airport Saturday before beinb subdued by a police riot squad.

Thirty policemen threatened demonstrators with clubs and shoved them away from their intended victims but no blows actually were struck. After the Castro sympathizers were hustled out of sight, the crowd soon quieted.

The exiles were at the airport awaiting the arrival of a special Pan American Airways plane bringing refugees from Havana.

Three Bullets Save Zoo Worker From Lion

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A lion unexpectedly returned to its zoo pit Saturday and attacked a young employe cleaning the area.

Lynn Hudson, 19, a new employe at the Lincoln Park zoo, was saved when a fellow workman, Homer Spikes, fired a pistol three times at the lioness.

Attendants said a cage door leading to the pit apparently had been left ajar.

"I hated to open fire when the lion was so close to his head, but the animal was going for the kill," Spikes said. The lion didn't appear to be seriously hurt despite the three wounds.

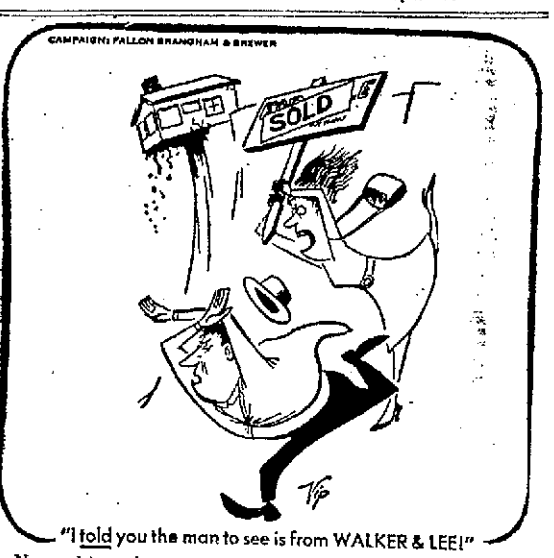

A male lion also started into the pit but another attendant slammed the door shut before it could get out. Hudson was alone in the area at the time of the attack. He was seriously injured.

Naval Reserve Officers to Hear Space Scientist

"First on the Moon — Yank or Soviet?" will be the question answered by Alexander W. Belikow, distinguished space scientist, at the opening meeting of the Naval Reserve Officer's School 11-4 to be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Long Beach State College. Upwards of 500 reserve officers from the San Pedro-Long Beach-Orange County areas are expected to assemble for the beginning session of the service-sponsored graduate education program in Lecture Hall 15, according to Capt. George Reinhalter USNR, commanding officer of the local unit.

ALEXANDER W. BELIKOW
Space Scientist Speaks

Belikow is recognized as one of America's outstanding authorities in the field of space and weapons systems. He is a member of the Space-General subsidiary of Aerojet, which was formed to expedite the nation's newly announced space program. Immediately prior to his present assignment, Belikow was head of the Astronautics Plans and Policy Coordination Branch of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Twenty-two graduate level courses ranging from space technology to nuclear power will be offered this year by NROS 11-4 at Long Beach State College and at "satellite" schools at Terminal Island, Santa Ana and Los Alamitos.

Reserve officers who enroll in one of the graduate level classes meeting one night each week will receive full retirement and promotion credit.

* * * *

COURSES to be offered this year at Long Beach State College include personnel administration, industrial management, industrial relations, naval electronics I, naval electronics II, nuclear power, guided missiles I, guided missiles II, space technology, atomic, biological and chemical warfare, economics for National security, orientation to command, International relations, and international law.

Courses at the Santa Ana Naval Reserve Center will include guided missiles I, guided missiles II, space technology, international relations, and the advanced course in economics for national security. The introductory and advanced Naval War College courses in strategy and tactics will be offered both at Los Alamitos and at the San Pedro Naval Reserve Training Center at Terminal Island. A course in industrial relations will also be given at Terminal Island.

port of call for Teddy Roosevelt's Great White Fleet and that in the 1930s the city was the home of the Pacific fleet.

* * * *

"In 1933, The City of Long Beach was shaken by an earthquake which took 57 lives and caused widespread damage. The city needed help, and the Navy provided it without even being asked."

"It was a tragedy which caused a special kind of kinship to develop between the citizens of Long Beach and the men of the Navy," Wade said.

The mayor noted that the motto of the USS Long Beach was "Strike and Strike Home."

"I might add that this also was the battle cry of the citizens of Long Beach when they set out to have this cruiser named for their city," he said.

* * * *

THE MAYOR presented a $20,000 silver service, a gift of the citizens of Long Beach, to the cruiser.

Mrs. Hosmer, who christianed the ship in 1959, presented a water color painting of the vessel by Arthur Beaumont.

Standing proudly at attention among the ships crew, as the flag was broken out from the cruiser's stern and the Long Beach commissioned, were radar technician J. K. Nichols and fire controlman Dennis C. Hassel, both of Long Beach. Nichols mother Mrs. June Nichols lives at 1057 Vina St.

Capt. Wilkinson was born in Long Beach on Aug. 10, 1918. He graduated from San Diego State College and taught chemistry and mathematics there before entering the Navy in 1940. He commanded the world's first nuclear submarine, the USS Nautilus, before being assigned to the USS Long Beach.

* * * *

HIS EXECUTIVE officer, Cmdr. Hal C. Castle, is from Peoria. The assistant weapons officer, Lt. Cmdr. James G. Wilson, worked as an engineer for Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach plant.

Cmdr. Castle posted the first watch at the conclusion of commissioning ceremonies and the officers and guests of the USS Long Beach were entertained at a reception at the Sheraton-Plaza. The silver service presented to the ship was on display at the reception, and next to it the canteen of Pacific Ocean water secured at great personal risk by Mayor Wade.

Today Capt. Wilkinson will give the order, "Prepare for sea," Monday, at some time past 9 a.m., the nuclear reactors will deliver power to the Long Beach's great twin propellors and the cruiser will leave Boston harbor for the Atlantic.

* * * *

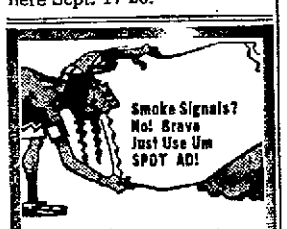

AT SEA, she will conduct trials, but she also will be an operational unit of the Atlantic cruiser force. In fact, she will be the flagship of that force, for on the admiral's bridge will be Rear Adm. Robert W. Cavanaugh, Commander, Cruiser Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

And sometime soon, the order will be given that will open the huge blast hatches. Long-range Talos and smaller, sleeker Terriers will slide onto their launches. On order, the missiles' tails will spout their hot white flames and the new gray paint on the decks will scorch and peel.

The great birds will lift and fly, and the men on the bridge will watch and calculate the USS Long Beach's power for freedom.

U.S. Heads Toward More Fearsome Bombs

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States' decision to resume nuclear testing is expected to increase substantially the already fearsome explosive power of most American strategic and tactical missiles.

It could also lead to a whole new family of atomic weapons, bombs with reduced radiation hazard, an anti-missile missile and devices for fighting any future thermonuclear war in space.

These are opinions of warhead experts here, most of whom applauded President Kennedy's signal to go-ahead with nuclear tests after Russia broke a three-year moratorium last week by triggering the first of a series of blasts.

* * * *

SOME FEARED that failure of the United States to resume tests would have enabled Russia to catch, or even surpass, this nation's presumed nuclear armament lead. They believe the Soviets may have sliced considerably into this once-healthy margin with secret firings during the three-year ban.

Military officials in Washington indicated the initial Nevada underground tests will be of relatively small warheads for battlefield atomic rockets like Honest John, La Crosse, Corporal and Davy Crockett. The explosive equivalent of these blasts would range from 100 tons of TNT to 20,000 tons of TNT.

But the feeling here is that the Atomic Energy Commission must move as quickly as possible toward development of more powerful warheads for larger missiles—primarily Minuteman and the submarine-launched Polaris which are emerging as key weapons in America's plans to build a retaliatory force so overpowering that an aggressor would be foolhardy to attack.

* * * *

THERE ALSO is urgency to work on more potent payloads for the inter-continental range Atlas and Titan city-busters, the Army's Pershing artillery missile and the plane-launched Skybolt rocket.

Tests of Atlas and Titan-type payloads probably would have to be conducted above ground. Kennedy for the time being is restricting the program to underground detonations.

The approximately 30 Atlas ICBMs on station in the western United States are capable of delivering devastating 4 megaton bombs to targets 6,300 miles away. Each bomb packs the wallop of 4 million tons of dynamite, or 200 times the punch of the Hiroshima bomb dropped on Japan in World War II. Titans, soon to be deployed, will have a slightly larger payload.

* * * *

SCIENTISTS believe they can nearly double the destructive force of Atlas and Titan without increasing the weight of the warhead. Or they can reduce the weight and hurl the same explosive yield over greater range. But these theories must be tested before the bombs can be trusted on a rocket.

An improved Titan II will begin test flights here late this year. It will be able to hoist a 10 megaton warhead, if such a huge device can be tested properly. A payload this large may be required to knock out hardened underground military installations or missile sites.

Lake Area Planned for San Diegans

Reclaimed sewage water is being used to build a string of 19 lakes ranging in size from 5 to 20 acres in San Diego's dry back country.

The first of these lakes was opened recently in Sycamore Canyon, reports "Engineering News-Record."

The lakes will extend 3½ miles down the canyon and will be used for fishing, boating and picnic areas. One of the lakes will be chlorinated and used for swimming.

Santee County Water District, which serves some 18,000 suburban San Diegans, is creating the lakes. The district handles about a million gallons of sewage daily. The sewage is treated at the main sewage plant, then pumped to three oxidation ponds in Sycamore Canyon.

After 45 days in the ponds, the reclaimed water is pumped to the head of the canyon, then "percolated" downstream to the lakes through the sand and gravel canyon floor.

The water district plans to form two lakes a year.

Many Losing Homes for Tijuana Project

TIJUANA (UPI)—Roberto De La Madrid, president of federal public works commission, said Saturday some of the 3,500 persons residing in the Tijuana river bottom have begun evacuating the area, which is to be used for a commercial and civic center.

Hydrofoil Ship Is Shark-Killer

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

Discoverer, the prototype passenger hydrofil undergoing a series of tests off the Southern California Coast, has a new distinction. She's a shark killer.

In a recent run from San Diego to Long Beach, the 22-passenger vessel killed 25 sharks with her metal skiis. The smaller sharks she sliced in half without so much as a shudder on deck, but with the 15 to 20-foot-long denizens of the deep the Discoverer had to back off from her prey and cruise around.

VOLUME OF exports from the port of Long Beach will skyrocket beginning next summer when the ore terminal on Pier G is put into operation. Nine Japanese steel mills have already contracted to buy approximately 1.15 million tons of Eagle Mountain iron ore each year. The ore will be shipped by Kaiser Steel via Long Beach.

The operation will tremendously expand railroad traffic into Long Beach. One hundred (and perhaps 125) car trains will arrive in Long Beach from Eagle Mountain every three days during the first year, carrying the ore alone.

Port Manager Charles Vickers says he expects that more than 2 million tons of ore will be shipped through the harbor during the first year.

Motorists will be pleased to know that they won't have any long railroad crossing waits for the huge ore rail caravans while driving into the harbor on Pico Avenue. The railroad lines will be realigned to the west of Pico, paralleling the thoroughfare and not crossing it at any point to the terminus at Pier G.

THE U. S. Merchant Marine declined by 320 vessels in a year's period ending July 1. The Maritime Administration of the Department of Commerce said there were 621 vessels of 1,000 gross tons and over in the active ocean-going U. S. fleet on that date as compared to 941 on July 1, 1960.

The lengthy national maritime strike didn't help things either. The American Merchant Marine Institute claims that 189 privately owned vessels of 207,800 deadweight tons were laid up because of the strike. Also tied up were 15 government-owned dry cargo vessels under charter to private steamship companies.

IT WAS like stepping into another world for those of us who went to La Casa de Rancho Los Alamitos for the dedication of a plaque marking this historic spot, arranged by the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West.

When I arrived at the hilltop hacienda off E. Seventh St., Johnny Johnston remarked that my trip from downtown, if made in the horse and buggy days when the rancho was in its prime, would have required two hours. I had made it in about 15 minutes, despite the crush of afternoon traffic on E. Seventh.

The little driving experience helped to sharpen the contrast as I moved into the serene, shade-and-sunshine atmosphere of the old rancho headquarters. Here was quiet and peace amid great trees, mature shrubbery of great beauty and ancient buildings that spoke volumes about the romantic past.

THE physical surroundings and the program were pleasantly permeated with nostalgia. Fred Bixby Jr., who grew up at this place, told fascinating intimate details of the old life there.

An amusing sidelight was this account of the time his father decided to give a billiard table to the Long Beach YMCA.

The offer was met with horrified indignation by people who thought the game table would corrupt the youth of the community.

So Bixby hauled the table out to the rancho and it still sits in a room toward the front of the building, known from that moment as the "billiard room."

The dedication ceremonies were pleasingly arranged and proceeded with leisure, in keeping with the surroundings.

After it was over the cars were started and we rolled down the oleander-lined driveway to the front gate, where we plunged into the traffic of E. Seventh again. Three city traffic men were there to help us survive this emergence into the rampant modern world.

THE "little old lady" has become something of an institution, and when one hears the phrase he knows pretty well what she looks like.

But you never can tell about little old ladies.

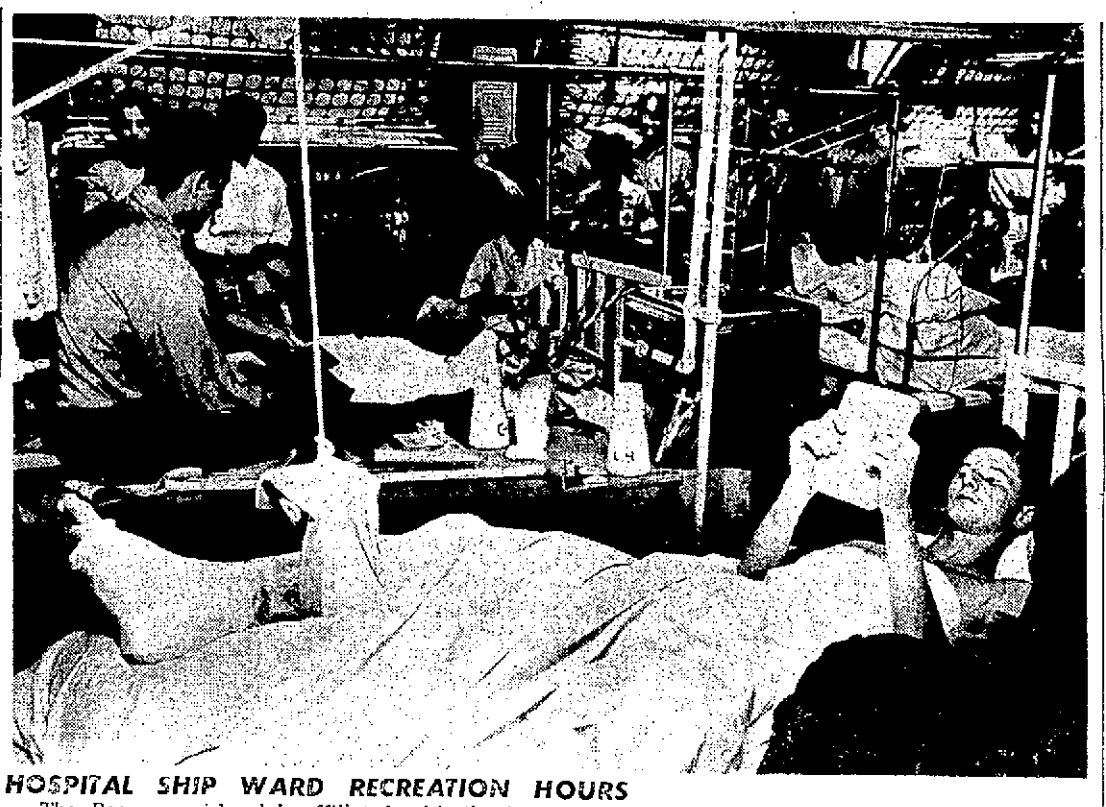

Two of our men were at lunch at a Pine Ave. cafeteria when a soft, confidential voice came to our ears:

"Would you gentlemen like to buy an Irish sweepstakes ticket?"

They looked up to find a grandmotherly-looking woman leaning over between them in surreptitious manner. Her sales pitch rejected, she smiled sweetly and went on her way, out and down Pine Ave.

My friends speculated on what would have happened had one or both been police officers in plain clothes. But evidently the little old lady knows her police if not her best sales prospects.

SIGN Language—On a trip to the northern part of the state, Capt. Bob Rife noted this sign at a cafe located on a lonely side road: "Anyone who can remain calm in the midst of all this confusion simply doesn't understand the situation." Leaving the cafe he followed a Camper truck which displayed a small sign reading: "Have Credit Card —Can Travel." And a fellow in San Francisco sported a bumper sign reading: "Drive Carelessly. Help to Solve Our Over-population Problem."

Community Fund Quotas Allotted

Quotas for the various sections of the four communities in the United Neighbors Community Chest to be solicited by the residential division were released Saturday by Mrs. Francis M. Lowry, division chairman.

Largest goal of $20,465 has been assigned eastside teams, under the leadership of Mrs. Harry Krusz, one of the six vice chairmen of the division. This is broken down into a quota of $11,428 for Mrs. Russell Peterson, area general for Belmont Shore, Naples, Alamitos Heights, and the Peninsula, and $9,037 for Belmont Heights teams under Mrs. R. S. Kibler.

Five Lakewood-area generals with Mrs. George Nye Jr. as vice chairman have a total $5,717 goal. Individual quotas for the different Lakewood sections are: Mrs. Norman Gottlieb, $1,560; Mrs. Henry Olague, $893; Mrs. S. D. Sakry, $1,619; Mrs. George Nye, $590; Mrs. A. J. Corske, $1,055.

* * * *

IN BOTH LAKEWOOD and Belmont Shore business firms are not solicited by the residential division, but uptown Atlantic firms are included in the $11,495 quota set for Bixby Knolls and Los Cerritos teams under the leadership of Mrs. Leo Shultz.

Los Altos neighborhood businesses are expected to help raise the $7,630 goal for that area, where Mrs. Zeddie Marsh and Mrs. F. B. Perkins are generals in charge.

North Long Beach quota of $5,467 and the $5,712 goal in the northeastern part of the city promise real competition between Mrs. A. W. Jarvis of North Long Beach and Mmes. Roland Kautz, G. S. Shepard, and Winifred B. Patterson in the northeast.

* * * *

WESTSIDE'S $9,073 quota is divided with Mrs. James Kunkle's Wrigley volunteers responsible for $6,791 and the remainder for Dominguez' area general, Mrs. P. E. Larson.

In the central section of Long Beach, Mrs. Jesse S. Holton Sr. and Mrs. Charles F. Reed have a combined $12,061 quota.

Residential's special advance gift committee, with Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby as chairman, have been given a $15,300 quota.

Hearing Will Air Transit Problems

School Schedule Listed for L.B.

Final instructions to the army of 100,000 youths and adults who will return Monday morning to the 77 local public schools were issued Saturday by Douglas A. Newcomb, superintendent of schools.

All schools will open at the regular time, 8:30 a.m. for junior and senior high schools and 9 a.m. for elementary schools. Pupils who have not already enrolled are urged to report a half hour before the starting time so they may be assigned to classes the first day.

* * * *

ALL ELEMENTARY, junior high, and senior high schools will close at 2 p.m. on the first day to permit principals and their staffs to make changes necessary to meet actual registration.

Kindergarten and first grade pupils who do not have a birth certificate or other evidence of date of birth will be accepted temporarily for enrollment. They must furnish proof of date of birth in accordance with the state law, however, before their registration can be completed. A child must be 4 years and 9 months of age on or before Sept. 1 to be admitted to kindergarten and 5 years and 9 months of age on or before Sept. 1 to be admitted to first grade.

School officials suggest that the school nearest the home be contacted if a pupil is in doubt about which school to attend. Maps showing the areas to be served will be available in each school.

* * * *

ALL cafeterias in all schools will be open the first day of school. An extra nickel for lunch might be appropriate this year as small raises have been made in the price of some items on the school lunch menu.

Registration for day classes at the Liberal Arts Division of the Long Beach City College is closed. The only registration that will be accepted is for evening students in the Lakewood campus cafeteria from 6 to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday. New day students at the Business and Technology Division will be programmed in the cafeteria at 1305 East Pacific Coast Highway throughout the week.

Evening students at BTD and in all General Adult Division classes will be accepted beginning Monday at the first meeting of the class. In addition, BTD will have preregistration from 6 to 9:30 p.m. in all evening courses numbered 1-99 and those with a "T" prefix.

30 Billboard Workers Still Picket in L.B.

The strike by more than 30 billboard workers at two Long Beach firms has entered its fourth week.

Picketed are Foster & Kleiser Co., 1429 Magnolia Ave., and Pacific Outdoor Advertising Co., 4647 Long Beach Blvd.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH workers, members of Billposters, Billers and Distributors USA and Canada, Local 32, and workers in Arizona, Oregon, Washington and California are represented by their international president, Doyle Gilmour, in negotiations at San Francisco.

President of Local 32, Anthony Emerson, of Los Angeles, said the main issue concerns safety. The union wants two men assigned to all jobs on high structures. The advertising companies want to solve the matter through arbitration, Emerson said.

Pupils Will Have Short First Day

School opens Monday, but students are in for a pleasant surprise.

The schools have to close at 2 p.m. to allow principals to attend administrative meetings.

Regular sessions will begin Tuesday in all area schools, according to Douglas A. Newcomb, superintendent of schools.

Injured in Traffic

Harlow P. Tovie, 33, of 1360 Junipero Ave., suffered minor injuries in a traffic accident near Encinitas Friday night, the California Highway Patrolmen reported.

Solutions in Report Limited

By GEORGE WEEKS

City officials will conduct a public hearing within three weeks on the transit question, now shaping up as one with only two possible solutions, neither of them inviting.

The Bureau of Franchises will announce the date of the hearing shortly after its chairman, City Manager John R. Mansell, returns at midweek from Washington, D.C.

Indications are that the bureau members — four city councilmen in addition to the city manager — are sharply divided on the issue of allowing Long Beach Motor Bus Co. to be taken over by Metropolitan Transit Authority or the alternative of purchase and operation by the city itself.

* * * *

THERE IS no third choice, according to a report last week by De Leuw, Cather & Co. on local transportation problems. The consulting engineers had just completed a detailed analysis under terms of a $21,000 city contract.

Their conclusion that public ownership in one form or the other is inevitable was based on repeated statements by National City Lines officials that the local subsidiary is for sale because of its unfavorable profit - and - loss record.

MTA negotiated with company officials for the purchase last year and subsequently offered the city an option to take over the operation within two years with a cost formula contemplating no resale profit by MTA.

* * * *

CONSIDERATION of the option has been held in abeyance in recent months pending the completion of the De Leuw, Cather report. It is expected to become one of the issues at the bureau hearing.

Only one bureau member is on public record since the report was delivered. Councilman William A. Graham predicted that MTA will take over the operation.

But the membership also includes sharp critics of the transit authority, among them Councilman Emmet Sullivan. The latter has repeatedly forecast consolidation of routes and reduced service under MTA operation.

Transit experts point out also that it would be difficult for the city two years hence to take over the local segment of the MTA system, disentangle it from other lines, settle labor problems and embark on an operation designed to support the economic and social welfare of the community.

* * * *

THAT SERVICE level was one of two outlined in the De Leuw, Cather report. The other was a level intended merely to meet present rider demand. Says the report:

"There is increasing recognition throughout the country that public transit is a public responsibility, and as essential to the welfare, prosperity and development of the community as are water supply, sanitation and police and fire protection."

According to the consultants, 21,000 persons use the buses for transportation daily to and from the downtown area.

But on the financial side, the engineers give no reason to believe that under city control fares could be held at their present level or service improved without eventual deficits that would have to be met from other city revenues.

* * * *

A SERVICE level designed for economic and social welfare would result in annual deficits of $120,000 under a 20-cent basic cash fare or $65,000 under a 25-cent fare during the first five years, according to the experts' calculations.

Even a level of service to meet present rider demand would yield only a $27,000 annual profit under a 20-cent fare or $72,000 with a 25-cent charge.

Our Schools Keep Pace With Rising Challenge of Times

OPENING OF Long Beach Unified School District's schools tomorrow turns the spotlight on the tremendous effort made by the school administration, backed by the taxpayers of the district, to do the educational job right in the face of increasing enrollments and the changing challenges of the times.

For the eighth consecutive year, all boys and girls will have full-day schooling and a qualified teacher. This condition is unusual in rapidly growing Southern California. It is notable here because our area is sharing in this growth. School statisticians predict that once again all-time enrollment records will be broken, with the greatest increase in junior and senior high schools where the mounting crop of "war babies" are signing up.

THERE ARE SOME marked differences in the school programming this year. Some of the things that are new:

Foreign languages will be offered for the first time in elementary grades. Six pilot classes will be conducted, and evaluation of these classes will determine how rapidly the program will be expanded.

Algebra will be offered the first time in the eighth grade. This is one of the programs designed to meet the needs of particularly able youngsters.

Driver education will be offered on Saturdays and in after-school hours, reducing interference with the teaching of basic subjects in regular periods.

Special literature classes will be offered bright youngsters in the fifth grade.

The school system will have one individual, charged with heading up a program for superior pupils.

THESE ARE AMONG the various evidences that Long Beach school administrators are keeping up with the needs of the times. They not only have the physical plant to handle the swollen enrollments, but they are determined to make the educational effort count for more in the modern world.

We can look with satisfaction upon the community's preparations for another year of educational service for our children whose sharp training is not only important to their chances in the future but is a contribution to the welfare of the nation.

DAVID LAWRENCE

It's Time for U. S. to End Pussyfooting Forbearance

WASHINGTON — Everyone in America would back up almost any effort President Kennedy might make to avert another world war and to bring about a reduction in the current cost of "peacetime" armaments.

LAWRENCE

But, as so often happens when governments get bogged down in the rituals of diplomacy, the obvious is overlooked. Reliance is too often placed on strong talk to the Kremlin about bigger and better weapons or the mobilization of armies. But this doesn't reach the Russian people.

Today the most obvious fact staring the whole world in the face is that a dictatorship exists in the Soviet Union which lies to its own people by completely distorting and misrepresenting the viewpoint of the Western countries. This is not an academic matter for the Russians either. For if war comes, millions of them will lose their lives.

Yet the United States government is falling down badly in communicating its views to the people behind the Iron Curtain. The excuse usually offered is that it is hard to penetrate communist-controlled areas and that radio broadcasts can be "jammed." This is partly true, but there are ways of reaching into the Soviet Union if a massive effort were made.

IT SEEMS incomprehensible that in a country like America, where publicity and advertising have reached such a high degree of effectiveness, the government itself should be fumbling and bumbling in presenting its views to the world. President Kennedy has an alert mind, and he fully understands the art and value of publicity in domestic politics. It is a mystery why he has allowed the publicity of the United States government abroad to be neglected.

There is need for a vigorous and aggressive policy with a powerful directive from the President of the United States which would authorize direct appeals to the people of the Soviet Union. The bureaucrats may oppose it, but they are not realistic in view of the threat that faces the world.

THE EXISTING directives, for instance, are based on a pussyfoot policy of forbearance. They provide that care should be taken not to seem to be dealing with internal affairs in Russia. So broadcasts are made in vague and abstract jargon, designed mostly to reach so-called "intellectuals."

Today, when the world faces the possibility of a nuclear war, is not the time to handle America's viewpoint with tenderness or politeness. It is a time for straightforward and plain speaking by the American people to the Russian people.

The United States, moreover, need not hesitate to tell the Russian people that Nikita Khrushchev is threatening world peace, that he is suppressing the truth about his own nuclear tests, and is following a dangerous course which can lead to a war that neither side really wants.

Facts about the suppression of the truth and the enslavement of hundreds of millions of human beings behind the Iron Curtain — these are matters which need emphasis over the air waves everywhere. They must be repeated persistently, day in and day out, so that the whole world will have a basis for condemnation of real tyranny and real colonialism.

NOR IS THERE any good reason to ignore the "non-aligned" or "neutral" nations either. Their peoples, too, should be told the truth. In many of these countries, which profess the virtues of their "neutralism," censorship of the press and radio is maintained, so that the American viewpoint doesn't become known or is deliberately misrepresented.

When will the administration stop overlooking the obvious? Time is running out. Officialdom has sidestepped the problem for the last 15 years. It is not a political or partisan question. It is a simple matter of directly telling the peoples of the Soviet Union and the communist bloc, in their own languages, that the West is truly interested in peace and that the Soviet leaders are playing with fire and can bring on a nuclear war.

QUESTIONS

Place in Sun

Q. What is the origin of the phrase, "a place in the sun?" R.B.

A. In the 17th Century Pascal used it in his Pensees (No. 295): "That dog is mine, said those poor children; that place in the sun is mine. Such is the beginning and type of usurpation throughout the earth." In modern times, the phrase was made famous by Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany. In a speech in 1901 on the acquisition of Kiachow, China, he said: "It will now be my duty to see to it that this place in the sun shall remain our undisputed possession."

GOP's Need for Demo Votes Seen as Top Knight Asset

NO ONE will be surprised if Goodwin J. Knight tosses his hat into the gubernatorial ring within the next couple of weeks.

In fact, a good many Republicans have been expecting him to do so, and thereby toss out a once and for all challenge to the voters of the GOP in California for the nomination next June.

During an exclusive interview with Capitol News Service recently, Ex-Governor Knight was asked if he intended to have an announcement soon which would be important to the Republican party, in fact, within a couple of weeks.

"I just may, I just may have that," Knight replied.

* * * *

SUCH AN ANNOUNCEMENT, of course, would be only his intention to seek the governorship once again, in the face of all the factions of the GOP which are seeking recognition at this time, including Richard Nixon, Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, Assemblyman Joseph Shell of Los Angeles and former Lieutenant Governor Harold J. Powers of Modoc County.

KNIGHT
Could Split Demos

The Republicans at the present time are almost disastrously split, with virtually no leadership and no definite program. The party has lost national leadership, the governorship of California, and all the state elective offices except that of secretary of state. It has bare minorities in the senate and assembly of California.

With this situation to face, it will be up to the nominee of the party at the June primary elections to solidify the remaining remnants into a workable group, with the idea of regaining control in only a few years instead of the long period of time it took the Democrats to come back after the Bourbons lost control of California.

* * * *

THERE ARE many in the party who feel that Ex-Governor Knight is thoroughly competent to do the job. And there are also many who feel that Nixon could do it well.

But when everything is taken into consideration, the fact remains that the Democrats, with a 3-2 majority in registration in California, fear Knight as a candidate more than they fear Nixon.

They argue that Knight would be the most likely candidate to split the Democrats wide open, dividing the ultra-liberals from the more conservative element of the party, who are probably not quite conservative enough to vote for Nixon, but would go along with Knight, who while he was governor approached administration on more of a bi-partisan basis.

* * * *

BUT THESE Democrats, of course, will have nothing to say as to who is the Republican candidate, due to the fact that cross-filing is out, and they will have probably only one candidate to support in the primary, that being Governor Edmund G. Brown.

The question of the eventual election, therefore, observers feel, hangs on the vote of the registered Republicans next June. With Nixon solidifying the Democrats, Brown no doubt would be an odds-on favorite to return to office. But, if a candidate is selected who would split the Democratic vote, the Republicans might have a running chance.

Scholarship on Word of Experts

EDITOR:

Recently the executive committee of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Assn. voted to make an appropriation of $300 from the scholarship fund to a Long Beach boy, Billy Tarpy. This appropriation made it possible for the boy to take advantage of a full scholarship at the American School of Ballet in New York City.

Since there have been some questions asked regarding the basis and criteria upon which the appropriation was made, I would appreciate your printing this letter in the interests of public information.

Scholarships are customarily awarded in cases where the following things exist: (1) talent and ability, (2) seriousness and dedication, and (3) need for financial assistance. All of these things were incontrovertibly established by letters written in Tarpy's behalf by Eugene Ouroussow, Carmelita Maracci, Valerie Silver and others. The executive committee did not assume the highly skilled function of auditioning the boy, but felt that the recommendations of the outstanding specialists listed more than adequately provided the needed information.

'Anti' Position Most Effective

EDITOR:

Your editorial on the successful anti-subsidence fight was most interesting. Subsidence has been gnawing away slowly but relentlessly for many years, destroying the waterfront area of the Port of Long Beach.

Some fuzzy thinkers in our country tell us that it is not enough to be anti-something—that we must be for something. They would have us believe that it is not good to be anti-anything. They would tell you that when you are anti-subsidence you are attempting to influence people to hate subsidence.

If the anti-subsidence fight had been waged as a "for" something type of fight, it would have been impossible, because of the many varied interests involved, to get all of the cooperating groups to be for the same thing.

The fight against communism is similar. Communism has been gnawing away at the United States and the free world for many years. All Americans, no matter what they may be for, can unite in the anti-Communist fight. No matter whether a person is "for" Democrats or Republicans, "for" Catholic, Jews, or Protestants or "for" open or closed shops, once he is made aware of the true nature of communism, he will be uncompromisingly anti-Communist.

This is a fight that can only be won by each of us educating ourselves as to the nature of the Communist disease and its treatment. If we neglect this fight, communism will destroy us just as surely as subsidence would have destroyed the Port of Long Beach if the anti-subsidence fight had not been staged and won.

Wants Action in CHP Cases

There's a deplorable stench about the California Highway Patrol. Our globe-trotting governor should step in and do more than merely suspend officers who have had sex parties and coffee dates.

Let's Consider Value of a Life

EDITOR:

About the highway patrolmen who refused to escort the father with the stricken child, wouldn't it be better to make 100 useless trips than to lose a life? And couldn't the officers let their coffee get cold while they found out if the father knew the way to the hospital?

Sees Racket in Shelter Drive

EDITOR:

As regards civil defense, what good will these underground shelters do when you have to breathe the same radiation-adulterated air as those who stay above ground, or when you emerge you find the ground for many miles around is polluted? I think, and so do many of us, it is just a racket for someone to make a fat profit.

Languages in the News

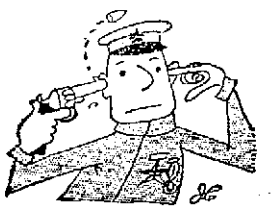

By Charles F. Boelitz and Robert Strumpen-Darrie

We have lately received numerous interesting inquiries from our readers. Here are some:

"Where does the phrase "to get down to brass tacks" come from?" (Mrs. H. S. Mason, Providence, R. I.)

There are two explanations. Take your choice!

1. In early times in the United States bolts of cloth were placed on the counter in general stores and the amount to be cut off was tacked down and cut after the initial haggling over the price had been settled.

2. Wooden ships were scraped for barnacles right down to the copper nails or "tacks" in their hulls.

* * * *

"Where does the phrase "Russian Roulette" come from?" (Sandra McGhee, North Kansas City, Mo.)

It refers to the onetime custom of Russian cavalry officers to show their bravery. They challenged each other by taking turns spinning a revolver barrel containing one bullet and then firing it at the spinner's head. Somewhat similar is the American teen-age game of "chicken" played with cars, or the Japanese parties for men where "fuku" (fookoo) a delicious fish, that can be extremely poisonous if not expertly cleaned, is served.

DREW PEARSON

Adlai Got Brickbats for Urging Test Ban

WASHINGTON—Most people have forgotten it, but it was Adlai Stevenson, during the election campaign of 1956, who first demanded that the world stop nuclear testing because it was contaminating the air with poison.

PEARSON

Today everyone except the Kremlin is in favor of the ending of nuclear testing. But five years ago, when Stevenson was running an uphill race against Eisenhower, nobody was for it except Adlai. Nixon poured cold water on the idea, and accused Stevenson of "catastrophic nonsense." Eisenhower accused Stevenson of making a "theatrical gesture." He implied that Stevenson didn't know what he was talking about.

However, Stevenson stuck to his guns. He delivered a full-dress speech Sept. 29, 1956, demanding that nuclear testing be stopped—if Russia would agree. Various Democratic leaders begged Stevenson to lay off, told him to drop the subject—it was losing votes, killing his chances of election.

Adlai, however, persisted.

Later it developed that John Foster Dulles in a cabinet meeting on Sept. 4 had proposed exactly the same suspension of nuclear testing and that Eisenhower had concurred. But after Stevenson made his speech, the Eisenhower administration reversed itself and trained all its guns on Stevenson.

The Eisenhower administration continued testing until Oct. 31, 1958. On Aug. 12 some of the biggest bombs ever tested were exploded over the mid-Pacific and on Oct. 30, the United States detonated an underground device at the Nevada proving grounds with a force equal to 20,000 tons of TNT. Next day all further U.S. tests were stopped. Three days later the Soviet fired its last test—until last week.

This was two years and a month after Stevenson's proposal.

THE LADY from Maine, who sponsored legislation permitting Air Force women only one single top rank of colonel, had occasion recently to watch proudly as her administrative assistant Bill Lewis was made a brigadier general.

Lewis, who has always outranked his boss, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith in the Air Force — she is only a lieutenant colonel — says he handled the situation in the same manner as Gen. Doolittle riding in a jeep with a WAC aide.

The car stopped. The lady looked at him in obvious distress.

"General," she said, "you outrank me, but I'm a woman. What do we do now?"

"Ma'am," answered the general, "beauty always precedes rank."

* * * *

THE EX-VICE president looked terrific when in Washington the other day. The tired lines have vanished from his face, which is now more pink than tan. . . . Newswomen were burnt up when Nixon held a luncheon in the Press Club bar where no women are admitted. . . . It was from this luncheon that rumor leaked that Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy is to have another baby —since denied by the White House. . . . Nixon told friends he was going up to New York "to see people" about the California governorship. The inference was that he was looking for financial backing . . . There seems no question but that Dick will run for governor of California. . . . Nixon told friends he was more worried over Brazil than Cuba. Goulart, he said, is in the same category as Castro. . . . Nixon's new book will be written by himself. It will be on his own experiences in public life. Earl Mazo, his old ghostwriter and friend, is doing much of the research.

L.B. Pastor Tells of Angry Scenes at Brandenburg Gate

The anger and frustration of a divided Berlin and the hope for victory of Christianity over Marxism through example was related here Saturday by a Long Beach pastor who was in Berlin at the time of the closing of the Brandenburg Gate in crisis-ridden August.

The Rev. C. LeRoy Doty, Jr., pastor of the First Church of the Brethren here, went to West Berlin to participate in a three-week seminar on "The Christian-Communist Encounter: Personal and International." Twenty-one persons from 10 countries met July 26-Aug. 19 in the seminar sponsored by the Brethren Service Commission in a cooperative program with the World Council of Churches.

The Rev. Mr. Doty was in East Berlin when the Communists erected a barbed wire blockade to keep refugees from flowing into West Berlin.

"When our party entered East Berlin about 10 a.m. on Aug. 13," said the Rev. Mr. Doty, "we had no indication of what was to happen.

"I had been in East Berlin before and it was like a ghost town. But as we were on our way back to West Berlin we saw thousands of people flowing toward the Brandenburg Gate.

"When we got to the gate," he said, "the East German police and militia were lined up, shoulder to shoulder, holding the crowd back.

"There were soldiers on top of buildings, training guns down on the people. Russian tanks, manned by East Germans, rolled into the area.

"Some in the crowd jeered — some cheered," he said. "But for the most part it was a quiet crowd. It seemed as if they were just waiting for something to happen."

After showing passports — "about 20 times"—the Rev. Mr. Doty and his party were allowed to leave East Berlin.

In West Berlin, he said, "the people massed angrily near the Brandenburg Gate, shouting insults at the East Berlin soldiers and yelling about the 'workers paradise.'

"There is a feeling of frustration in West Berlin," he continued. "The people there feel they are completely dependent on the United States." He said one of the signs greeting Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson on his arrival read: "Washington is Closer Than Bonn."

"About 300,000 people stood in the rain an hour and a half waiting for Johnson," he said. "Many were crying after he spoke.

The Rev. Mr. Doty was in Russia before the seminar began and visited the Russian Baptist Church in Moscow.

"We need to recognize the tremendous effect that a purified and revitalized Christian church is having and can have on Communism behind the 'Iron Curtain,'" he said.

"Far from it being the end of the church in Eastern countries, the church there is like the church in ancient Rome. The church lives only in Jesus Christ and not in external supports or economic wealth.

"When the Marxist sees a Christian who is willing to sacrifice for his faith to the point of social ostricism, ridicule or even death, he must ask himself, 'Am I really right about the Church being dead, or is it still living?'

"The fact that there are so many dedicated Christians behind the 'Iron Curtain' who hold to this new theology in the hope that Marxist dogma will change is a sure sign that it will."

Complete curricula leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Laws and Master of Laws are offered.

The school's student body is unusual in that all students are employed full-time and attend classes evenings. More than 90 per cent of the students are married.

Latest addition to the faculty is G. Merle Bergman, formerly on the faculty of the Law School of the University of Kansas City and now in private practice here.

Trolley Fans Plan Visit to Elsinore

A special excursion train will take members of the Orange Empire Trolley Museum to Lake Elsinore Sept. 24, according to Jim Walker, secretary of the organization.

The Santa Fe train will leave Los Angeles Union station at 9 a.m. and make stops at the Rivera and Fullerton stations. It will return at 6 p.m. The public is invited, and fare is $4.95.

The Elsinore Valley Chamber of Commerce is arranging entertainment for the train's passengers, including parachute drops.

TERRY'S A TRAMP

Hitch-Hiking Pooch Problem to Mistress

DEL MAR (UPI)—"Let's face it," said Mrs. R. W. Gerber. "Terry is a tramp. He's always sneaking rides."

Terry is a 7-year-old Irish setter with a passion for hitch-hiking. His last trip was with a frightened clerk, Mrs. Mona Ormsby of San Diego.

Mrs. Ormsby told sheriff's deputies: "A large red dog jumped into my car while I was having dinner at the hotel.

"I told him to get out. He just wagged his tail. I tried to push him out but he was too big and obstinate"

Mrs. Ormsby said she gave him a ride, later calling Mrs. Gerber when she saw Terry's name on his collar.

Mrs. Gerber said it wasn't the first time Terry had snitched a ride.

"Once," Mrs. Gerber said, "he even stowed away in Victor Mature's car."

The actor didn't notice Terry until he arrived at his home in nearby Rancho Santa Fe.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Bishop Blows Whistle on Swim Pool Guests

By EARL WILSON

BEVERLY HILLS — Joey Bishop of the Bronx, Philadelphia and Englewood, N. J., lounged in the sun beside his pool here on Roxbury Dr. and endeavored to explain the character he's going to play when he begins his very own TV show, Sept. 20 — a far from easy chore.

BISHOP

"His name is Joey Barnes," Joey said. "I wasn't about to throw away all my shirts with the initials J. B. on them."

"What does this guy do?" I asked. "I heard he was sort of a theatrical agent."

"He's a public relations man." Joey sipped some strawberry soda and stuck out his bare toes so they, too, could get sun-tanned.

"But I talked to Danny Thomas and he said you aren't a public relations man," I remarked.

* * * *

JOEY TOSSED me a look which could probably be described as quizzical. "Yeah?" he said. "What time did you talk to Danny?"

You can see that things change very rapidly on the TV scene here when they're building new shows. It turned out that Joey isn't a press agent . . . but is a public relations man. There's a difference. As they say in the business, there's about a $200-a-week difference.

"Joey plays like a coat-holder, a leg-man, for the Willoughby Public Relations Co. in New York," a friend explained. "When the visiting star needs a bra or a pair of stockings, Joey performs a personal service—he trots out and buys them—even tries them on for size . . ."

* * * *

DENNIS O'KEEFE plays the part of a swinging bachelor. Dennis says: "Marriage is a wonderful thing if you like pot roast for the next 30 or 40 years."

Getting into weekly TV on a big scale for the Danny Thomas enterprises means that Joey will be out of night clubs, where he made his big pitch for fame before going on the Jack Paar show.

Famous for his quiet ad libs, Joey realized that there was a danger in switching to a scripted show. Many have thought that Joey's greatest charm is his throw-away lines which nobody could have written for him.

And so, Joey says, he is tossing ad-libs into the filmed show, and hoping there will be enough of those to give the same flavor.

* * * *

JOEY'S BIGGEST effort in the filming to date was handling a Jack Paar spot concerning an African safari in which Joey, as the public relations man, had to "service" some chimpanzees which were doing a spot on the Paar show. Evidently nothing went right—when I visited their set at one of the Desilu studios, I heard Paar saying that if he was trained, then why weren't the chimps?

Paar appeared for $320 and expenses—the same as Joey and other stars get on the Paar show. They had been prepared to pay Paar many thousands for the spot.

* * * *

ONE OF THE luxuries that Joey, his son, and his $7 dog, Winky, given him by Buddy Hackett, enjoy is the private swimming pool.

"When I was a kid in Philly," he says, "I went to a public pool, and somebody blew the whistle every hour that you had to get out of the pool.

"Now when anybody from Philadelphia comes to swim here, I blow the whistle every hour!"

* * * *

THE WEEKEND WINDUP... A famed H'wood producer ordered a screen test for the girl who threw the dice for him at Monte Carlo, helped him win $80,000. . . . A major film company told its staff not to talk to the star of its biggest film without first getting her husband's permission.

Maximilian Schell rejected Darryl Zanuck's request to play a Nazi officer in "The Longest Day"; he doesn't want to play German heavies any more. . . . "The Reprieve" will be Ben Gazzara's fifth film—but the first made in H'wood. (The others were done in N. Y.) . . . Mrs. Carl O'Sugrue, wife of the Irish Airlines liaison man in N. Connors to Make Own TV Survey

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If a bonafide movie and TV star rings your doorbell anytime after Sept. 20, don't be startled—it's for real.

Chuck Connors, the one-time Brooklyn Dodgers first baseman, has just finished making the movie "Geronimo" in Mexico and is about ready to start on his 1961-62 season as TV's "The Rifleman."

"I don't go for all these polls so I'm going to conduct my own survey of what's wrong and what's needed in television."

On Sept. 20, Chuck will be in Minneapolis.

* * * *

"I'M JUST GOING to ring doorbells. I have a set of questions that can be answered 'yes' or 'no' on the doorstep but if folks want to invite me in for a spot of tea—or something stronger—I'm willing."

After Minneapolis, Connors will head for eight other cities.

They are Detroit, Sept. 21; Chicago, Sept. 22-24; St. Louis, Sept. 25; Cincinnati, Sept. 26; Cleveland, Sept. 27; Pittsburgh, Sept. 28; Washington, Sept. 29, and New York City Oct. 2-6.

"I'm going to cover all sorts of neighborhoods from high society down through other economic levels," says the lanky actor.

* * * *

"I HOPE PEOPLE will recognize me. If not, I'll produce credentials like the gas meter reader.

"I've read so many expert opinions on television and the movies that I figure the only way to find out what really gives is to ask the viewers themselves.

"I want to find out what people like in entertainment. I think in the informality of their own living rooms we can sit down and get the facts."

It's grass roots from Hollywood.

AFTER 16 YEARS

Alice Faye, 46, Back in Movies

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Alice Faye, America's singing sweetheart of the movies in the late 1930s and early 1940s, is returning to films after a 16-year layoff—"before I fall completely apart."

She's in no such danger. She's 46, still blonde and looked like a million at 20th Century-Fox Studios, where she's making her comeback as Pat Boone's mother in the musical picture "State Fair."

There was nostalgia in the air as waitresses, studio policemen and oldtime executives came over to greet her at her lunch table in a remote corner of 20th's commissary—but hardly a young star there recognized her or said hello.

* * * *

"I FEEL LIKE a tourist," she said, wistfully. "I guess if I could see Ty (the late Tyrone Power) or Don Ameche walk in, I'd feel better."

Almost as if reading her mind, 20th announced shortly afterward that oldtimer Ameche also had been signed for the movie—to play her husband.

Power and Ameche were two of her top leading men in the glorious Hollywood era when she starred in such period movies as "In Old Chicago," "Little Old New York," "Tin Pan Alley," "Lillian Russell," "Rose of Washington Square" and "Hello, Frisco, Hello."

* * * *

ACROSS THE NATION, her name was identified with such songs as "You'll Never Know," "Alexander's RagtimeBand" and "Rose of Washington Square." Song writers Cole Porter, George Gershwin and Irving Berlin said they'd rather have her introduce their tunes than anyone else.

But for most of the last 16 years, the New York-born star has been a housewife to her husband, ex-bandleader Phil Harris, and their two daughters in Palm Springs, Calif.

Why, then, is she returning?

* * * *

"IT SEEMED the right time," Miss Faye said in the same deep voice that put over her songs. "I never missed movies. But now Phil is quite a hunter, and he's in and out a lot. My oldest daughter is 19 and married, and the young one is at the University of Arizona. So there I was all alone for spells.

"Then Charlie Brackett, the producer, called. He was so persistent—he called three and four times a day for four days. I liked the script and told Phil, and he said I was crazy not to take it. So I said yes, and the next morning I woke up screaming, saying, 'What have I done?'" She laughed. "It's really thrilling, I must admit. Maybe my fans will like it. I've already got fan letters again. It's nice to be remembered.

"The money was nice too—and I guess I was flattered."

* * * *

THE WARM, witty, relaxed actress, who will sing again in "State aFir"—which also features Bobby Darin and Ann-Margaret—has been married to Harris for 20 years. And she admits she's surprised their marriage has lasted.

"So's everybody else," she smiled. "They didn't think we'd make it. But I'll tell you how we did—and most women will probably hit me over the head for this: I never say no when Phil wants to go hunting or fishing. I'll admit sometimes the trips are long, and my girl friends say I'm crazy. But I know guys like to be alone sometimes. They don't want their wives around.

"One woman can ruin fun for a bunch of guys. I tell my girl friends, 'do you want a guy hanging around with a long puss?' Phil fishes a lot with Bing Crosby, and I think privacy means much to him. I'll credit this attitude with 70 per cent of our marriage. Because I'm the same as Phil."

BACK ON SCREEN

Alice Faye, America's sweetheart of the 30's, shown here with husband Phil Harris, is scheduled to return to the screen after a 16-year layoff. She will appear as Pat Boone's mother in the musical film "State Fair."

U. S. THEATER

No Broadway Monopoly

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Actress Nan Martin recently made a 9,000-mile trip for the Ford Foundation and found, she says, that the theater is no more a Broadway monopoly.

Nan says the Foundation is going to give some money to the theater and picked her, among others, to survey drama in the United States.

Nan, who left nearby Santa Monica to take a bus ride to New York and landed there with only $1.59, says that aspiring players can get breaks nearer home now.

She believes that before long the theater in the United States will be national.

2 Killed, 81 Hurt in Oil Blast

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (UPI)—A blistering explosion crumpled a 100-foot oil well Saturday, killing at least two men and injuring 81 roughnecks who were trying to cap it.

A hospital at nearby Monahans, Tex., said Hubert Whitfield of Monahans and Pat York of Fort Stockton were dead on arrival. The two victims were working directly under the oil well when it exploded.

Officials said the well was still burning more than eight hours after the blast.

At least 10 men were listed in critical condition. Fifteen were taken to a hospital at Monahans, 25 were taken to Pecos and 41 were admitted to a hospital at Fort Stockton.

* * * *

MOBIL OIL CO. owned the well. A spokesman said roughnecks struck a gas pocket Wednesday while drilling for oil. More than 40,000 sacks of cementing mud had been used prior to the blast in efforts to cap the gas flow.

The well blew with such force that it crumpled the large rig, lifted it off the ground and toppled it. The injured men were working directly around the well when it blew up.

Several storage tanks filled with salt water and brine near the oil well also blew up from the intense heat. An official at the scene said a 3,000-gallon butane tank also exploded.

L.B. PROFESSIONAL GROUP

Public Views New Medical Building

Today marks the grand opening of the newest medical facility in the Long Beach area, the Long Beach Professional Group Building at 3590 Elm Ave. A special invitation to the public to view the new facility has been extended for the hours of 12 to 5 p.m. today.

Financed and constructed by the Long Beach Professional Group, this new facility will serve as the headquarters for the local group. Receiving a charter from the State of California in 1937, the Long Beach Professional Group was organized for the purpose of developing an association of specialists who could provide the maximum in complete medical service to the public.

Originally consisting of 10 doctors, the Group opened offices in the top floor of the Times Building in downtown Long Beach. They remained at this location for 14 years and then expanded their services by acquiring facilities in the Prudential Building, 4320 Atlantic Ave. This location has served as their headquarters for the past 10 years.

* * * *

NOW ANOTHER milestone in the development of the Long Beach Professional Group has been reached with the opening of this new building. Consisting of 17 doctors, a new pharmacy (the Apothecary Shop), and a modern X-ray and clinical laboratory, the Long Beach Professional Group, will continue to provide in one central location, complete medical service for the community.

This modern medical facility, houses 12 medical suites with separate units for the new pharmacy, X-ray and clinical laboratory.

Specialty services available in the 15,000-square-foot, all-electric Medallion building include General Medicine; Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Surgery, Gynecology; Obstetrics, Heart Diseases; Surgery of the Eye; Anesthesia; Urology; Internal Medicine; Rectal Diseases; Psychiatry; and Clinical Psychology.

* * * *

CONSTRUCTED in a one-story modern design, the building features suspended ceilings with alternating projecting panels. The facade of the structure is of Norman brick with a stuccoed decorative screen wall protecting a semi-covered paved area which can be used for outdoor waiting.

Although "L" shaped, it is actually four separate structures connected by a covered parapet with landscaping beneath. Centrally located, the building is easily accessible by all local transportation services. Free parking facilities adjoin individual doctor's suites and four separate entrances to the main structure are provided for patient's convenience. Restful harmony is primary in both the external and internal decor. The quality of the landscaping and interior furnishings creates an atmosphere of restfulness.

Exchange Club Sets Dance Exhibition

A varied dance program will be featured at the "Ladies Day" luncheon meeting of the Exchange Club Wednesday in the Lafayette Hotel.

An exhibition of dances will be presented by couples from Call's and Arthur Murray's Dance studios.

NEW MEDICAL BUILDING

The new Long Beach Professional Group Building at 3590 Elm Ave. opens today for public inspection. Open house tours have been set from noon through 5 p. m.

Machines Boost Child Injury Risk

(Prepared in collaboration with George X. Trimble, M.D., medical education director, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER

Increasing mechanization of the environment has boosted the risk of severe injury to children, notes a doctor reporting in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Dr. George T. Aitken, Grand Rapids, Mich., of the Michigan Crippled Children Commission, studied the records of 203 amputations among children in a Michigan clinic during the past 12 years. These amputations, he says, were due solely to injury and not to illness or birth defects.

Average age of children undergoing amputations, from all injury causes, was 10 years. Youngest: one month. Oldest: 20 years. Of the 203 cases, 165 were boys.

He classes the amputations according to seven categories of injury.

1. Farm tools and power tools. Fifty-three cases. Power lawn mowers often were the equipment responsible for injury. Average age of these victims: 11 years.

2. Gunshots and explosions. Fifty cases. Explosives involved were dynamite caps, gun shells, firecrackers, homemade bombs, home chemistry sets, homemade rocket fuel. Average age of victims: 11.

3. Vehicular. Forty-one cases. Vehicles included automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles, horses. Pedestrian accidents included in this category. Average age of victims: 13.

4. Railroad. Twenty-eight cases. Only one of the victims was a girl, suggesting that boys are much more apt to play around trains than girls are. Average age: 10.

5. Household. Sixteen cases. Injuries included: 7, wringer; 2, falls through glass door panes; 3, meat grinder. Average age: 4.

6. Childhood recreation. Eight cases. Four of the injuries were from falls. Average age: 12.

7. Thermal. Seven cases. Burns from house fires, scalding water, high-voltage wires. Average age: 3.

ANIMAL HOSPITALS may be reservoirs for pus-forming staph germs that resist antibiotics.

In a recent school year at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, a high percentage of senior students suffered from skin infections caused by staphylococcus bacteria.

A survey showed that 50 per cent of these seniors were carriers of a strain of staph that wouldn't respond to drugs.

Many hospitalized animals also were found to carry the staph germ, says the report in the Journal of Infectious Diseases.

A long-term study into the effects of phenylketonuria, a disease that can lead to mental retardation, is planned by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. . . . First large clinical trial of brace to begin this month.

County Road Center Lines to Be Yellow

Double center lines on county roads will be repainted from white to yellow within the next year, according to Supervisor Burton W. Chace, chairman of the Board of Supervisor's road committee.

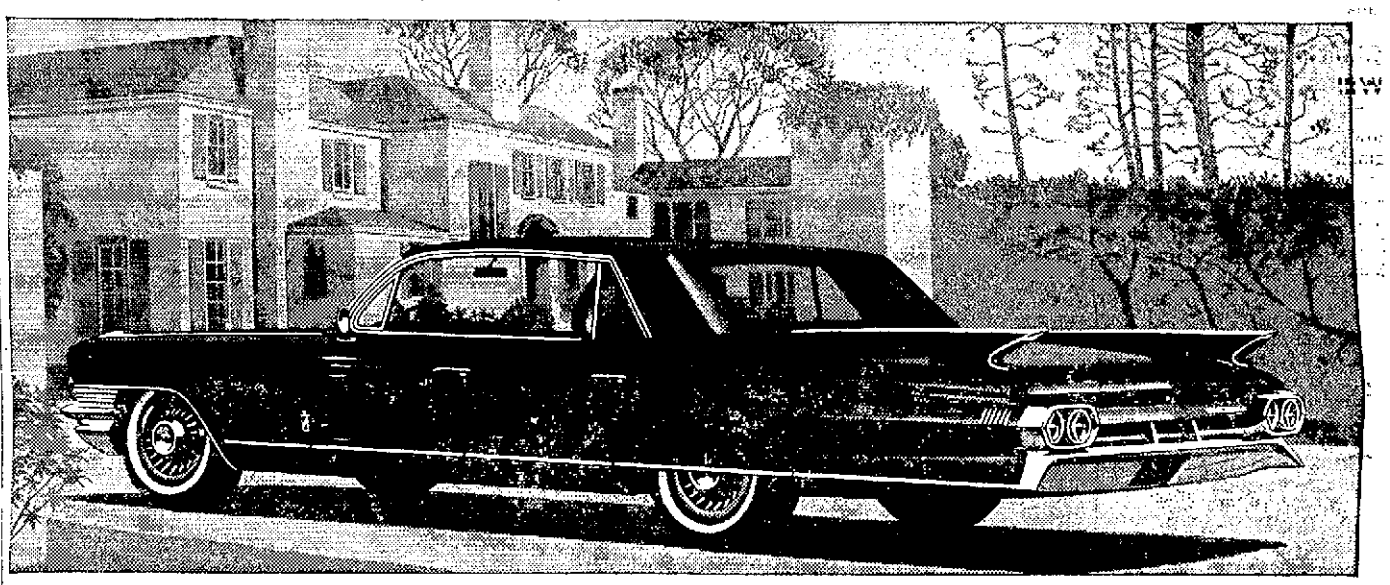

The repainting will be done to conform with a standard recently adopted by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads in the interest of uniformity.

Chace said county roads will be repainted gradually as the existing white stripes require it.

The repainting will be confined to double stripes over which it is illegal to pass, Chace said. White will remain the color of single stripes dividing lanes of travel in the same direction.

GOVERNOR REMEMBERS

Note Lifts Boy's Morale

Last August 17, Rawland J. Frecar, 3708 Maine Ave., wrote Gov. Edmund Brown asking the state's chief executive officer if he could keep up the morale of his 13-year-old son by sending him a get-well message.

The boy, John, broke his leg August 10 while at the beach.

"As you can see," Frecar wrote Gov. Brown, "this would be hard for any 13-year-old boy. When he is released, he will have to spend another several months in a body cast."

* * * *

JOHN WAS RELEASED from Memorial Hospital last Tuesday.

And Gov. Brown wrote him:

"I know it is tough for a 13-year-old to be tied down that way, particularly with school starting and the good autumn weekends coming up . . .

"I would like to suggest just one silver lining that may turn up in your temporary cloud: It sounds like a great chance to do a lot of reading.

"Let me tell you that you will not get many such opportunities when you have grown up and moved out into the busy world of today—particularly if you ever decide to run for governor.

". . . Best wishes for a speedy recovery."

Anaheim Talk On Shelters

Slit trenches and underground bunkers saved many troops in past wars—and can save many civilians in any future holocaust, a Marine Corps League speaker told an audience here.

H. W. (Russ) Ruskin of Anaheim, public information officer for the California department of the Marine Corps League, advised householders to "improvise to survive" if they can't afford expensive fallout shelters.

* * * *

THIS TALK by that title was at Chrysler Auditorium to a near-capacity crowd. The meeting was arranged after a prior session brought a standing-room-only crowd to hear about survival shortcuts.

Mayor A. J. Schutte of Anaheim, opening the session, warned against panic. He conceded that fallout shelters are expensive, beyond the reach of most people financially. In any shooting war and, in the confusion which would follow, many might not reach their own shelters, he said.

Ruskin's message stressed ways to improvise.

* * * *

A HASTILY-DUG SLIT trench can save a life in a blast, and so can more-elaborate underground bunkers, Ruskin contended. Neither is expensive except in labor.

Such protection can easily be provided in anyone's back yard, Ruskin said.

He advised using the crawl hole under houses for more certain protection, after a minimum of labor to wall up a small room where foods and water could be stored. Such a project, he said, would substitute for backyard fallout shelters costing into the thousands of dollars.

Air Patrol Officers End Meet

Section heads of the Wing discussed cadet activities, civil defense and personnel situations, topics expected to be aired at the all-Wing conference scheduled Oct. 6-8 at Pasadena.

Among those attending the local conference were Deputy Wing Commander Lt. Col. Paul Greene of West Los Angeles; Lt. Col. Paul Gooder, commander of the Southern Sector; and Lt. Col. Robert T. Aughton, commander of Long Beach Group 7.

Maris Breathes Hotter Toward Goal With 56th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Roger Maris slammed his 56th home run, which enabled him and Mickey Mantle to break a Babe Ruth-Lou Gehrig homer record, and then the Yankees staged a four-run rally in the ninth inning Saturday to beat Cleveland, 8-7, for their 10th victory in a row.

Maris' homer, a 400-foot drive into the right-centerfield bleachers with the bases empty in the seventh, was the 108th he and Mantle have hit together this year, surpassing the Ruth-Gehrig total of 107 in 1927 which was the record for homers by two teammates in one season.

John Blanchard hit his 19th homer and Elston Howard his 17th for the Yankees, but the big runs were the four scored in the ninth inning, with the winning tally crossing the plate on Bill Skowron's sacrifice fly.

DODGERS ARE SCRAMBLING

Neal Goat Again as FIVE Errors Hand Giants Win

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I. P-T Staff Writer)

SAN FRANCISCO — Saturday was a holiday in the state of California and in the city of Cincinnati. California observed the 111th anniversary of its admission to the Union and Cincinnati, only slightly prematurely, celebrated Admission Day to the World Series.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, the San Francisco Giants had a picnic and the Dodgers were left holding the basket.

To be more precise, the Dodgers were basket cases. They committed five errors, three in the eighth inning handing the Giants a 9-6 victory and the Reds a three-game lead.

If the Dodgers are not dead, they are much in need of a resuscitator squad. With 20 games remaining for the Dodgers and only 14 for Cincinnati, the Reds' magic number has been reduced to 15. And if the Dodgers are to find the magic now, they will have to find Aladdin's Lamp.

True, the Reds and Dodgers still are even in the loss column. Cincinnati, however, has won six more games that the Dodgers have yet to play. It means simply that the Dodgers must win six games while the Reds are idle and must match them win-for-win after that in order to tie.

The Dodger order is a large one, comparable to requesting Flaming Duck and Baked Alaska at Ron Fairly's Dugout.

The story of Saturday's Dodger defeat is the third tragic chapter added to the biography of Charlie Neal during the last three weeks.

With the Dodgers leading 5-4, manager Walter Alston summoned Neal for defensive purposes at second base to start the seventh inning. Jim Gilliam moved to third base and Daryl Spencer moved to the clubhouse.

A two-run homer by Willie Mays and a solo by Wally Moon created a 6-6 tie when Neal chased his first chance with one out in the eighth inning. Felipe Alou's grounder was like most grounders, routine. But Neal booted the ball and his act proved to be contagious.

Before the inning was over, Maury Wills was guilty of two errors and the deciding runs off reliever Ron Perranoski were unearned.

Rookie Ernie Bowman tripled after Neal's error, the windblown ball barely eluding the outstretched glove of center fielder Duke Snider. Bowman scored as Wills muffed winner Dick Lemay's double play grounder and Lemay was given a second life when Wills dropped Neal's peg to second on a grounder by Joe Amalfitano.

* * * *

THROUGH NO fault of his, Perranoski was dismissed and Mays added a coup de grace single off Dick Farrell.

Neal, who only two seasons back was regarded the best second baseman in the league, also erred in the final innings and cost the Dodgers two games at St. Louis and Cincinnati during the last and disastrous trip.

Before the Dodgers staged their juggling act, Giants first baseman Willie McCovey had put the visitors back in the game with a three-base and three-run error in the sixth inning.

McCovey, who couldn't play first base in the Long Beach Municipal Band, let Ron

AFTER ANOTHER BIG WIN . . .

Reds Set to Wave Flag

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds moved into a three-game lead in the National League Saturday as Frank Robinson singled home the winning run in the 12th inning for a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Robinson, who had two hits in Friday night's Cincinnati victory over St. Louis, had batted only .185 in eight games before that. His game-winning blow Saturday was his only hit in five official times at bat.

The single came after reliever Al Cicotte had yielded a double to Leo Cardenas and then walked Vada Pinson after fanning Bill Henry and Eddie Kasko.

The pitching credit went to reliever Bill Henry (2-1).

The 3 hour and 47 minute game saw Reds' manager Fred Hutchinson use every player on his roster, except some of the pitchers. Ken Johnson was the starter.

Johnson might have had the game won in the regulation nine innings except for shoddy Redleg play in the seventh. The Cards, aided by a pop fly double that never even reached the pitching mound, moved into a 3-2 lead.

The Reds had tied it in their half on two walks and a sacrifice fly by Kasko.

In sweeping the bench clean, Hutchinson even called on sore-armed catcher Darrell Johnson after the starting receiver, John Edwards, pulled an achilles tendon and Jerry Zimmerman, who relieved him, went out for a pinch runner.

The Reds got their first two runs in the fourth with Johnson doing the honors with a single to center. It came after two walks and a single had filled the bases.

Except for Carl Sawatski's home run in the fifth, the Cards didn't threaten Johnson seriously until the seventh.

T'NT Boys Club Chisox, 6-2, After Rigney Signs for '62

By ROSS NEWHAN

Bill Rigney, manager of that group of castoffs who would be lucky to even finish in the American League race, was re-hired for the 1962 season Saturday.

When he signed the one-year contract estimated at $30,000, Rigney's team was still in the American League race. In fact, they resided in seventh place, ahead of two long-established teams and their expansionist cousins, the Washington Senators.

General manager Fred Haney was high in praise as he announced the signing. "Bill has handled a most difficult task very well," said Haney. "All of the credit for the development of our youngsters and the club's fine showing this season is a tribute to his leadership."

Rigney, who said he preferred the one-year pact, was elated. "Naturally, I am very happy to be back. My association with Fred and the owners has been wonderful. I hope that we are able to do as much next year as we've accomplished this season."

Rigney agreed that Haney's bartering for such promising future stars as Lee Thomas and George Thomas was the key development of the year and would make the Angels a pennant contender long before anticipated.

* * * *

IN FACT, it was the T'NT duo which powered the Angels past the Chicago White Sox Saturday night, snapping a four-game losing streak and handing the Pale Hose only their fourth defeat in their last 18 games, 6-2.

Lee Thomas jolted a solo homer, his 21st, in the fourth inning, and George Thomas crashed a mighty grand slam, his 11th homer and first slam, in the fifth to keep intact the Angels' one-game seventh place advantage over Minnesota.

Following this afternoon's game when Jack Spring (1-0) will attempt to halt Juan Pizarro's (13-5) bid for his seventh straight win, the Angels will be off to Minnesota where they open a key four-game series with the Twins Monday night.

While T 'N T were supplying the explosives, Eli Grba (9-11) was pitching his fourth straight win and seventh complete game. The ex-Yankee retired 10 straight men before the Sox got their first hit in the fourth and did not allow a run until the sixth when two infield hits and a walk loaded the bases and the run crossed on an error and double play. Unperturbed, Grba retired 11 of the final 12 batters in order.

Rookie Joe Horlen (1-1) opened for Chicago and had allowed only one hit until Lee Thomas, who is 12 for 19 in the Angels' last four games, broke the scoreless deadlock with his smash over the right-field wall.

Singles by Rocky Bridges and Joe Koppe sandwiched around a walk made it 2-0 in

FULLBACK SIGNED BY RAMS

ST. PAUL, Minn. — The Rams Saturday announced the signing of Frank Williams, a 6-1, 220-pound fullback.

Williams was released recently from Chino State Institute, where he served three years for "breaking and entering." He played at Pepperdine College in 1954 and in the Army for four years as well as on the Chino team. He worked out with the Rams last week and was very impressive.

The signing of Williams, 28, had the complete backing of the Ram owners, general manager Elroy Hirsch and coach Bob Waterfield. He will play today against the Minnesota Vikings.

FINAL EXHIBITION

Rams Favored by 13 Over Vikings

By JERRY WYNN
(I. P-T Staff Writer)

ST. PAUL, Minn.—This is a momentous day in Minnesota. Professional football is returning to the land of the once-storied pro Duluth Eskimos, the home of the immortal Bronko Nagurski and the spawning grounds of a host of mighty University of Minnesota teams.

Into this treasure-camp of football lore today enter the new Minnesota Vikings for their first appearance at home, the sprawling twin cities of St. Paul-Minneapolis. And into this historic scene—for today only—come the villians, those hotshots from Hollywood, the Rams.

* * * *

A NEAR-CAPACITY crowd of 35,000 is expected at Metropolitan Stadium to watch the Vikings battle the Rams and welcome wildly its infant National Football League offspring. The game is the last pre-season encounter for both teams.

The Rams are rated 13-point favorites, a somewhat surprising edge in view of their shoddy play the last two weeks and Minnesota coach Norm Van Brocklin's repeated statements this week of his desire to whip his old teammates. And to listen to the Dutchman, Viking general manager Bert Rose and the quarterbacks on the streets, this pampered baby of theirs really is expected to tear down its crib at an early age.

As one cab driver told me, "the people here have been brought up on winning Minnesota football teams. They expect them. They expect the Vikings to be a winner quickly."

The populace of the Twin Cities (nearly one million) and fans throughout the state have supported the franchise splendidly. There have been 27,474 season tickets sold. Compare that with the 5,000 season tickets reported by the Dallas Cowboys in their first year in 1960 or the 10,000 figure the Chargers say they've sold in San Diego or even the 28,468 total of the Rams.

There are "On Vikings" signs throughout the cities, and the newspapers have put out special Viking editions today. Van Brocklin is said to have made more speeches

SILVESTER CRASHES RECORD

Army Lt. Jay Silvester unleashed the longest record discus throw of all-time—210 feet, 2½ inches—Saturday to better the world record by almost 14 feet.

Silvester has pending a bid for a world record based on his throw of 199 feet, 2½ inches made in Brussels, Belgium, on Aug. 21. But the recognized mark remains a throw of 196 feet, 6½ inches set in 1959 by Edmund Piatkowski of Poland and equaled last year by Rink Babka, the former SC star.

Babka was second with a throw of 196-9½, also bettering the recognized mark, with Bob Humphreys of Long Beach third at 192 feet.

Silvester, who is stationed at Fort Ord, had a brilliant series. His throws, in order, were 197-7, 193-6½, 210-2½, 187-6½, 197-9½ and 199-8.

The meet was held at East Los Angeles JC.

Meet officials said the throw by the 24-year-old Army officer from Tremonton, Utah, would be submitted for international recognition. However, a survey of the discus area must be made.

The record throw was made with a discus presented to Silvester after the United States-Soviet track meet in Moscow this summer.

"Naturally, I'm very happy," Silvester said. "I didn't expect to throw that far at this time, although I have always felt that 210 feet was possible."

Only two other men have surpassed 200 feet, but the throws were illegal on each occasion.

Babka once threw 202 feet, but the discus landed in a ditch and could not be measured properly, while Olympic champion Al Oerter threw 205 in a near-cyclone.

AAWU Future: Expansion Or Breakup?

Expansion OR breakup of the AAWU, ironically, was the most significant point gained by writers who spent the last five days touring campuses of the five conference members.

"Ironically" is a most suitable word since the AAWU staged the junket in order to better acquaint newsmen with its universities. It was the first move by college football on the West Coast to combat the pros.

However, smack in the middle of the tour — at Stanford — the writers suddenly were bombed with the knowledge that the AAWU was engulfed with a family squabble that dwarfed the heralded skirmishes between the five Ram owners.

The conference is divided 3-2 right now on the matter of expansion. If the expansion problem is not resolved, this writer is certain the AAWU will explode into little pieces.

The 3-2 division is most interesting. Apparently SC, Stanford and Washington are united in favor of expansion to eight teams (Washington State, Oregon and Oregon State would be the additions). Cal and UCLA—undoubtedly still remembering the bitter days when the old PCC busted up—are strongly opposed to bringing in the three Northwest schools.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

One of Stanford's highest officials told the touring writers that "we'll pull Stanford out of the AAWU tomorrow if the league doesn't stop its fighting and settle the problem of expansion."

The official also said a five-team circuit was a "disgrace" and the AAWU actually could have been an eight-club conference from its inception "if one or two state universities had been big enough to overlook past petty grievances."

Stanford's surprising hatred of Cal and UCLA showed up all over the Palo Alto campus. School authorities, almost to a man, spat out the word "California" as if it was a dirty word.

Only solution to the AAWU problem is for the five university presidents to sit down and calmly try to reach an agreement. If expansion was agreed upon, it could not be effective until 1968 because some schedules are completed until that year.

I'M IN FAVOR OF EXPANSION because an eight-team league certainly is more exciting than one of five clubs. The argument that the three Northwest outsiders are too weak to compete with present AAWU teams holds no water because all three now seem stronger than Cal and Stanford, and equal to the Trojans.

The tour, headed by conference boss Tom Hamilton, was a dandy and something that the colleges should have done years ago to reacquaint sports writers with the schools. The pros took such a strong grip on the public that sports editors were forced to give more space to the Rams, Dodgers and Angels.

If the AAWU continues its realistic approach to one problem (the pros) and calmly resolves its other (expansion), it can't miss being the greatest college football league in the nation. (And I offer no apologies to the Big 10. For reference, please check the past two Rose Bowl scores.)

WILLIE BROWN DAY was staged at SC Friday — and it could not have come at a more opportune time. Whether he knew it or not, the Poly High graduate was being showcased for curious Seattle and San Francisco newsmen.

Willie had been a topic of discussion throughout our stops at Seattle, Berkeley and Palo Alto. Southern Californians had been too close to the SC picture to realize that the youngster from Long Beach had received sensational publicity up-and-down the coast.

Visiting writers were impressed with Willie during an interview period ("he sure showed me something with his poise and sharpness in the question-and-answer session," said one writer) and during a scrimmage (he ran 56 yards to score the first time he touched the ball).

The writers agreed Brown was the most exciting player they had seen on the tour, second honors going to Washington's Charlie Mitchell.

For a youngster yet to play in a varsity game, Willie Brown has done a magnificent job lassoing newspaper space usually reserved for Jon Arnett or two-year varsity letter-winners.

JIM OWENS' FOOTBALL DORM at Washington has caused considerable comment within other Big 5 institutions.

The other four schools are against Owens' practice of herding together his team for the entire football season because "this togetherness attitude is bad for a boy who should be mixing with fraternity mates, and girls, and engaging in other aspects of college life."

Yet, I didn't encounter one Husky who objected to this football regimentation. In fact, I think the players appreciate the lack of confusion which they'd encounter during usual campus life.

Owens' "togetherness" program boasts another item on the merit side: It produces winning football teams!

Darlene Meets Haydon in National Net Finals

The 25-year-old Miss Hard stormed the net to oust fifth-seeded Margaret Smith, two-time Australian champion, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Emerson, 24-year-old Australian champion, set up the fifth all-Aussie men's final in the last six years by beating unranked Rafael Osuna of Mexico in a 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 5-7, 9-7 marathon.

And Mulloy, the 48-year-old veteran who was a ranking player for 16 years, successfully defended the senior title with a 7-5, 6-1 triumph over Chauncey Steele, Jr., Cambridge, Mass., hotel owner.

Top-seeded Rod Laver, the southpaw Wimbledon champion, completed the all Australian men's final while England's seventh-Seeded Ann Haydon sprang an upset for the right to meet Miss Hard in today's women's windup. Laver took a service duel from England's fourth-ranked Mike Sangster, 13-11, 7-5, 6-4, while Miss Haydon knocked off her countrywoman, second seeded Wimbledon champion, Angela Mortimer, in a base line battle, 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Hard experienced difficulty with her fifth-seeded Australian rival. The 19-year-old Miss Smith, a tall, statuesque brunette who also is a part-time weightlifter, lost the opener on her own errors and took the second set by keeping Miss Hard away from the net. But in the deciding set, Miss Hard stepped up the pace and fought her way to the net for victory.

Channel 4, 2:30 p.m.

The final set was a weird one, with seven of the games going against service. Darlene three times lost her delivery without getting a point but she managed to hold twice. That was the determining factor.

The rangy, dark-haired Emerson found his task eased in the early stages by the fact that Osuna, the unseeded Mexican giant killer, beat himself in the first two sets with constantly-netted volleys.

The fourth set was a tense affair in which the 22-year-old Osuna, who has been tutored by pro king Pancho Gonzales, beat off three match points in the 10th game on Emerson's over-eager netted volleys. Fired by this break, the swarthy Osuna broke Emerson's service, again on the Aussie's netted volleys, and then held his own service to square the match at two sets each.

Osuna made a gallant try of it in the final set. He lost his opening service on a netted volley and a double fault but then broke back in the fifth game with two passing shots. They fought even until the 16th game when, with Emerson leading, 8-7, the Aussie finally cracked through with three blinding placements that gave him a love-40 lead. Osuna then netted a volley and it was all over.

EAGLES SELL REICHOW TO WASHINGTON

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles sold end-quarterback Jerry Reichow to the Washington Redskins Saturday.

The 'Skins are expected to use him in a trade with the Minnesota Vikings.

Reichow and the Eagles have been at odds over whether he should play end or quarterback, where he starred for the University of Iowa. Reichow, 27 years old and 6-2, 215 pounds, had the same problem with the Detroit Lions, resulting in his being traded to the Eagles last year. Both clubs used him at end.

Killebrew Belts 41st

KANSAS CITY, (AP) — Harmon Killebrew hit his 41st home run Saturday and gave the Minnesota Twins a 5-4 victory over Kansas City.

Killebrew's clout came off relief pitcher Ed Rakow (2-8) in the seventh inning with the score tied 4-4. Earl Battey's two-run homer off starter Bob Shaw in the seventh had tied the score.

Bill Pleis (4-2), who came on to pitch after starter Al Schroll was lifted for a pinch hitter, was the winner.

Bobble by Face Nips Bucs

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — An error by reliefer Elroy Face and Joe Torre's single allowed the Milwaukee Braves to push two runs across in the eighth for a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

Trailing 3-2, Hank Aaron opened the inning with a double. He went to third on Frank Thomas' sacrifice bunt, which Face bobbled, permitting Thomas to go to second and Aaron to score. Torre then punched the ball into right field, scoring Thomas.

Don Nottebart, second Milwaukee pitcher, got the victory—his sixth of the year. Face, third Pittsburgh pitchern, was charged with his eighth loss.

Pittsburgh had gone ahead 3-1 in the sixth on Dick Stuart's 26th homer of the season with the bases empty. The Braves narrowed this to 3-2 in the seventh when starter Earl Francis walked Felix Mantilla, and Roy McMillan followed with a single.

Little Bobby Schantz came in to pitch and pinch batter Al Spangler singled to load the bases. Lee Maye forced Mantilla at home, but Eddie Mathews' sacrifice fly scored McMillan.

DAVIS CUP HOPES GROW DIMMER

Extend Ralston's Suspension

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI) — The U. S. Lawn Tennis Assn., claiming "50-1" popular support for the action, extended young Dennis Ralston's suspension for the rest of the year Saturday, dealing U. S. Davis Cup hopes a heavy blow.

Ralston, 19, of Bakersfield, Calif., is co-holder of the national doubles championship and had been counted on for doubles play in future Davis Cup series this year.

But the U. S. L. T. A. announced Saturday that its executive committee, in a meeting that ended "last midnight," decided to maintain for the rest of 1961 the suspension handed Ralston on Aug. 29 for profanity and racquet-hanging in the U. S.-Mexico Davis Cup series in Cleveland.

George Barnes, president of the U.S. L.T.A., said the decision was "virtually unanimous" with "only two" members of the executive committee dissenting.

In Bakersfield, Ralston said he will keep practicing and will "return to play after the suspension." He added, "I've still got hopes of a big win for a springboard into the pro ranks."

Barnes said the U.S.L.T.A. had received "hundreds" of letters from private citizens on the Ralston case and that "public reaction was 50 to 1 against Ralston."

"He sent us a very nice letter of apology, promising never to be a bad boy again," said Barnes. "But it was the same kind of letter we received when he was placed on probation last February."

Barnes was referring to a probation imposed on Ralston because of his behavior during the U. S.-Australian Davis challenge round last December in Australia.

Saturday's action was seen in some quarters as the final, perhaps fatal, blow to a U. S. Davis Cup team already rated by non-playing captain Dave Freed as "our worst in many years."

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Bud Zipfel drove in four runs with two triples to help the Washington Senators snap a 10-game losing streak by defeating the Baltimore Orioles, 6-2, Saturday night.

The Senators' victory, only their second in their last 26 games, also halted the Orioles' winning streak at seven.

Bennie Daniels went all the way for his ninth win against 10 losses, scattering seven hits.

BENNIE DANIELS
Picks Up Ninth Win

Eight-Game Tiger Streak Halted, 3-1

BOSTON (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers snapped an eight-game losing streak Saturday by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 3-1, at Fenway Park.

Although Detroit led most of the way it took a sterling relief performance by Terry Fox, who came in for Ron Kline in the eighth, and a diving catch by rookie shortstop Dick McAuliffe to save the game for the fading Tigers.

Kline, who had retired 14 men in a row, was replaced when he allowed a walk and a single in the eighth. Fox managed to pitch his way out of that jam.

But in the ninth, Carl Yastrzemski opened with a double for the Red Sox and Frank Malzone smashed a liner between shortstop McAuliffe and second base. The rookie lunged and made a fine catch to erase Yastrzemski. Jackie Jensen then walked, Pete Runnels flied to center but Pumpsie Green grounded to second to end the game.

Losing pitcher was Ike Delock, who hasn't been able to win since Aug. 2. The Tigers drove Delock out of the box in the fourth and Bill Muffett replaced him.

Demeter's Three-Run Poke Paces Phil Win

CHICAGO (AP)—Don Demeter's three-run homer in the sixth inning helped power the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs and freshman left-hander Jackie Curtis Saturday.

DEMETER

It was Demeter's 17th homer of the season and fifth off Chicago pitching. Curtis, a 10-game winner who suffered his 11th loss, has served three of these home run pitches.

Jim Owens turned his 14th start into a fourth victory as he went nine innings for the second time this season. He limited the Cubs to five hits. Owens has lost nine.

After two singles and catcher Clay Dalrymple's sacrifice fly triggered the first Philly run in the fifth, Ken Walters stroked a leadoff double and took third on Charlie Smith's single ahead of Demeter's drive into the left field bleachers.

OLD PCC CLUBS ON SC GRID SCHEDULE

The University of Southern California announced Saturday it will play Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State in seven football games between 1965 and 1968.

The announcement immediately triggered speculation about whether the old Pacific Coast Conference might make a comeback. But Trojan officials said the scheduling merely indicates they are again on friendly terms with these schools.

The Trojans' 1967 schedule will include games with every member of the old PCC except Idaho — which SC did not play even within the PCC.

Games were booked with Oregon State each year from 1965 to 1968. Oregon was booked for 1967 and 1968, and Washington State for 1967.

Though SC decried the small attendance these teams attracted when they used to play in Los Angeles, four of the seven games were booked for the Coliseum.

Trojan athletic director Jess Hill also announced a 1966 and 1968 home-and-home series with Miami of Florida.

Once Over Lightly

UCLA Early Choice, but Beware of Huskies

The nation's college football teams are poised for the opening of what most observers feel will be the most interesting and eventful season in many years.

Even the professionals are enthused about the '61 season because it promises to be a vintage year for talent . . . finest, in fact, in the past five or six years.

While the main action will not get under way until Sept 23, the season is ushered in Saturday with a lively TV offering featuring Miami University and Pittsburgh.

DAVE LEWIS
Four Losses for Troy

The season will be capped by eight major bowl games and, as usual, the bulk of these berths will be filled by teams from the Southeastern and Southwest Conferences. They captured seven of the 16 bids last season and could even better that figure this trip.

Following is a brief rundown of the various races as drawn from a consensus of pre-season picks published by magazines, wire services, etc., plus the early Minneapolis line, which is issued by the group which figures the weekly odds you see throughout the season:

AAWU (Big Five)—Consensus pick is UCLA, with SC next. Minneapolis line, though, warns that Washington will be tougher than generally rated. Minneapolis expects the Bruins to go through the conference schedule unbeaten, lose at least two outside games to spoil chances for national title; sees at least four losses for Trojans.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST—Their meeting in Nov. 25 finale will decide whether Oregon or Oregon State is the best in that area. Both have good chances for bid to one of secondary bowls. Oregon made it last year, losing to Penn State in the Liberty Bowl. Oregon State opens against Syracuse, then has smoother sailing. Oregon's big stumbling blocks are Ohio State and Minnesota.

BIG TEN—Iowa is consensus pick, with Minnesota a compromise second followed by Ohio State and Michigan State. Minneapolis line, however, figures Iowa-Ohio State game on Nov. 4 will decide title . . . and favors Ohio in that one. Although Michigan rated fifth behind above four, Illinois is listed as darkhorse.

EAST—Penn State and Syracuse picked 1-2 in this sector. Their game on Oct. 21 should decide Eastern supremacy. Pitt has solid team, but another "killer" schedule. Minneapolis warns this could be rough year for both Army and Navy. Concedes slight edge to Navy in their annual classic. Holy Cross figures to be best among the big independent Catholic colleges in East.

IVY LEAGUE—Yale slight favorite over Cornell and Prinecton in consensus, but Minneapolis likes Princeton with Penn as the darkhorse.

BIG EIGHT—Kansas is slight consensus pick over Missouri with Oklahoma and Colorado just a notch back. Minneapolis sees strong comeback by Oklahoma.

SOUTHEASTERN — This powerful 12-team conference enters season with no less than seven contenders for bowl bids. Foremost of these are Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana State, which also should vie for national crown. Alabama is the early favorite. Other possibilities are Auburn, Florida, Tennessee and Georgia Tech. It figures to be a dog-eat-dog race.

ATLANTIC COAST—Consensus predicts free-for-all among North Carolina State, Duke, Clemson and Maryland, with NSC slight choice. Minneapolis, though, favors Duke . . . and also warns that the University of North Carolina could be the surprise team.

SOUTHWEST—Consensus pick is Texas . . . but observers are quick to point out that only five consensus choices in 27 years have gone on to win. Only one game separated the top four teams last year, and another dingdong battle is seen with Rice, Baylor and Arkansas challenging Texas. Any of the four could win it. Minneapolis, meanwhile, likes Texas to go through unbeaten and make strong bid for national title.

SKYLINE—Wyoming and Utah expected to fight it out with Wyoming slight favorite. Utah State tabbed for third.

INDEPENDENTS—Top two clubs in this category will be Miami and Notre Dame. Miami could easily qualify for bowl if can handle a schedule that includes Pitt, Penn State, Florida, Navy, Colorado, Northwestern, North Carolina. Marked improvement seen for Notre Dame. Winning season of 6-4, peerhaps even better, expected for Irish as their young talent matures!

BARNES' SQUAD LOOKS LOADED IN DRILL

Tab Bruins for Rose Bowl...Again

By JEROME HALL

Ballots are in and counted, and UCLA has been elected—again — the team most likely to go to the Rose Bowl.

The Bruins Saturday took their turn at scrimmage before the prying eyes of newsmen touring the Big Five practice camps and put on a show that left all in agreement that the know-it-alls were right in labeling UCLA the favorite in early polls.

For an hour and a half Saturday the Bruins traded wallops and smashes in the fifth and final display on the training-camp tour.

Whether the Uclans have one of the best teams in the country will be left to a 10-week muscle debate, but it is virtually certain that UCLA has the best third-string players in the country.

Head coach Bill Barnes poured an awesome quantity of quality into the drill and tailbacks Bobby Smith and Ezell Singleton along with wingback Kermit Alexander and fullback Almose Thompson were the standouts.

Smith scored two touchdowns (75-yard and 7-yard runs) and guided the first-stringers on three of the four touchdown drives.

The 30-man contingent of reporters from up and down the coast agreed UCLA put on the most impressive show. Barnes ran his first-stringers against the best competition on the squad, not scrubs as is so often the case.

"I didn't think we looked so good," Barnes commented. "We were pretty ragged. Our lack of speed was evident." Though the Bruin mentor said the team is far from ready to play its first game (Sept. 23 vs. Air Force Academy), he admitted the squad is not in need of more scrimmages and will not do any more heavy contact work.

No injuries were reported, though Barnes called a premature halt to the workout when several of the linemen got overenthusiastic and "started to hurt each other. We were running out of strong-side tackles," commented the coach who has six tackles who could make the starting unit on almost any team in the country.

The trouble spot with the Uclans this year is supposed to be passing, but the two best runners—tailbacks Bobby Smith and Singleton — had perfect completion averages. Smith hit three-for-three, good for 31-yards, and. Singleton completed two for 34 yards.

Thus, the sportswriters concluded a tour that discovered Cal's team is improved, Stanford probably is better and Washington is green but frightening. The verdict on SC is being withheld, though there is general agreement the Trojans are better.

All they have to do now is play the season.

Cowboys No Match for 49ers

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The San Francisco 49ers, mixing rookies with veterans and getting the most out of both, stunned the Dallas Cowboys 24-7 Saturday night in the final exhibition game for both National Football League clubs.

Veteran quarterback John Brodie and another old hand, fullback J. D. Smith, sparked the 49ers to two second-period touchdowns and a 14-0 halftime lead. In the third period, with rookie quarterback Bill Kilmer, ex-UCLA, at the helm, the San Francisco club tallied 10 more points—one touchdown coming on a 51-yard "Alley Oop" aerial from Kilmer to R. C. Owens.

Kilmer also brought the crowd of 22,130 at Hughes Stadium to its feet with a quick kick that traveled 73 yards and rolled dead on the Cowboys' 10-yard line.

The 49er victory gave the San Francisco club a 3-2 record for its exhibition slate while Dallas wound up its pre-league season at 2-3.

With football season just around the corner, Poly High pep girls Pam Black, Lou Ann LeLacheur and Mary Mullarky re-introduce star Jackrabbit back Rick Bryson to his equipment. Bryson will give underprivileged kids a hand when he helps inaugurate the Long Beach prep season Sept. 23 in the annual Milk Bowl Carnival.

TEXANS HOST CHARGERS IN TV OPENER

DALLAS (AP) — The San Diego Chargers try to take a long stride toward repeating as Western Division champions of the American Football League today when they battle the Dallas Texans here.

The Texans, crippled and with an inferiority complex, must upset the Chargers or fall behind the eight-ball in their first league game. The Chargers beat Dallas, 31-10, in last Sunday's final exhibition game.

A crowd of 35,000 or more is expected in the Cotton Bowl. The game will be televised over KABC (7) at 12:30 p.m.

Lions Roll to 35-17 Triumph

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Detroit Lions exploded for 28 points in the third quarter on a pair of 60-yard pass interception returns, a recovered fumble and a nine-yard pass to defeat the Cleveland Browns 35-17 Saturday night.

With a 7-3 halftime lead built on a two-yard plunge by fullback Nick Pietrosante in the second quarter, the Lions began to roll in the first three minutes of the second half.

Veteran defensive back Gary Lowe made a one-handed pitchoff of a Milt Plum pass intended for Ray Renfro and scampered 60 yards to score. Five minutes later Dick LeBeau snatched another Plum aerial and also darted 60 yards to make it 20-3.

The Browns bounced back to cut the deficit to 21-10 when rookie halfback Tom Watkins rammed over from the five.

Earl Morrall passed 45 yards to Gail Cogdill to set up the first Lions touchdown and in the final seconds of the third quarter Wayne Walker picked up a Lennie Dawson fumble and rambled 30 yards for the Lions' final tally.

Plum hit rookie Crespino with a 23-yard score to end the scoring in the final quarter.

Stanford Regulars Wallop Subs, 21-0

PALO ALTO (AP)—The Stanford Blues, made up of first and second team members, defeated the Whites, a reserve outfit, 21-0 Saturday in a two-hour scrimmage game.

Quarterback Rod Sears completed three passes in four attempts and Jim Smith three out of five.

Unbeaten Eagles Rip Cards, 27-0

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen passed for a pair of touchdowns to halfback Tommy McDonald Saturday night as the Philadelphia Eagles walloped the St. Louis Cardinals, 27-0, and wrapped up an unbeaten National Football League exhibition season.

Jurgensen connected with McDonald on 22 and 16-yard scores after Ted Dean gave the Eagles a 6-0 second-period lead on a 54-yard scoring punt return.

Thereon Sapp plunged a yard for Philadelphia's final score, set up on a pass interception by Chuck Weber, a defensive linebacker.

The NFL champion Eagles, in winning their fifth pre-season game, demonstrated their usual stout defense, containing the Cards' running game and almost completely bottling up St. Louis passers Charlie Johnson and Sam Etcheverry. The Cards' deepest penetration to Philadelphia's 33 wound up with a pass interception.

Jurgensen directed the Eagles in the first half with second string quarterback King Hill taking over midway through the third period. Bobby Walston kicked three conversions.

Oilers Trample Oakland, 55-0

HOUSTON (UPI)—Old pro George Blanda threw three touchdown passes, kicked two field goals and six extra points Saturday night as the explosive Houston Oilers buried the Oakland Raiders, 55-0, in the American Football League season opener for both teams.

A disappointing crowd of 16,231, possibly held down because of the threat of Hurricane Carla, saw the Oilers smash the league scoring record as they tallied in every quarter.

Bennett Sparkles in 49er Grid Tilt

By AL LARSON

Curtis Bennett, who's going to give enemy defenses a severe case of the jitters before his career is over, stole the show in Long Beach State's full-dress intrasquad football game Saturday on the 49er field.

The brilliant 5-9 sophomore injected new life in the 49ers' attack with his running and passing exploits as he engineered the "Browns" to a whopping 14-12 upset over the first-team "Whites".

Trailing 6-0 in the second period, Bennett maneuvered the second club 55 yards, capping the drive with a ten-yard touchdown pass to Rex Burrell. Tom Turrill kicked the first of his two all-important conversions and the "Browns" led 7-6 at halftime.

Bennett sparked the underdog "Browns" to their payoff touchdown at the outset of the third quarter. After reeling off 20 yards on his favorite option play, Bennett turned the running over to Turrill, Don Briscoe and Jim White. The latter cracked the final six yards.

The "Whites" surged back to narrow the count when Dallas Moon shot 14 yards to figure in his second score of the day. Moon connected with Bob Heberer for the day's first tally from eight yards out. Both extra-point attempts failed.

Added experience for lettermen and better overall team speed were big factors in the happy state of affairs on the 49er campus. LBSC opens its season next Saturday at Stockton against University of Pacific.

TITANS GRAB OPENER, 21-20

BOSTON (AP)—New York quarterback Al Dorow engineered three lightning drives, passing for two touchdowns and scoring the other, as the Titans defeated Boston 21-20 Saturday night in an American Football League inaugural.

Dorow's 43-yard scoring aerial to Don Maynard at the start of the fourth period brought the New Yorkers from behind. But the decision was not secure until Boston's Gino Cappelletti missed a 32-yard field goal try three minutes before the finish.

Green Bay Air Attack Ruins Skins

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers, led by a dazzling aerial and ball-handling performance by quarterback Bart Starr, jumped off to a big lead, then coasted to a 31-24 exhibition victory Saturday night over the Washington Redskins.

Starr threw two touchdown passes and handed off for a third before retiring from the game midway in the third period with his team ahead, 31-7.

The Redskins, led by rookie quarterback Norman Snead who played last year at Wake Forest, made the score presentable with some fourth period heroics.

Halfback Tom Moore, former Vanderbilt star, ran back the second half kickoff 83 yards for the night's most exciting play.

The fourth period was all Washington as John Aveni, who kicked three conversions, booted a 37-yard field goal and then Snead hit halfback Dick James and end Tom Osborne for long touchdown pass plays.

Who's the Best? Iowa and Ohio State, Agree AP Experts; West Blanked

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iowa's Hawkeyes, lightning fast afoot, have been picked to succeed Minnesota as the 1961 national college football champion in the Associated Press annual pre-season poll of its board of regional experts.

But if the Hawkeyes should stumble, then the choice goes to Ohio State, whom the Hawks must meet Nov. 4.

Iowa and Ohio State were in a class all by themselves in the voting while Minnesota's Golden Gophers hardly drew a nod. The 1960 champions got only one vote for fourth, fifth and 10th places.

Coach Bear Bryant's Alabama team is considered to be third best, but only by the margin of two points over Texas' Southwest Conference Longhorns, with defensively-tough Louisiana State another point behind Texas.

The points were figured on the basis of 10 for first, 9 for second etc, on down to a single point for 10th place.

Iowa collected 400 points and Ohio State 360. The Hawkeyes received 22 votes for first place and Ohio State 15, One selector picked the Buc's as low as 10th, while Iowa was accorded nothing lower than No. 8.

Iowa has a new coach in Jerry Burns, who succeeded his boss, Forest Evashevski, when Evvy retired to the comforts of athletic director at Iowa.

* * * *

BURNS inherited the backfield of quarterback Wilburn Hollis, halfbacks Larry Ferguson and Sammie Harris and fullback Joe Williams that helped Iowa finish sixth in rushing offense last year with an average of 253.8 yards per game. He has 20 lettermen, including eight starters from last year's squad.

Woody Hayes also presents a top backfield to Ohio State. He has probably the country's best college fullback in Bob Ferguson, plus the usual hefty line.

Alabama is expected to fight it out with LSU and Ole Miss for the SEC title. Alabama doesn't play either team, but LSU and Miss have a date on Nov. 4.

Penn State and Syracuse are considered best in the East and try to prove it against each other Oct. 21. Ernie Davis, considered the best offensive football player in the country, leads the Orange, while Penn State is bolstered by a solid corps of returning veterans.

Kansas, with quarterback John Hadl who does everything but keep score, is rated the best in the Big Eight, while many figure sophomore-dominated Texas will have battle a solid Rice team in the Southwest.

* * * *

NOT A TEAM from the Pacific Coast cracked the top ten, although UCLA and Washington were close.

Here is how the board, representing each of the eight NCAA regions picked this year's top teams (first place votes in parentheses):

Iowa (22)	400
Ohio State (15)	360
Alabama (3)	198
Texas (1)	196
Louisiana State	195
Michigan State	168
Penn State (1)	164
Kansas (1)	163
Mississipoi (2)	135
Syracuse	118

Other receiving votes included: Rice, Arkansas, UCLA, Washington, Baylor, Tennessee, Oregon State, Duke, Southern California, North Carolina State, Auburn, Purdue, Colorado, Minnesota, Maryland, Army, Notre Dame, Navy, Oregon, Missouri, Wisconsin, Clemson and Florida.

'TOO MANY FUMBLES'

LBCC Scrimmage Ragged

By BOB SHIBLEY

Although looking ragged around the edges, Long Beach City College's freshmen-laden gridiron gladiators held their own Saturday in a scrimmage against Glendale at Viking Field.

Both defending national champion Long Beach and the Vaqueros crossed the goal line once in the two-hour struggle, highlighted by rugged defensive play.

"At this point, I would have to rate our defensive unit as being farther advanced than the offense," commented Viking coach Jim Stangeland after the scrimmage. "The fumbles were too frequent by our backs, and that puzzles me somewhat."

No statistics were kept on the scrimmage, but it's a fact that Viking ballcarriers had the ball stolen from them on two successive plays. Once it even happened to Dee Andrews, who went over left tackle without the pigskin.

The Viking score came when Gary West and Terry Frank collaborated on a 25-yard pass play. Frank was a non-letter member of the Junior Rose Bowl team a year ago.

Stangeland was pleased with "the team as a whole. Rankin (Bud) and Garrison (Gary) looked good in the backfield. Several of the linemen turned in good jobs. I think we'll be pleased when we look at the films."

Andrews and Lonzo Irvin —the runners who will undoubtedly carry the major portion of the Vikes' ground game — were used only sparingly. "We know what they can do," said one of the Long Beach coaches.

Weldy ($87) Wins Futurity

SHOE BOOTS HOME CICADA

Green Ticket Hits Jackpot

(Compiled from Wire Services)

Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Green Ticket, as unlucky a horse as any which has raced this year, finally scored his first stakes victory Saturday with a nose victory in the $141,635 World's Playground Stakes at Atlantic City.

The large field of 20 juvenile starters made this the richest race ever run at the seashore track.

Endymion, a supplementary entry, was second over the seven furlongs and Sunrise County, winner of the Seashore his last time out, was third.

Green Ticket, a bay son of Traffic Judge, had won three of his previous eight starts but had run into trouble when the big money was at stake. He was second to Sir Gaylord in the Great American, second to Ridan in the Arlington Futurity, second to Sunrise County in the Seashore and third in both the National Stallion and Sapling.

Green Ticket was clocked in 1:22 2/5 for the seven furlongs and returned $31.00, $13.60 and $9.20. Endymion paid $26.20 and $14.80 and Sunrise County paid $6.20.

CHRISTOPHER T. Chenery's Cicada continued her belated drive for this year's juvenile filly honors by scoring her third straight stakes victory in the $98,390 Matron Stakes at Belmont Park.

Cicada, the favorite in the crowd of 33,407, ran as she pleased in the field of nine 2-year-olds, hitting the wire by three and one-half lengths over Jazz Queen. Pontivy was third.

Willie Shoemaker enjoyed a good ride aboard Cicada, and urged his mount over the six furlongs in 1:10 3/5. Cicada returned $4.70, $3.30 and $2.40. Jazz Queen, who has won just one of nine starts, paid $9.10 and $4.40, and Pontivy paid $3.10 to show.

JUAN D'Agostino's Baal II, a hard-luck performer all year, regained his winning form to capture the $7,500 Hartford Handicap at Lincoln Downs.

Heavily-backed although he had won only one of 13 previous starts, Baal II negotiated the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:44 4/5 and returned $4.60, $3.20 and $2.40.

Francisco II finished second behind the popular Baal II, paying $7.80 and $3.80, and Rich Talk, an easy victor in his last three starts, could do no better than third, paying $2.60.

AURELIUS, a 3-year-old owned by Mrs. Vera Lilley, with champion jockey Lester Piggott in the saddle, scored a thrilling three-quarter length victory in the St. Leger Stakes, the fifth and final of the season's classic horse races in England.

The colt beat Bounteous, owned by Mrs. Helen Leggett and ridden by Joe Sime. Third, another three-quarters of a length farther back, was the hot French favorite, Mrs. Suzy Volterra's Dicta Drake with Max Garcia in the saddle.

Jackpot to Uncertain Starter

By MAC McGUIRE

DEL MAR—Weldy, who nearly became a scratch in the morning, was the $87.20 winner of Del Mar's richest Futurity for 2-year-olds before a cheering crowd of 14,991 Saturday afternoon.

Because Weldy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner of Texas, had drawn the outside post position in the 15-horse field, trainer Frank Childs was on the verge of declaring the Pappa Fourway colt when he learned that Lujan had been withdrawn.

Thus Weldy became a starter, and with Ray York gunning him to the front at the break the Turner colorbearer was a length and one-half winner in the $105,890 Futurity, topping the record $90,090 in 1958 when Tomy Lee, also owned by Turner and trained by Childs, was victorious.

* * * *

SNAPPY KING was second in the six-furlong special, and another length and one-half behind him was the 6-5 favorite, Donut King. Indian Blood was fourth. The winner's time was 1:09 1/5.

The outcome of the fourteenth running of the Futurity will go into the record books as a real training feat by Childs, a 71-year-old veteran of the turf. Until Saturday Weldy had won only one race in his life, a maiden sprint at Del Mar. He was fourth to Rattle Dancer in the $100,000-added Hollywood Juvenile Championship, second to Donut King in the C.T.B.A. Sales Stakes and third to Bold Corporal in the Graduation Stakes here.

But Saturday Weldy was the kingpin of Del Mar's great juvenile classic, winning fame and glory for Childs and a $62,390 dividend for his owner.

* * * *

BECAUSE of five supplementals in the race at $5,000 per horse the pot was enriched by $25,000, which was divided between the first four horses over the line. Thus the second horse earned $16,250, third $13,750 and fourth $11,250. Nominators of the first, second and third horses also received awards of $1,000, $750 and $500, respectively.

Donut King was always in a challenging position, but he was unable to gain in the stretch run, and Snappy King held him safe.

The big payoff on Weldy broke the all-time return on a Futurity winner. The place and show prices were $27.20 and $9.20, respectively. Snappy King paid $9.20 and $5.00, Donut King $3.00.

'HERE'S HOW I DID IT'

Cleveland Crowned New City Junior Golf Champ

By BOB SHIBLEY

"When Kemp missed that putt on the 17th, I knew I had it won."

Speaking was 17-year-old Roger Cleveland, part-time Poly High quarterback, who had just defeated Kemp Richardson, 1-up, for the Long Beach Junior Golf championship at Recreation Park Saturday.

Cleveland was referring to the two-and-one-half foot putt that would have tied the match had Richardson holed it. As it turned out, however, both settled for par fours and Roger held his lead. Both golfers felt that this was the turning point.

"I was really worried when he (Richardson) was lining up," recalled Cleveland. "But when he missed the putt, I didn' feel any pressure at all."

* * * *

EVEN WHEN Richardson, son of California amateur champion John Richardson, hit his tee shot on the 143-yard 18th and final hole to within 15 feet of the pin, Cleveland retaliated with a poke that landed about 20 feet away. Roger's putt was within three feet of the pin, which meant Kemp had to sink his for a tie. He failed, overshooting by about four feet.

Richardson took his only lead of the day on the first hole, when he took a birdie three and Cleveland had a par. A bogey by Richardson and another Cleveland par tied the match. The two battled on even terms until the 10th when Cleveland took his 10th straight par and Kemp had a double bogey six. Richardson cut the score to the final margin when he won the 15th hole.

The champion shot a 36-38—74 on the par 72 course, including a string of 16 pars and two bogies. Richardson shot a 37-39—76, including four bogies, one birdie and 13 pars.

In the consolation bracket, Dick Mortenson defeated Jim Belikoff, 3-1, for the trophy.

For the victory, Cleveland received a year's free play at any Long Beach golf course and a $20 golf merchandise certificate. Richardson and Mortenson each won $15 certificates, while Belikoff and Alan Butt, winer of the medalists tournament Wednesday, were awarded $10 certificates.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Either Row, Row —or Know

(Outdoors editor Donnell Culpepper is recovering from surgery. He will resume writing Fishin' Around on Thursday.)

By JEROME HALL

If you have a lot of desire to become a boatsman and a little bit of money for a downpayment, your best course might be to set sail for some boat-learning.

It takes some knowledge of the waterway whether your ambition is to buy a cruiser and head for the fishing grounds off Catalina or just cruise through the bay.

Never will you get a better offer of boating instructions than the one being extended by the U. S. Power Squadron right now.

Beginning Sept. 18 is a course of instruction in boating that can prepare you for—as the advertisements put it—"a new way of life."

The USPS every year holds boating classes throughout Southern California. This year they are to be conducted at 40 locations. Nine of these are in the Long Beach area.

"ANY ONE WHO is thinking about acquiring a boat should go to these instruction classes," said a spokesman for the USPS, "not to mention, of course, those boat owners who are not up on the rules of the water. It is amazing and alarming, contends the man from the power squadron, how many boat operators do not know the rules.

"Just drive around Alamitos Bay any Saturday or Sunday," he continued "to see why it's necessary that all boat operators know what they're doing." With boats multiplying faster than the world's troubles, it's the contention of those who know the problem that we're going to have an oversupply of caved-in hulls if a lot of people don't learn something about what they're doing in a hurry.

THE CLASSES in piloting, seamanship and general boating are held one night a week for a period of 13 weeks. They start at 7:30 and are without charge. The starting dates and sites for the Long Beach area:

Wilson High School, Sept. 18; Millikan High, Sept. 21. Anaheim—Chrysler Auditorium, 1111 No. Brookhurst, Tuesday; Newport Beach—Newport Harbor Y. C., Monday; Buena Park—Buena Park High School, Wednesday; Compton—Whaley Jr. High, Sept. 18; Downey—Warren High School, Tuesday; Redondo Beach—Redondo High, Tuesday; Torrance—South High School, Monday.

THOSE WHO thought the dry spell would flush the deer out into lower elevations making this a banner season were only half right. The current early coastal season is passing its halfway point and the "take" reported by the Dept. of Fish and Game is almost identical with last year. Total for the first five weeks was 15,202. The season closes Sept. 24.

The inland season opens Sept. 23 (until Nov. 5) with reports to the DFG indicating there is plenty of game.

JOTS AND DASHES—If you want to aid the California Wildlife Federation coffers get your tickets for Conservation Night at the Coliseum (Dodgers vs. Phillies Monday) before noon on Monday. Most of the larger sporting goods stores have them. Only tickets bought at the stores will aid the conservation cause. . . . Corbina fishing is at a high point right at our own back door. Try the Alamitos Bay peninsula—usually uncrowded. Seal Beach and Huntington Beach also good right now.

Fairly's bouncer through his leg, enabling the Dodgers to go into a 5-4 lead. Singles by Gilliam and Snider and a walk to Moon preceded McCovey's miscue and a sacrifice fly by Frank Howard brought home the lead run.

McCovey, unintentional as it was, also gave the Dodgers an earlier chance to reduce a 4-1 San Francisco edge.

Juan Marichal had contained the Dodgers to three hits, including John Roseboro's 17th homer, when McCovey's clumsy play forced Marichal out of the game and to the hospital.

* * * *

McCOVEY picked up Snider's fourth-inning grounder behind first, lobbed a high throw to Marichal, who had to cross in front of Snider and was spiked on the left heel. Six stitches were required to close the wound, which may keep Marichal out of action for the remainder of the season.

Billy O'Dell rescued the wounded Marichal and was effective until McCovey converted Fairly's double play ball into three unearned runs.

McCovey did, however, contribute to the Giants' second straight victory with a 475-foot solo homer off Don Drysdale in the second inning. It was his 17th of the year, his third against Drysdale and the longest hit to right field at Candlestick Park, according to the press-box natives.

* * * *

DRYSDALE, though he yielded nine of the Giants' 11 hits, remained on the scene, and in front, until Mays hit a two-run homer in the seventh. It was No. 36 for Mays, who also singled three times.

Moon's homer, giving the Dodgers a temporary reprieve in the eighth, was No. 16, his first since July 20 and only his third on the road.

The week-long series, which the Dodgers clinched by winning four straight at home, ends this afternoon with Sandy Koufax (12-10) or Stan Williams (15-10) facing Jack Sanford (10-3).

LUCERO HAS SAVVY, PUNCH

Fields Facing Toughest Test

By FRANK HARVEY

Jimmy Fields, considered the most promising young lightweight on the Pacific Coast, makes his second Long Beach appearance within a month when he faces Fidel Lucero, hard-hitting hombre from Torreon, Mexico at Municipal Auditorium Wednesday.

In his initial appearance here last month, Fields scored an impressive knockout over Andres Garcia in the seventh round of a free swinging battle.

Prior to the Garcia win Jimmy turned in an upset at the Olympic Auditorium when he outpointed highly-regarded Al Grant.

However, he is taking on the most experienced opponent of his career when he tackles Lucero.

* * * *

FIDEL HAS met most of the top 135 pounders below the border while engaging in 61 pro arguments, while Fields has been to the post only 19 times since entering the punch-for-pay business.

Lucero proved a willing puncher a few weeks ago at the Olympic Auditorium when he knocked out Al Noriega in the final TV main event staged at the Grand Avenue club.

The record shows that Lucero can be hit. A few months ago he was halted by Benny (The Bandit) Medina in Fresno in the eighth round of what has been decribed as a Pier 6 brawl.

In any event if figures as a rough test for Fields, who probably will enter the ring a 10-9 favorite.

* * * *

PROMOTER MAX Provisor is presenting four 4-round bouts on the supporting card, which features some of the Southland's most promising young fighters.

Mel Maomi, a Japanese flyweight from Hawaii, makes his debut here against Johnny Turrez from New Mexico.

Adrian (Tiger) Iberra, Gordon Shaw's lightweight from Torrance who has turned in two winning efforts at the Aud., takes on Johnny Quintela of Gardena.

Chauncey Williams and Ronnie Redelsperger, a pair of welterweight punchers, will step four rounds or less while Tommy Hutchins, a newcomer from Texas, collides with Lorenzo Thomas, Los Angeles middleweight.

Most of the fighters appearing on the card will drill at Sammy Aaronson's Morgan Hall gym starting at 1 p.m. today. The workouts are open to the public, with no admission charge.

The Harlem soccer club will meet Santa Monica in a Greater Los Angeles League game on the Downey High School grounds at 2 p.m. Sept. 17.

Hill Maintains Five-Stroke Bulge Into Denver Finals

DENVER (AP)—Dave Hill of Denver fired birdies on four of the last five holes Saturday for a 67 and a spectacular 54-hole total of 194 strokes in the $30,000 Denver Open golf tournament.

He maintained his 5-stroke lead with 18 holes remaining today.

Doug Sanders pulled into a tie for second place with a 65 and a 199 total. Bob Rosburg had a 67, also for a 199. In fourth place was Bob Goalby with a 67 today and a 201 total.

Five others were tied at 202 — Charles Sifford, Art Wall Jr., Don Fairfield, Frank Boynton and Marty Furgol.

Hill, who shot rounds of 63 and 64, was not as sharp Saturday as the first two days of play. During the first two rounds, he hit 35 of 36 greens, but Saturday missed 4 and took two bogies—his first of the tournament. He was scrambling into the greens, but several fine wedge shots on the final holes preserved his lead.

Sanders could have narrowed the gap but he hooked the ball out of bounds on the 14th after going out in 30 on the front nine.

The lowest rounds of the day as the touring professionals continue to shatter par were 64s by Tommy Aaron and Buzz Garvin. Both are far back, however. Leaders:

Hoover Accuses Russ of Lying About U.S. Relief

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

HERBERT HOOVER

NEW YORK—Former President Herbert Hoover accuses today's Soviet leaders of cynical lying about the massive U. S. effort hailed by the Kremlin 38 years ago as the salvation of 20 million Russians from death by starvation.

The Soviet Union, said Kremlin leaders in 1923, "will never forget" the work of Hoover's American Relief Administration in saving "millions of people of all ages" from one of history's most terrible famines.

* * * *

TODAY'S Soviet leaders not only choose to forget, but have so distorted events of the time that they depict the man who saved those millions as a conniving capitalist—even a murderer.

Hoover's dramatic story of how American generosity saved millions in the Soviet Union, and how U. S. efforts saved other millions in devastated countries around the globe after World War I, is told in Volume III of "An American Epic," (Henry Regnery Co., Chicago, $6.50) which appears in bookstores Monday.

This is the detailed history of the battle against starvation undertaken by the American people at the end of World War I.

* * * *

HOOVER was in the thick of it all, first under President Wilson, then under President Harding. He accuses present-day Soviet leaders, including Premier Khrushchev's right-hand man Frol R. Kozlov, of deliberate lying.

Hoover, now 87, has set down a parade of staggering statistics which leap to life with dramatic force as he tells of the struggle against starvation in 45 nations four decades ago. His account of what went on in hungry, strife-wracked Russia is a study in American persistence and Communist cynicism.

He became head of the ARA, which successfully battled famine in nation after nation. But in Russia, in the grip of civil war after the Soviet Communist seizure of power, death and pestilence stalked the land.

"The conscience of myself and my loyal colleagues in the Relief Administration told us that we had to do the best we could where 20 million people were about to die," he writes.

* * * *

"OUR BEST estimate was that relief was given to about 14 million adults," Hoover writes. "Adding the children, the total number of individuals who at one time or another were furnished the necessary margins to preserve life was estimated at more than 20 million."

Despite the massive effort, ARA was harassed by Kremlin agents, who interfered with relief work to such an extent that the Americans threatened to call it all off. Even in the United States there was harassment from Communists.

But the job was done. By June, 1923, a good Russian crop had come in. The Soviet government was effusive in its public praise of Hoover and his organization.

The communist leaders echoed the theme over and over. But, writes Hoover, "The Communists soon began to realize that an expression of gratitude to a free nation was a violation of the primary tenets of Communism."

Hoover quotes a U. S. observer as describing an article in the official 1956 Soviet Encyclopedia as one which "converts Hoover into the murderer of millions of Russians instead of the savior of millions from starvation."

Col. Cole Receives McClellan Command

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Col. Clifford E. Cole, 45, Saturday became deputy commander of McClellan Air Force base north of here.

Cole, a former B17 pilot, succeeded Brig. Gen. Milton F. Summerfelt, who was reassigned to Air Force headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Homeowners Seen Biased on Race Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Negro in California has a tough time trying to find housing in white areas due to prejudiced homeowners, supported by "a considerable number of leaders in the real estate industry," said a survey report released Saturday.

Orientals and Mexicans have less trouble, it added.

* * * *

BUT THE REPORT, by a California advisory committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, also found "surprising unwillingness of many Negro families to move away from all-Negro neighborhoods on those infrequent occasions when they have the opportunity to do so."

The findings, obtained by two subcommittees headed by prominent church ministers, listed as other basic reasons for the situation:

"The apparent unwillingness of many Caucasian homeowners and tenants to live in proximity to Negro families:

"The definite and marked unwillingness of real estate brokers to negotiate the sale of homes located in non-Negro neighborhoods to Negro families.

* * * *

"THE PATTERN of reluctance in builders to sell new subdivision homes to Negroes.

"The hesitancy of savings and loans groups, as well as other lending organizations, to finance Negro homes purchased outside segregated areas.

"The pronounced unwillingness of Caucasian owners to rent to Negro families."

The report said most of California's more than 880,000 Negroes live in "great urban ghettos" near the biggest cities. In Los Angeles and San Francisco, some Negroes in middle-income brackets do have houses "comparable to other groups of similar status" but such housing still is "somewhat segregated in its scope and location."

* * * *

THE SURVEY mentioned that hearings in Los Angeles and San Diego determined no Negro members were on realty boards there. It said charges even were voiced that Negroes were excluded "solely on the basis of their race."

The subcommittee which conducted hearings in Northern California was headed by the Right Rev. James A. Pike, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California.

JFK's Start Likened to FDR's

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg said Saturday the Kennedy administration's record of legislation for the "welfare of the people" is one which "compares favorably to the first 100 days of the Roosevelt administration."

Goldberg, in a speech at the Lucas County Democratic ox roast, said all the measures of the Kennedy administration have a common purpose.

"They are not anti-labor, they are not anti-business. They are in the interest of the people as a whole," he said.

"Since January the Democratic administration has made the greatest record of constructive achievement and enlightened legislation in our recent history," he said. The record "is in keeping with the progressive tradition" of President Roosevelt's first 100 days in office, he added.

Goldberg said President Kennedy planned to continue his fight for "a United States that is stronger and more prosperous and more humane in its economic and social life."

He said the fight to pass federal aid to education is over for this session of congress, but the administration will revive it next session.

"Medical care for the aged is another major legislative proposal we will ask Congress to consider again next session," he said.

All New Army Vehicles to Get Anti-Smog Devices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will require all vehicles it buys commercially to be equipped with devices to control crankcase fumes, Sen. Maurine B. Neuberger said Saturday.

She said she was advised of the decision in a letter from A. Tyler Port, acting assistant secretary of the Army.

Mrs. Neuberger called the decision "a real victory for all of us who wish to curb air pollution." The devices are designed to control fumes released into the amosphere.

She had asked Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to require the devices as standard equipment on all gas-propelled department of defense vehicles.

The Army's decision will affect passenger cars, station wagons and light trucks, among other vehicles. Vehicles of which the Army controls the design have been equipped with such devices for some time, Port said.

The General Services Administration recently adopted a similar policy of requiring exhaust control devices on the approximately 10,000 vehicles it procures for government agencies, Mrs. Neuberger said.

Oakland Auto Men Walk Out

OAKLAND (AP) — Charging a speedup and harsh disciplinary measures, 150 members of Local 1031, United Auto Workers, walked off the job at the Chevrolet assembly plant Saturday.

A union spokesman said the walkout was unauthorized.

The union has set a 10 a.m. Monday strike deadline in Detroit negotiations for workers in 129 General Motors plants in the nation.

* * * *

THERE WAS no picketing or demonstrations at the plant here. The Fisher Body plant, adjacent to the assembly plant, was not affected.

The walkout here apparently was in protest against long overtime hours and disciplinary action against those failing to appear on the job, the union spokesman said. The plant has been working at top capacity on 1962 models to ready as many as possible before the Monday strike deadline.

Meanwhile bargaining continues at the local level on working conditions. The body and assembly plants employ 1,450 workers but most of them ordinarily are off on week ends.

Sears Store to Roll Out Red Carpet for 75th Anniversary

By KEN CHILCOTE
I.P-T Business Editor

Celebrating 75 years of continued growth of the company, the Long Beach store of Sears, Roebuck and Co., will roll out the red carpet Wednesday to welcome visitors. The special red carpet will run from the entrance across the sidewalk and will remain there the rest of the month, during the anniversary celebration.

Progress of the company, from the time that Richard Sears, a telegrapher and station agent in North Redwood Falls, Minn., started selling watches by mail to other railroad men, through the present day has been sparked by leaders who looked well ahead, planned for the future and made retail selling history.

* * * *

IN THAT SAME SPIRIT of progress, Charles W. Teed, manager of the big Long Beach store at Fifth and Long Beach Blvd., announced several store improvements are under way and a major development is planned for the near future. The September 75th anniversary of Sears has a double celebration here for the Long Beach store is 33 years old this month.

Among new projects to be launched at once is moving of the service station from Fifth and Elm Ave., to Long Beach Blvd. A huge new super service station with frontage on Long Beach Blvd. of three-fourths of a block, will be completed by next June, Teed said. Meanwhile, the old station is being removed and will operate tempurarily from the former Severins Motors building at 630 Long Beach Blvd. With the removal of the station parking for 50 more cars will be made available in the lot east of the store.

Considerable redecorating has been done inside the store and more work is planned.

* * * *

CHARLES H. KELLSTADT, dynamic former president and

CHARLES W. TEED
Tells of Local Expansion

now chairman of the board of Sears is expected to visit the Long Beach store during the celebration, possibly next Wednesday, to review improvements made since his last visit and to check on further expansion.

Teed said that during the celebration all departments will offer special attractive bargains. Clerks and other store employes will be dressed in costume of the Gay 90's, he added.

Development and growth of Sears has been an outstanding chapter in retailing in the United States.

After young Dick Sears purchased an unwanted shipment of watches and began selling them to other station agents, he decided to form the R. W. Sears Watch Co., in 1886. But as business grew so did his problems. When some of the datches didn't work the customers wanted them repaired. He hired a young watchmaker, Alvah C. Roebuck and thus began their association.

They launched into mail order business to provide farmers with flour and other staples at a moderate cost. Use of post offices, rural free delivery and parcel post permitted Sears to offer the farmers an alternative to high-priced rural stores.

* * * *

IN THE 1890's Chicago was booming as a rail center so they moved the Sears operation to take advantage of superior transportation.

By 1895 the new firm had grown until it had a 500-page catalog that listed many items other than watches, which the first catalogs contained. By then they were offering shoes, women's garments, millinery, wagons, fishing-tackle, stoves, furniture, firearms, buggies and glassware.

In 1893 sales topped $400,000 and they exceeded $750,000 in 1895. Business continued to gain so fast that in 1906 they opened a new Chicago building which was the largest business building in the world at that time. Today it still is one of the largest business buildings with well over three million square feet.

* * * *

AS THE MAIL ORDER business grew, Richard Sears was looking ahead and established a branch house in Dallas and when it opened in 1912 the firm head said 10 or more units probably would be needed to properly cover the United States. Today 11 such plants operate.

As cities grew Sears began looking toward establishing retail stores and by 1928 they had 192 stores, 324 in 1929 and when war broke out in 1941 more than 600 were in operation.

Robert E. Wood, who became Sears president in 1928 and board chairman in 1939 placed his faith in the retail stores and after the war began opening huge retail centers.

Today Sears is a vast organization that does business all over the United States and has many overseas outlets.

The company still does mail order business but the stores today account each year for about 77 per cent of the total sales of $4 billion dollars.

Over 33,000 Appliances Needed in Leisure World

Over 33,000 appliances and other heating and electrical devices will be used by Rossmoor Leisure World in building the nation's largest senior citizen housing project at nearby Seal Beach.

Signing a contract involving the electrical equipment were William C. Brangham, general sales manager for the Leisure World project, William C. Frogue, Southern California district manager for General Electric's major appliances, and Art Hansen, contract sales for GE.

* * * *

EACH ONE AND two bedroom apartment in the planned 6,750 unit project will have deluxe built-in range and oven, refrigerator, continuous feed disposal, water heater, radiant ceiling heat, and wiring devices. Central laundry rooms for each section of apartments will have a washer and dryer for every 12 units.

Southern California Edison and General Electric companies contributed to electrical design aspects of the $150 million "senior citizen city." It will be the first community to include medical care and drugs, short of hospitalization, as part of monthly payments for the cooperative apartments. Electrical installation is being performed by Rossmoor Electric Co. under the direction of Jack Singler and Arch Prouty.

Moore Adding Realty Classes

Because of the great interest in the classes conducted by the Moore Real Estate School, a spokesman for the organization stated, another section will be added for those who can attend Tuesdays and Thursdays. This is in addition to the first announced classes that start Monday at 7 p.m. The new instructor assigned the additional classes is Jack Kruger, an experienced teacher in this field.

Remarks on Negro Home Loans May Block New Cabinet Post

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a man in a delicate position Housing Administrator Robert C. Weaver made some unusually direct remarks the other day.

Weaver is a Negro. As head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency he holds the highest position ever attained in federal service by a Negro. He is widely considered the odds-on favorite to be secretary of the proposed Department of Urban Affairs and Housing—if and when it comes into being. That would make him the first Negro cabinet member in the nation's history.

The possibility of his appointment as secretary does not sit well with some Southern members of Congress. (Nor did President Kennedy's appointment of Weaver to the administrator's job — although chiefly because it was seen as a harbinger of the cabinet nomination.) For this reason Congress may not pass legislation creating the department.

IT IS AGAINST this background that Weaver's remarks to the National Insurance Association, a Negro group, sounded unusually outspoken.

Weaver told the association, in convention here, that its members have a special responsibility to make home loans to Negroes "who want to buy property in predominantly white areas."

Such buyers, Weaver said, have difficulty getting financing from white lenders who would make it available for purchases in "all-Negro or bi-racial neighborhoods."

Weaver carefully confined his remarks to what the private insurance companies managed by Negroes could do to help colored people secure good housing. He did not go into what the government could or should do — a far more politically sensitive topic.

* * * *

THE $300 MILLION of assets controlled by members of the association, Weaver said, is small in comparison to the $120 billion of assets of all life insurance companies. "But it is of great strategic importance in exerting the economic influence of the Negro community," he asserted.

"Negro businessmen must meet competition on an economic basis," Weaver continued, "and have no right to claim special consideration from Negroes. At the same time, the strongest inducement they have to offer Negro customers is the willingness to give special consideration to their problems."

He then went on to say that the bulk of Negroes' demand for home loans must be satisfied "with the resources under the control of institutions in which both whites and Negroes have invested." Negro-controlled groups alone lack the capital to do the whole job, he said.

* * * *

BUT THE LATTER owe "special consideration" to "marginal cases" — the Negro buying in a white neighborhood — "where credit would not normally be available from other institutions," Weaver concluded.

The substance of his views itself was hardly surprising. Weaver is a former board chairman of the National Association of the Advancement for Colored People. In Senate confirmation hearings he made it plain that he believed in trying to advance the cause of equal opportunity for Negroes. He also said that as administrator he would be responsive to the policies of the President and Congress.

Outstanding Speakers Booked for State Realtor Convention

Plans are nearing completion for the 57th annual convention of the 34,500-member California Real Estate Association to be held in Los Angeles, with headquarters at the Biltmore Hotel, Oct. 1-5, according to Kenneth H. Smitten of San Francisco, president.

J. Roger Deas, an executive of the American Can Co. in New York City, will be the keynote speaker at the five-day meeting which will be attended by more than 5,000 members of the 169 real estate boards in the state. In traveling over a half-million miles and addressing over 2,000 audiences, Deas has met informally with government, business, farm and community leaders and will report their opinions and attitudes on today's events and tomorrow's prospects.

* * * *

A LARGE DELEGATION from the Long Beach-Lakewood area is planning to attend the convention, according to Gene Nebeker, Long Beach Board president. Reservations have already been received from 60 members of the Long Beach Board.

Edward M. Loftus of Los Angeles, general convention chairman, announced that the convention's general sessions will be held in the Philharmonic Auditorium to accommodate the large attendance. Other sessions will be held in the Biltmore and Statler Hilton Hotels.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown has accepted a speaking engagement at the convention according to Chairman Loftus.

Donald G. Crandall of Los Angeles, program chairman, announced that Clarence Manion of South Bend, Ind., will address a general session of the convention on the subject of "Americanism."

The senior vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Hall L. Hibbard, will speak on "Your Stake in Space," said Crandall.

* * * *

ANOTHER SPACE age subject to be discussed at the convention is "Communicating by Satellites" which will be discussed and illustrated with electronic equipment and multiple television sets by Frank C. Lord, general commercial manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Another speaker will be Maurice Stans, president of the Western Bancorporation, the holding company which has controlling interest in 24 banks located in 11 western states.

Convention Chairman Loftus said that one of the convention's most popular speakers each year, James C. Downs Jr., of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Real Estate Research Corporation, will again speak at a general session on "The Real Estate Outlook." The reason for Down's continued popularity at the convention is his uncanny, accurate predictions of future trends in the real estate business.

Another speaker scheduled to address the convention is Harold K. Kennedy, Los Angeles County Counsel, who will address the CREA Appraisal Luncheon on the subject, "Wake the Town and Tell the People."

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—Among delegates to the National Culinary arts, Food and Equipment Exposition was Harry Cook.

Sol Vista Opens New Unit of Luxury Homes

Al Solomon, president of the Alco-Pacific Construction Co., developers of Sol Vista Luxury Series Homes, announced the grand opening of Unit 20, another new luxury subdivision in Huntington Beach.

The Sol Vista Luxury Series is one of the fastest selling developments in the Southland, and Solomon attributed this fact to the increase of the electronics industry in this area. Further, he continued, this is the type of area that is conducive to enjoyable living and a better life for children.

The homes are located near several golf courses, shopping areas, churches, elementary and high schools, and in particular the higher educational institutes which include Long Beach State College, Orange Coast College and Orange State College. They are also near the beaches, swimming, surfing and fishing.

* * * *

SOL VISTA features the Medallion "all electric kitchens." They include the Frigidaire range and oven, and the Frigidaire dishwasher. Also included is color coordinated range hood and light with electric fan, whirlaway disposals and ash cabinets which are easy to reach.

Another feature is the hardwood floors of oak with two-inch tongue and groove sub-flooring on "raised" foundations. Also included is rock wool insulation by Johns-Manville, acoustical ceilings, Armstrong Excelon tile, American Standard Plumbing and forced-air heating with thermostat control.

The living rooms feature dramatic floor-to-ceiling wood-burning fireplace of stone or brick with gas log lighter included. The bathrooms have convenient pullmans, colored fixtures and stall showers with safety glass doors in the master bedroom bath. Most plans include a beautiful dressing table with mirror.

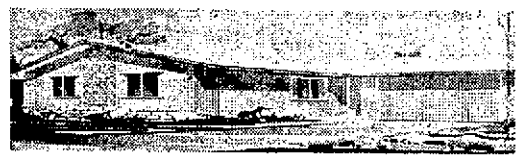

* * * *

THE HOMES are priced from $17,800 with no money down on VA terms (except costs and impounds). FHA with minimum down payment, Cal-Vet and conventional loans are also available.

The model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and only until 6 p.m. Saturday. For convenience there is a hostess available in each model home to answer preliminary questions. The sale program is directed by C. "Faye" Stites, president of the C. LaFaye Co., Inc.

Sol Vista is located on Hwy. 39 (Beach Blvd.) 3 miles south of Garden Grove Blvd. From Long Beach, go out Carson or Garden Grove Blvd. to Hwy. 39 and turn right to models. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway to the Artesia turnoff, follow Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39) south to models.

High Type Construction Stressed in Bolsa Park

OFFERED IN BOLSA PARK

This is one of the models now shown in Bolsa Park. They are priced from $19,250.

Bolsa Park is one of the few subdivisions in Huntington Beach area offering genuine lath and plaster construction, said builder Roger C. Werbel. It is highly unusual to find this quality feature so near the ocean, Werbel said. Situated on Bolsa Chica Road at Bolsa Ave. in Huntington Beach, the new homes are within an easy three minutes' drive of Surfside.

Bolsa Park's unusual quality construction has helped raise sales volume to more than a half million dollars in the first few weeks of sales, Werbel said.

* * * *

OFFERED WITH three or four bedrooms, two full baths, and a family-dining room, the Bolsa Park homes are situated on pool-sized lots with ample room for outdoor living. Pricing is from $19,250, with VA no-down payment terms, 35-year FHA financing with 5¼% interest, and 6% conventional financing. Titles are insured by Title Insurance Co.

Four new Bolsa Park plans feature custom entry and loggia areas. These give access to all rooms, cutting wear-and-tear on living areas to a minimum.

Quality features of the house include: Shake, cedar shingle, or rock roofs; floor-to-ceiling fireplaces of brick or Palos Verdes stone; custom vinyl floors in entry; ceramic tile breakfast bar; ash kitchen cabinets with raised panels; O'Keefe & Merritt gas range and double-window oven with rotisserie; custom range hood with recessed light and fan, and dishwasher.

From Long Beach, the homes may be visited via 7th Street (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) east to Bolsa Chica, turning right and continuing south to models.

For more than two decades, S. V. Hunsaker & Sons have proved their formula for success is a sound one — simply to build better homes for less money and offer the buyer a good home with favorable financing arrangements.

Sunshine Homes are priced from $15,595 to $17,995 in various locations throughout Southern California and are now available in Camarillo, La Puente, San Fernando Valley, Santa Ana, Ventura and West Covina with terms as low as $195 down. Home Town Contest to Woman Realtor

WINNIE CROSS
Pictures L. B. as "Paradise"

At a recent meeting of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, the annual "Home Town Speech" contest was conducted. The winner was Mrs. Winnie Cross, who is thoroughly convinced that Long Beach is "Paradise". Mrs. Cross will compete on a state level at the annual CREA convention.

Here is her speech:

"I shall give you only five of the innumerable reasons why so many of us like to live in my home town — Long Beach. Sit with me at my window pane, and let's look and listen.

* * * *

NO. 1 IS CLIMATE — a combination of the three S's (sun, surf and sand). This is the formula for the delightful playground of the Pacific in glorious sunswept Long Beach.

Long Beach is a summer and winter resort, this millions of tourists will agree. Since the climate is semi-tropical and the temperature varies approximately 30 degrees between summer and winter, the same type of clothing can be worn throughout the year.

* * * *

NO. 2 IS HEALTH — the cool, clean smell of the ocean gives one a sense of well-being . . . I like to look through my windowpane and see the rosy cheeks of the young and old as they romp in the sun and sand. Doctors need a side line to live in my Home Town.

* * * *

NO. 3 IS WEALTH — the payroll of the Navy shipyards is two million a month. A year's pay is literally a stream of gold. Can't you see what this monetary value is to a city?

Our harbor, one of America's most modern ports, is debt free, and the most accessible in the nation. Foreign boats to any country may reach the open sea in 15 minutes. Our enterprising people dug deep in the rich earth bringing forth a black liquid gold which picks up the tab for many of our finest improvements.

* * * *

NO. 4 IS ENTERTAINMENT. Are you still looking through my windowpane, and have you made the drive around beautiful Rainbow Pier with its colored lights playing on the water for a reflection on you? It's positively hypnotizing . . . Encircled in this pier is our new six million dollar Auditorium Annex. It is so constructed as to house anything from ice hockey to an indoor circus.

The setting is a perfect background for the world's most spectacular parade — "International Beauty Congress." This year 52 foreign countries sent 52 beauties to promote peace and good will.

Few cities have the facilities for handling such an ambitious undertaking, but Long Beach hosts 150 conventions a year and is accustomed to welcoming large crowds.

Do not overlook our amusement zone, better known as NuPike. Through this colorful zone is a broad thoroughfare, bizarre with its gaity and thrill-packed rides. It is a riot of color and sounds.

* * * *

NO. 5 IS PEOPLE. And above all, this is more important than our climate, health, wealth and entertainment. People are the greatest resource on earth and ours are among the very best.

One of the largest transactions of its kind ever to be consummated in the U. S. was when nine and one-half million dollars was paid for land on which to build homes for our people . . . all homes were filled long ago.

A great city gifted by nature, combined with all the advantages of a modern city with resort attractions, isn't this a grand and glorious old world to live in, when your windowpane reflects life as ours in my Home Town — Long Beach?

Won't you join me in this "Paradise"?

CLEVER PAMPHLET

Asks Firms to Consider Site in L. B.

A clever pamphlet advertising Long Beach as a business center is being mailed to out-of-town firms by Long Beach retail stores, Vito N. Romans, executive secretary of Downtown Long Beach Associates announced, The firms are mailing the pamphlets when they place orders or make remittances and a total of 45,000 will be in the mail in a few days, Romans said.

"We like being your customer. That's why we make this suggestion," reads the cover of the pamphlet.

* * * *

INSIDE in letter form it reads: "Are you considering a move? As a customer with sincere interest in your future, we suggest that you examine the marvelous business climate enjoyed in Long Beach.

"Consider market potential, labor and wage rates. Transportation and centralized location. Banking and service facilities. Consider the business and industry already here. Most important, consider the very finest climate, homes and recreation.

* * * *

"CONSIDER EVERYTHING, and you'll discover the big "plus factor" that makes our Long Beach area the very best location in the nation . . . for your business, your employes, your family."

The letter is headed . . . "before you expand or relocate consider Long Beach."

The pamphlets are the work of the DLBA industrial and economic committee headed by Charles Teed, Sears manager. Interested parties are invited to write the Economic Development Committee at the City Hall.

Welfare Load Claimed Cause of Many Moving From Cities

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Why the drift from the cities to the suburbs?

Middle and upper-income people are "fed up with subsidizing others while being shortchanged themselves," asserts Boyd T. Barnard, president of the Urban Land Institute.

Referring to the growth of welfare services in recent years, Barnard says "It is apparent that something must be done to take the welfare load off the city's back or even more people of means will move to the suburbs where the cost of housing is such as to automatically screen out the poor."

Barnard fails to say who should assume the welfare load from the cities. He does find, in an editorial in the institute's bulletin, that the nation's cities collect less in taxes than any of the states or the District of Columbia.

* * * *

THE INSTITUTE is a research organization with headquarters in Washington and nation-wide membership among architects, city planners, real estate men and others concerned with land use. Barnard is a Philadelphia real estate appraiser and property manager.

Increases in property taxes, Barnard warns, are self-defeating. "Every time the tax rate is raised the city further penalizes the very space and substance of its own existence . . . high property taxes encourage owners to neglect the appearance of their buildings in order to reduce appraised values."

* * * *

BARNARD ALSO said property taxes are responsible for the fact that builders are erecting "a strictly utilitarian structure" rather than one with "embellishments and architectural finesse." The latter "add nothing to function and increase assessed valuations," he noted.

What Barnard fails to add is that a handsome building commands higher rents than a drab one, thereby justifying —if only partially—a higher valuation for tax purposes.

Barnard describes the exodus to the suburbs this way:

"Most central cities are losing their better-salaried young adult taxpayers." Yet they retain and even attract "older and low-income taxpayers who may require welfare and other public services which greatly exceed in value their own contribution to the public treasury."

* * * *

IN CONTRAST to the days when the city was "the focus of business and culture" it has entered an "age of neglect." "Industry, commerce, entertainment and the better paid, better educated citizens are all migrating to some extent to the suburbs," he wrote.

Barnard commented further: "The sprawl and scatter patterns of most modern suburban growth create an inefficient transportation network that is expensive, to boot. This dispersion saps the central city of commercial and cultural vitality because it robs it of patrons and of its most ambitious and imaginative citizens."

To avoid a continuation of the trend, Barnard urges long-range, broad planning. Industrial expansion, suburban sprawl, transportation, downtown blight—all must be considered simultaneously, he said.

'Children's Programs' Series in Fifth Year

Flinging wide the invisible gate to that special world of creativity and imagination, "Programs for Children" announces its fifth season of five live theater experiences for youngsters of the Long Beach area Oct. 14 through Feb. 17 at Long Beach City College Auditorium.

Co-sponsored by Junior League of Long Beach and Long Beach Children's Theatre, performances are geared to the interest of children 5 to 12 years of age.

* * * *

OPENING the season Oct. 14 will be "The Magic Riddle," a modern play to be presented by the Santa Monica City College Family Theatre under direction of Mrs. Gene Owens.

On Nov. 11 Maxim Gershunoff's Children's Theatre of America will present an unusual version of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite." Puppets and people will share the stage with animated animals and plants in featured roles.

Four weeks later, on Dec. 9, Immaculate Heart College will bring another original work directed by Sister Mary Fleurette, well remembered for her 1960 production, "Clara Clatter's Clitterbang." This year it is the "Unicorn and the Myth Maker," a musical fantasy.

Education Opera Association, well received in 1959 with its version of "Barber of Seville," will appear Jan. 20 with a musical comedy treatment in English of Mozart's "The Impresario."

Concluding the 1961-62 series on Feb. 17, Long Beach Children's Theatre will bring the beloved characters of Dorothy, the Cowardly Lion and Tin Woodman to life again, this time in the adventure "Ozma of Oz."

* * * *

THIS WEEK provisional members of Junior League will distribute brochures and order blanks listing the productions to public and private schools, P.-T.A.s, libraries and department stores.

Season tickets, priced at $2.50 for the entire series, will be available through mail orders. Two performances at 10 and 11:30 a.m. will be given on each date. Early reservations are recommended.

Additional information and ticket requests will be handled by Mrs. Francis Fillipow, 471 Daroca Ave.

Chairman of "Programs for Children" is Mrs. Leo J. VanderLans of Junior League. Mrs. William F. Macrate Children's Theatre, has charge of programming.

PORTRAIT OF JENNY

Worlds of Fashion

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Globe-trotting fashion artist Jennifer Davies may be from "Down Under," but she's likely to turn up almost anyplace in the world.

And has.

At only 26, this attractive mauve - toned blonde from Australia has made two trips to the United States, has plowed the seas from New York to London and from London to Australia.

She's worked in hometown Sydney, also in Vancouver, Chicago, Detroit, Stockholm and London; has toured Europe up, down and back again; has sailed through the Straits of Gibralter, the Mediterranean, the Suez Canal —even stopped off to make a few sketches in Ceylon.

All that in the span of a few short years—AND all on her own.

* * * *

CURRENTLY this global gadabout is hanging her hat at 1700 E. Ocean Blvd.

And when green - eyed Jenny isn't showing her fashion sketches to prospective employers, she's out on the beach adding to the "see-scope" in her Australian-made bikini.

"Goodness, I don't know why all these comments about my swimming costume," says she. "Bikinis are very common in Australia—Europe, too."

Nonetheless, Jenny adopts a "when-in-Rome" attitude, and if members of the local Girl Watcher's Society grow too numerous, she covers up with a muu muu.

But, much to her surprise, the muu muu, picked up in Hawaii during her trip over on the SS Canberra, comes in for some second glances, too. (For reasons, see picture.)

* * * *

ENERGETIC JENNY, 5-foot-6 and a one-time model, currently a fashion illustrator with the Sydney (Australia) Daily Mirror, came here, after landing in Vancouver, to cheer on her Australian buddies during the recent World Water Ski Championships.

An avid water enthusiast (she's done exhibition swimming and water skiing), Jennie has fallen in love with the Long Beach waterways, also other ways.

Says she: "I love the climate and the way of life. Also, I like American food, men and jazz."

* * * *

THIS isn't the first time Australian-born Jenny has been in a strange country on a shoe string. In fact, it's the story of her life.

After finishing boarding school and working her way through art school, she decided at an early age to give the world a whirl and promptly started saving money.

First stop: Vancouver. That was in 1957. In no time at all she landed a job as junior fashion artist for a department store there.

"We worked like crazy," she recalls, "but I'm thankful for that—because while there I became a faster, more competent artist."

* * * *

BUT ANXIOUS to be on the move, she took a job with a German film company researching firms in Detroit, Chicago and New York. That mission accomplished, she sailed for London.

En route she teamed up with five American students and for six months toured Europe via auto, bicycle and what-have-you, staying first in a fashionable hotel or lodge, then a youth hostel, and (when money ran low) out in the fields.

"We each budgeted our expenses to $5 a day—that to cover petrol, food and accommodations," she recalls. "If we spent too much living it up one day, we'd economize the next.

"Once at the Casino in Monte Carlo, we lost a total of three nights lodging—so the next three nights our accommodations were sleeping bags in fields along the way (a practice not uncommon in Europe)."

* * * *

BUT JENNY'S European tour came to an abrupt halt in Stockholm when resources dwindled to $25. The second day there, she landed a job with an art studio.

Then, London. Another job with an art studio—this one in Oxford Circus. But the income was meager, so Jenny decided to head for home.

When she sailed for Australia, Jenny had only enough to cover the fare—no more.

She recalls: "My first greeting to father (a lumberman) was: 'Dad, can you spare a dime'."

Back on old stomping grounds, Jenny took her current fashion illustrator job with the Sydney paper and again started saving.

"It was a toss up whether I'd buy a new MG or come to America," says she. "But dad decided for me. I was planning to try my hand at sports car racing, but he turned thumbs down.

"So, here I am — racing around Long Beach instead."

GIRL FROM "Down Under," Jenny Davies, adds to local scenery in her Australian - designed bikini.

TAKE-OFF ON MUU MUU is worn by Australian-born, globe-trotting Jennifer Davies, a fashion illustrator for Sydney Daily Mirror, who arrived in town for recent World Water Ski Championships. Hawaiians, she reports, are upset about sudden "sex appeal" approach to original Mother Hubbard, designed to hide glamorous figures of South Pacific girls. And where did Jenny buy her muu muu? In Hawaii, of course. Says she: "It's a tourist version."

Pre-School Bells to Ring Monday

School days start young in Long Beach.

Pint-size dynamos from two years and nine months to kindergarten age will be among those hurrying to class when the bells ring Monday.

They'll attend the 19 different Parent Participation Nursery Schools (formerly called Co-ops) here.

And when kindergarten rolls around next year, they will be ready for school routine. In the meantime, they will all have a full program of pre-school activities.

Parent Participation Nurseries were originated by Dr. Katherine Whiteside Taylor during her tenure as coordinator of daily education at Long Beach City College.

* * * *

EACH SCHOOL is directed by trained personnel with the assistance of the mothers. Since the first nursery opened here 13 years ago, thousands of mothers and fathers have worked to maintain them. This year more than 450 children will participate in the program.

The nurseries are licensed by the State Department of Social Welfare and are non-profit and non-sectarian.

Fifteen nurseries meet under the auspices of the Long Beach Recreation Department which has been instrumental in obtaining playground facilities. The other four meet at churches and youth centers.

The nurseries are coordinated and aided by Long Beach Council of Parent Nursery Schools Inc., which is headed by Mrs. Gerald Meyer.

The council will have its first meeting this year Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. in Los Altos Methodist Church. Mrs. Meyer will be assisted by Lorella Koran, co-chairman; Nancy Simpson, recording secretary; Avis Jarrett, corresponding secretary; and Shelby Williams, treasurer.

* * * *

SCHOOLS of Long Beach Council of Parent Nursery Schools are located at the following addresses.

IN MEXICO

Colberts Here for Robinson Reunion

The home of Mrs. Loreen Buffum Robinson, 2205 E. First St., is the hub of much lively activity these days due to the visit of her daughter, Mrs. David W. Colbert Jr., and grandchildren, David III, Karen Loreen and Deborah.

The Colberts arrived by jet at International Airport last week from their home in Oberammergau in the Bavarian Alps where they have lived for the past three years. They will visit for several weeks while Dr. Colbert is beginning a four-year residency at Ochsner Hospital in New Orleans.

MRS. ROBINSON visited the Colberts last year in Oberammergau, and while there entertained Long Beach friends who were attending the famed Passion Play in that village. The Colberts and Mrs. Robinson traveled together through the Scandinavian countries.

The Robinson family enjoyed a family reunion last week when Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Larson, Mrs. Robinson's son-in-law and daughter, with their children, Cynthia and Tim, of Palm Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson and Robyn of Costa Mesa, were all assembled to greet the Colberts.

The Wild Waves Say . .

By IOLA MASTERSON
I, P-T Women's Editor

EARLY THESE mornings you can tell autumn is here. The air has that unmistakable aroma of fall. It smells, if you know what I mean, like school! Later today, like every day last week, the hours will don that sweet, lingering scent of summer. All strictly fake. The true odor will be strong first thing tomorrow. "Phew" the kids will say: "Whee!" will answer their parents.

"But Why ME?"

To each — "Phew-ers" or "Whee-ers" — happy memories of summer and strength be with you to withstand the jolts, or new-found freedoms, of Fall, 1961.

* * * *

"HONORABLE presence requested" read the invitations. As far as I know, not a person didn't personally see to it that his presence was possible, johnny-on-the-spot, last night when next door neighbors, Connie and Phil Putnam and Barbara Fred Hesley, co-hosted an oriental themed party. Costumes were de riqueur, delightful or dafty. Following a saki hour at 7 p.m. guests dined on such things as sukiyaki and sunomono — the latter a shrimp and cucumber salad — plus many another Ah So dishe.

In the party swing, Connie and Phil will continue with another affair next Sunday, hosting a cocktail reception for Phil's brother, Chuck, and his new bride, Janice (nee Noonan) Putnam, formerly of Santa Rosa. The newlyweds are now residing here.

* * * *

IN THE case of Lend-Lease between Europe and U.S.A.-ers, Geneva and Stan Weiss and sons, Paul and Allan, it leased them six wonderful weeks of scenery and vacation enjoyment, then turned around and loaned Geneva one heckuva cold to come home with. At this point, two weeks following return, she ruefully wonders if it might not be a permanent loan! Their jet flights netted them tours of eight countries the only new one, for them, being that old one Greece.

* * * *

At the height of the season they, like others from here have previously noted, found no trouble at all in getting finest accommodations without previous reservations. This year, Geneva said, it seems to be the Germans who are the mainstay of the tourist trade — with way fewer Americans traveling than in years past. Way fewer, in fact, of any type tourist.

Incidentally, now that Allan has "graduated" from Europe he goes on to further his education at Stanford, entering his freshman year this month.

* * * *

PROBABLY YOU normally think of Mary Alice and Les Dahl as calm sophisticates. Well, you should have seen that facade break into a thousand grins last weekend as they described their first grandchild, a boy, born to daughter and son-in-law, Diana and Jim Loomis, Friday, July 1. Undoubtedly Elizabeth Loomis, paternal grandmother, was just as busy with smiles.

Diana and Gannon returned home from Community last Monday, of all modern medical things, when the young 'un was still a few hours shy of three days old.

* * * *

OLE! Louise and Jim Duncan now have a fistful of mananas — three weeks worth in which to play tomorrows away. No long vacation trips for them—just a variety of side trips to Mexico, Las Vegas and a jolly assortment of etcetera places. Says Big Jim, "Maybe even a daring assault on the L.A. County Fair grounds at Pomona."

* * * *

THOROUGH TO the nth degree were housewarming party planners with their total surprise affair for Rose and Gene Bishop last weekend in their new College Park Estates home. Not only did the gang from the Bishops' former neighborhood bring the barbecue grill and everything to cook upon it, they even brought fly spray to keep off what should not be on that which was upon. Oh yes, and pink champagne to down as they watched for insect trouble.

"Total Surprise"

Spearheading the party were the Jack Kennedys (No, Mable, this Jack's first lady is Elsie). Assisting them prepare and bear party paraphernalia were "Ernie" and Dean Meils, Bonnie and Dick Marshall, Aileen and Harold Berg, Linnie and Lionel Gatley, Kit and Bob Poole, Ruth and Frank Carey, Louise and Vern Byer, Helen and Cliff Meyer, Mary Jane and Terry Kay and Alvina Noland.

* * * *

IT WAS fiesta, and in no mamby-pamby terms, last Saturday at Barbara and Tom Jordan's home when, with co-hosts Harriet and Reed Williams, they produced a real live-wire type South of the Border party. From costumed guests to Spanish food, music and decor it was all out. A few of the gay throng present were Georgiana and Pat Hamilton, Nadine and Leo VanderLans, Elaine and Tom Kimball, Jackie and George Herman, Maurie and Barney Bailey and Jean and Allan Beek.

* * * *

INFORMAL swimming party without benefit of pool was given by Lucille and Conrad Lueke last hot, hot Sunday. Better than a pool is the canal and swimming dock they used right in front of their Naples home. After a cooling off period they heated things up again—this time the grill for a patio barbecue.

DECORATIVE TRIO
Flowers for party are given artistic arrangement by (left to right) Mmes. Terry Roberts, Don Callender and Paul Beddow, members of Sema Club. Decorations will be used at group's fifth annual dessert bridge Sept. 18 at 8 p. m. in Petroleum Club. Money from event will benefit Cystic Fybrosis Foundation. Mrs. Terry Roberts, 4327 Club House Drive, Lakewood, is responsible for reservations.—(Staff photo.)

Sorority Council in Bi-Monthly Lunch

Southern California Council, Beta Sigma Phi, will have its bi-monthly breakfast meeting next Sunday in the Lafayette Hotel, 140 Linden Ave.

Compton City Council of Beta Sigma Phi will be hostess for the meeting. Its president, Mrs. Frances Bailey, will be assisted by Hunley Cobble and Jean Linder in arrangements.

Mrs. Rodney Scholtes, Southern California Council president, will open the meeting at 10 a.m.

* * * *

THE FOLLOWING chapters of Long Beach area Council will attend: Phi Alpha Phi, Beta Eta, Delta Chi, Eta Tau, Gamma Rho, Iota, Iota Upsilon, Kappa Psi, Lambda Beta, Psi Eta, Rho Delta, Sigma Beta, Upsilon Phi, Xi Alpha Kappa, Xi Chi, Xi Delta Xi, and Xi Theta.

Mrs. Oran Bridges, vice president of Southern California Council will welcome special guests.

Garrison-Johnson Vows

Elegant simplicity was keynote of the wedding uniting Diane Mae Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Johnson, Las Vegas, and Leland Michael Garrison, son of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Garrison, 5639 Corso di Napoli.

Mrs. L. M. Garrison

For the ceremony, solemnized in First Presbyterian Church, Las Vegas, the bride wore an original gown of white peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice of over-all embroidery and a bell-shaped skirt. A white Dior rose held her tiered veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of white orchids tied with white satin streamers.

* * * *

MISS LINDA JOHNSON attended her sister as maid of honor. All classmates of the bride at Stanford, bridesmaids were Nancy Lund, Las Vegas; Carol Griswold, Arcadia; and Nancy Viets, Long Beach.

Gerald Manerud, Palo Alto, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Seating the 100 guests were Kris Nelson, Palm Springs; Paul C. Merrill Jr., San Diego; and Charles F. Merrill of Long Beach.

Immediately following the ceremony, a champagne reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

* * * *

THE NEW Mrs. Garrison was graduated from Stanford University, Palo Alto, in June and will teach this year in Baltimore, Md., where her bridegroom, also a graduate of Stanford, will continue his medical studies at the University of Maryland.

An alumnus of Wilson High School, the bridegroom is a member of Kappa Alpha social fraternity and Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity.

Before leaving for their new home in Baltimore, the newlyweds honeymooned in Carmel, Monterey and San Francisco.

Richard McCollom Weds Ski Queen, Janice Gordon

Holy Innocents Catholic Church was setting for the recent nuptial mass uniting Long Beach water ski champion, Janice Elaine Gordon, and Richard Lawrence McCollom.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wells E. Gordon, 2684 Golden Ave., wore a gown of white slipper satin with bell skirt and bustle. She carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis and lilies of the valley.

A trophy-holding member of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club, the new Mrs. McCollom was the group's queen at its meet in Parker, Ariz., and was queen of the Annual Catalina Water Ski Race last September.

* * * *

HER ATTENDANTS at the wedding included Charlene Elsasser, maid of honor; Mrs. Linda Mehlbrech, matron of honor, and Sherry Jewett, Sharon Kay Morgan and Thais Roy, bridesmaids. Cynthia Lee Ward and Lisa Diane Ward were flower girls.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar C. Woizeski, 2134 Golden Ave., chose Neal Ward as best man. Douglas McCollom was ring bearer and Wells S. Gordon Jr., Samuel C. Alhadeff, Bill Licata and Edward Barbone were ushers.

Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from Poly High School and attended Long Beach City College. She was a member of Lambda Phi and he of Comus.

Following a honeymoon trip to Monterey, Carmel, San Francisco and Las Vegas, the newlyweds will make their home in Long Beach.

Mrs. Richard McCollom

Bird Watchers Joined by Watching Wardens

From all reports the gun reports were loud and steady around El Centro last weekend with the opening of dove season. In fact, that loud and steady stuff had the game wardens out in about the same numbers as the doves. Which was plenty of same.

"Dove's disguised"

Hear tell that the lawmen were so zealous they even checked hotels and motels in search of over-limit bags. One man (not local) confirmed their suspicions. He was caught having the chef of one hotel preparing a feast of about three limes what he had a right to have in the kettle. They fined him $10 a bird over his limit—and confiscated every one too many to boot, gravy and all. "Honest officer, I thought they were chickens."

Localities who got their limits (and not one bird over, cross my heart and hope to die—wups, there goes another of those sharp pains over my heart) were "Gap" Powell and George Powell (George took wife, Barbara, and daughter, Jody, along to keep count), Art and Bill Macrate, Bud Adams, Carter Boswell, Harrison Moore, Walt Hoffman, Al Beach, Bert Paul, John Craig, Charlie Swanton, Mary Ellestad and son, Steve.

Students Wed; Study in Illinois

Mrs. Oliver Seely Jr.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert A. McClain, 3559 Lemon Ave., wore a formal bridal gown of taffeta accented with Alencon lace. On her head she wore a lace mantilla from France.

A pearl droplet centered with a diamond, a gift from the bridegroom on the eve of their wedding, was her only jewelry.

* * * *

THE BRIDAL entourage included Patricia Grant, maid of honor, Noel Smartt, Sharon McMahan and Mrs. Robert Jackson, bridesmaids.

Joel Donnelly served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers, all classmates of the bridegroom at Caltech, were William Farrell, Robert Gilman, Douglas Fenwick, Tom Gordon, Eli Chernow and Bill Hazzenzahl.

Following a reception at the church, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Rocky Mountains.

* * * *

THE NEWLYWEDS will make their home in Urbana, Ill., where both will attend the University of Illinois.

DEAR ABBY

By All Means, Call Them

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are having a disagreement that needs settling. We know a couple who have been married about a year. We attended their wedding and gave them a nice gift. I see this man at work every day. He keeps saying, "My wife and I are very put out with you and your wife because you haven't paid us a visit in our new apartment yet." When I tell my wife this, she says, "If they want us over, his wife should call me and invite us."

ABBY

I can't tell this to the man, can I? Is it our place to call them up and invite ourselves over? Or should we wait until they call us? What is proper?—PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: It is considered quite proper to phone friends who are newly married and ask them if you may call on them.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going steady with a young man for three months now. He has a good personality, a good job, and my parents like him. You might think I have no problem, but I have. When he kisses me I just don't get that wonderful tingle. No matter how hard I try, I can't seem to feel anything for him. It is like kissing my brother. I know he thinks a lot of me, because he has been talking about marriage. I am 22 and have felt more for other men I've dated than this one, so I know it's not me. Should I keep going with him? If I break up, what excuse could I use? I hate to hurt his feeling.—FEELS NOTHING

DEAR FEELS: You will hurt him less if you are honest with him now. It is obvious that you are not "in love" with this man, so tell him, like a sister, that he would make a wonderful brother.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: After being begged for a year, we let our 18-year-old daughter get married. She has been married for 8 months, and has never spent one day in her own apartment. She and her hubby have eaten every meal with me, and they spend most of their nights here. I love my daughter, and her husband is a nice enough boy, but I am getting sick of keeping house for them. Should I tell them to move in with me, and give me the price of the apartment? —MRS. WORKHORSE

DEAR MRS.: Instead of keeping house for your daughter, teach her to keep house herself. Then send her home and tell her to stay there and be a good wife to her husband.

Always a New, Easier Way

By MARY NETH

The Biblical statement, "There is no new thing under the sun," can't be denied in a sense.

But when it comes to new ways of designing familiar products for the home, there is most certainly something new everyday.

The following items are just a few "new-looks" seen in local stores this week.

Under $1

Handy for the housewife in a hurry. Pack of tacks, nails, bolts, brads and screws, makes quick repair of household goods easy. No need to put off till tomorrow a job that needs only a minute to complete. Pack includes different size nails etc. in small plastic bottles. Good for every home or garage.

* * * *

No trips, no bumps. New door-stop stops door up high. A hinge pin type that's up to 100 percent adjustable, it eliminates floor type bumps and stays out of the way of children. Takes no drilling or tapping to install and won't mar wall.

* * * *

A dab in time saves nine. New liquid mender in tube is great for back-to-school-set to tuck into book-bag or locker. Using latex based liquid much in way he would apply paste to paper, a youngster can mend tears in trousers, canvas sneakers, and leather book bags in seconds. He also can attach his own name tapes and labels to gym clothes or rain boots. Liquid dries in 60 seconds, will withstand washing, boiling and ironing.

* * * *

Dress zipper-uppers aren't needed anymore. New invisible zipper solves problem. Zipper eliminates need for designers to place zipper opening at the side or back —out-of-view, but hard to reach. New zipper is concealed within a seam and is integrated into contour of garment. It is rustproof and color fast and has been tested by the U.S. Testing Laboratory. Dresses and sportswear for women and girls and outdoor clothing for men and boys soon will feature new product. Home seamstress will find them in most sewing departments of local stores.

* * * *

Everything's going plastic and inflatable. Now, its clothes hangers. Terrific for travel, these soft plastic closet musts collapse to 4 by 5 fold-up size and come in their own plastic envelope. College girls rate them high for hanging drip-drys in the dorm. Available in rose print on white background.

Under $2

A rose is a rose, is a rose . . . but this one is more. Large long stemmed beauty, looks lovely on Milady's dresser. When turned over rose disapears and there's a mirror. A rosy way to see that the back of that hair-do is in petal perfect shape. Metal frame is covered with taffeta for decorative elegance. Available in rose yellow, blue, green or beige. (Priced to $3.50.)

Under $3

Under the bed storage is sign of good housekeeping these days. Modern opaque plastic storage chest makes it practical and neat. A wonderful way to store blankets and sheets, chest has cardboard, assemble-yourself frame, and plastic covering with zipper. Available in 48 by 18 by 6 inch size.

Under $4

It won't wear out or rust. That's the beauty of new all rubber brush for bathroom cleaning. Brush comes in plastic, compact container and has long, long handle. Available in rose, white and lavender.

AT OFF-BROADWAY

The rustics in Midsummer Night's Dream are portrayed (from left) by Dave Kettles, Rick Smith and John McMurtry in "Scenes from Shakespeare" which opened Saturday night at Off-Broadway Theatre, 211 Lime Ave. High points of five plays were given and will be repeated the next two Sunday nights at 8 with a stellar cast directed by John Blackmon.

Four Exhibits Open Today

By BETTY WENTWORTH

Opening today with a reception from 5 to 9 p.m. at La Poule Rouge Gallery, 109 Main St., Seal Beach, is a new group show. Works featured are by Lin Carr, Marvin Saltzman, Marcus White and Harriet Wolpin.

A graduate of the Art Students League in New York, where she studied with Kuniyoshi, Miss Carr will show woodcuts. She has previously exhibited nationally, including shows at Maryland Institute of Fine Arts and National Print Show in Los Angeles.

Marvin Saltzman, Long Beach artist and former student of Misch Kohn, is remembered for his recent one-man show at the Jewish Community Center. His paintings and prints have also been shown at the Ramon Lopez Gallery and the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts.

Marcus White, a professional musician who turned to graphic arts in 1951, has exhibited his welded sculpture at Long Beach Museum of Art and Los Angeles County Museum.

Recent winner of the $250 award at Los Angeles County and Vicinity Show, Miss Wolpin is a ceramicist whose training took place at Art Students League in New York and at Otis Institute where she earned her M.A. She has also exhibited in the National Ceramics Show and San Diego Art Guild Show.

* * * *

A PREVIEW - reception will be held today at the Pacific Coast Club from 2 to 5 p.m. honoring Maxine and Doug Miles and Mrs. Miles' mother, Carrie McMullen. An exhibit of their mosaics and ceramics will be on display.

This is the second exhibit at the PCC for this husband and wife team. They teach two classes a week at Westside Girls Club and also have classes at Northside Girls Club; these clubs are sponsored by the Assistance League and Rick Rackers.

They also teach at Navy Base Hobby Shop, Terminal Island.

Mrs. McMullen shows some of her first attempts at ceramics, and is a good example of the fact that age is no barrier to useful and interesting hobbies.

* * * *

FIRST ONE-MAN show for Robert Brandts, as well as a first public show of any of his work (barring one painting in Long Beach Art Museum Show this past year) will go on exhibit in the Veltman Gallery beginning today and continuing through Sept. 30. There will be a champagne reception at 8 p.m. at the gallery, 5604 E. Second St.

Brandts is a city lifeguard, his station being on Alamitos Bay near 72nd Place. He is married and has two children. He terms himself essentially self-taught and has had very little academic training.

His work suggests a kinship with the early French expressionist painters, especially Van Gogh in regard to color. He has also been compared with the German expressionist, Edward Munch. Both his drawings and paintings reveal his interest in the human face and figure, in the realistic rather than abstract sense.

* * * *

OPENING the fall season as "artists of the month" at the Unitarian Church, 5460 Atherton St., will be a young couple, Jean and Philip Freeman. Their exhibit opens today and continues through the month.

The Freemans studied together at the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts, Wayne University, U. of Michigan and Orange Coast College. They have exhibited widely in Michigan and at Carnegie Institute, Wichita Gallery, All-California Show in Laguna, Long Beach Museum of Art and the Newport Annual. Among Philip's highest achievements is a place in the permanent collection of the Detroit Art Museum, won with ceramic dinnerware.

They have just built a studio at Dana Point and are teaching pottery, painting and drawing. They are also busy lecturing, demonstrating for art groups and designing and executing commissions. They have two children.

Show at Center

More than 50 artists of Southern California who have never before exhibited at the Westside Jewish Community Center, 5870 W. Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles, will have their work showcased in the Center's first fall art show. It opens with a reception Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. and continues through Oct. 12.

Name Gard Music Director at LBCC

Of wide interest to local music lovers is news of appointment of Wayne B. Gard as new director of choral music at Long Beach City College. This position includes directing the popular Schola Cantorum, the college choir, madrigal singers and small ensembles such as quartets and trios. He fills the post vacated by Royal Stanton.

Gard, a native of Iowa, was graduated from Iowa State Teachers College and received his master's in music at the U. of Michigan. He took special work at the American Conservatory, Chicago, and has studied under such noted choral directors as Roger Wagner, Peter Wilhouski of New York and Maynard Klein at the U. of Michigan.

He taught in Iowa High School and for the past six years at Bakersfield High School. There he organized a madrigal singer group, and his boys' glee club received superior ratings at many music festivals. It was chosen to represent all high school boys' glee clubs at the Cal-Western Music Educators national conference in Santa Monica early this summer.

* * * *

HE SERVED as both musical and drama director for such musical productions as "The King and I," South Pacific," "Brigadoon" and "Oklahoma." His a cappella choir of about 110 voices performed such major choral works as Brahms "Requiem." He is now looking forward to working with the Schola Cantorum here.

Future plans for the Schola include a holiday program with the Schola and college chorus, "The Feast of Lights," which includes great Christmas music from the baroque, Renaissance and romantic periods of music.

In early March a pops evening in a lighter vein is planned to include excerpts from musicals and possibly a one-act or short opera. Gard hopes to have the Schola do some major vocal work from one of the masters next May.

Wayne B. Gard

The Schola is open to anyone interested in singing. Students are welcome to attend rehearsal Monday night in Studio C in the Music Building on LBCC campus at 7 p.m., after which there will be private auditions. Classes are under the adult education evening division. If unable to make the audition tomorrow night there will be further auditions on the next two Mondays.

THE NEW director is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Symphonia, honorary music fraternity; past president of Kern County Music Educators, treasurer of Central Section of California Music Educators Association, and Southern California Vocal Association.

The Gard family has just moved into a home at 4600 Village Road. His wife, Mary Jane, is an accomplished singer with operatic and concert experience. She sang the lead in a recent Bakersfield Civic Light Opera production of "The Mikado" and has been a "Messiah" soloist for several years.

Gard hopes to take part in similar activities here. He played with the Kern Philharmonic and will be playing tympani with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra.

The Gards have three children, Richard, 6; Stephen, 4; and Charles, 1½.

Rose Works at Firefly Art Gallery

Tom Rose, originator and charter member of Firefly Artists, will present a one-man show opening today at the Firefly Gallery at Stanton Plaza, Highway 39, Stanton, with a reception from 4 to 6 p.m. Theme of his show is "Play Time in Orange County." It runs through Oct. 6.

Rose is art and sculpture instructor at Bolsa Grande High School, Garden Grove, and is currently studying under John Morden at Long Beach State College. He is a member of Westminster Art Association.

His work has shown at San Francisco Fair where he won a Gold Medal award, at Santa Cruz annual, Elgin Academy, Elgin, Ill., winning the purchase prize; Oakland and Stanford Museums and St. Mary's College.

WINNERS of this month's "painting of the month" contest at the gallery were: Phil Gilkerson, Fullerton; D. McGrath, Fullerton; Alyce Sanders, Compton; Jeff Lee, Brea; and Ruby Holland, Garden Grove. Their paintings will be on view during the Rose show.

Garland at Bowl

Singing star Judy Garland will make one of her infrequent appearances on the West Coast when she stars in "Stereo at the Bowl" next Saturday night at the Hollywood Bowl.

Judy will present a one-woman show, backed up by her own 40-piece recording orchestra. Only a few seats are left for this performance.

Yamamoto's Painting Calligraphic, Subtle

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Noriko Yamamoto, American-born Japanese, combines the swift broad strokes of a Soulages with the splash and drip of a Pollock over areas of wax-resist, and all in her own color harmonies. A particular flavor of large-scale Oriental calligraphy characterizes most of her painting. Her works are on exhibit until Sept. 24 in the Long Beach Museum of Art with a formal opening today.

These paintings are truly "way out," and require careful consideration to appreciate their subtleties. Miss Yamamoto is a winner in the Whitney Museum annual competition for Americans; this institution has so recognized almost every American artist who has gone on to the major leagues internationally. It is adjacent to and shares the courtyard of the famed Museum of Modern Art.

Yamamoto's work has the airy casualness which comes from complete knowledge and control. Several of the paintings seem to explode from a large central form (No. 6, apparently, by means of smashing a sponge loaded with water and turpentine onto wet paint). No. 11 is a complex of transparent white layers over brown.

* * * *

A LAYER of tissue makes the amoebic forms in No. 4 which is in blue and black. No. 3 has a large purple center, edged with wax-resist, surrounded by areas of orange, purple and gray.

While these are "action paintings" (i. e., those which reveal the physical movements of the artist), Miss Yamamoto uses many layers of thin paint rather than the thick impasto characteristic of this "school." Her work conveys a sense of mystery, and is, perhaps, an indication of "more to follow."

Light Opera to Audition

Auditions for singing and acting roles in the November production of "Oklahoma" to be given by the Civic Light Opera will take place Sept. 17 at 2 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall. It will be open to all interested and talented non-Equity performers.

On Tuesday night a general meeting of the Civic Light Opera Association will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Dance Drama Center, 518 E. Fourth St. Those who expect to audition are invited to attend. They will be given the opportunity to meet the directors and learn about the parts available as well as other pertinent information about the forthcoming production. For information call Dance Drama Center.

Southern France Evacuating Art

A mass evacuation of art works is underway in the robbery-ridden south of France, The Insider's Newsletter has reported.

Tourists shopping for canvases on the Riviera are now being shown photographs of valuable paintings which have been crated for shipment to Paris vaults. Potential customers will get to see the original only if the dealer is convinced they're ready to buy.

In another move to minimize the wave of thefts, the Louvre Museum is removing all its masterpieces from its walls to install new mounting devices. When remounted, the paintings will have frames attached to the walls with time locks. Mountings of the Louvre's paintings have not been changed since World War II when they were specially hung for easy, speedy removal in case of emergency.

New Discs at Library

Among additions to the record section of the public library are: "Songs of the North and South," "Burl Ives Sings," "College Memories" with the Fred Waring Choir, and "The Best of the Weavers."

Opera selections include "Arias" with Anna Moffo, "A Mario Lanza Program," "Leontyne Price Sings Arias," "The Beloved Bjoerling," "Cesare Siepi in Romanze Italiane," and "Highlights From Die Walkure" with Helen Traubel and Lauritz Melchior.

Songs from many lands are represented in "Los Bandidos at El Toro," "Memories of Norway," "Florentine Carnival Songs," "Roamin' in the Gloamin'," "Irish Tenors," and "La Tour du Monde des Petits Chanteurs a la Croix de Bois."

Phonograph records may be borrowed for a two week period. A rental charge is made.

Show Will Be First in West

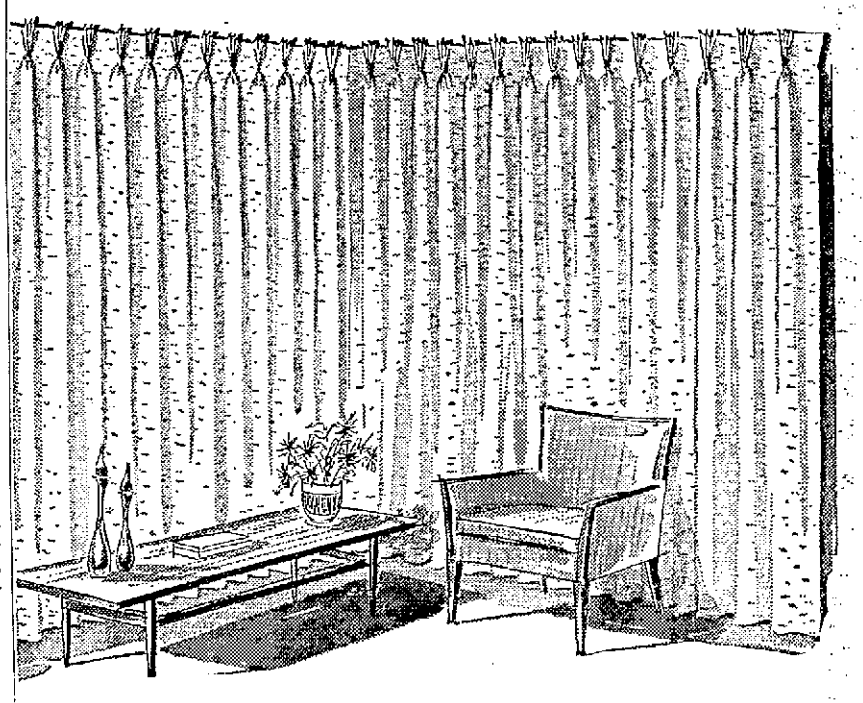

"American Business and the Arts," a collection of paintings owned by U. S. corporations, will be the featured exhibition at San Francisco Museum of Art from Sept. 14 to Oct. 15.

Among painters represented are Burchfield, Ernst, Gottlieb, Graves, Gris, Hartley, Hofmann, Kandinsky, Klee, Kline, Leger, Marin, Miro, O'Keefe, Picasso, Rothko, Sheeler, Tamayo and Weber.

OPEN TONIGHT Open Mon., Wed., Thurs. and Fri. 9:30 A.M. to 9:15 P.M.

N.Y. STADIUM CONCERT HISTORY RECOUNTED

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

Last week I quoted from an article by Minnie S. Guggenheimer, who founded the summer concerts at the New York City Lewisohn Stadium 43 years ago and who still runs them. Her story continues:—

"When I married a promising young lawyer named Charles S. Guggenheimer and was taken as a timid bride to live in the formidable Guggenheimer mansion at Seventy-third Street and Fifth Avenue, presided over by my rather austere and imposing mother-in-law, a new world of music was opened for me. For Eliza Guggenheimer was a "salonniere" in the grand manner and each Sunday afternoon at 1:30 some 20 to 30 carefully selected guests would sit down to a stuffed-squab luncheon and then file in stately procession up to the second floor music room.

Among them would invariably be a plump, young Neapolitan tenor named Enrico Caruso; a tall, gaunt Russian who spoke mostly in grunts and never smiled, whose name was Sergei Rachmaninoff; a promising young Austrian violinist named Fritz Kreisler; the suave and debonair Antonio Scotti, Josef Hofmann, Marcella Sembrich, Jacques Thibaud and a fellow with close, cropped blond hair and a silver-rimmed pince-nez who was particularly partial to the music of Prokofieff. He had to be. He wrote it!

ALL AFTERNOON they would sing and play and talk about music, and it was wonderful to be accepted into their gay and stimulating company. Caruso and I hit it off particularly well and one Sunday, when his accompanist couldn't come along, he asked me to play for him. I was young and foolish and rushed in where angels feared to tread. I sight-read my way through "La donna e mobile" and fancied the applause at the end was all for me!

Actually the Stadium concerts, which were to bring comfort to so many other troubled hearts through the years, were a source of personal consolation to me in a particularly dark hour of my own life. For I had just lost a lovely, little seven year old daughter when the conductor, Arnold Volpe, and his wife came to me for the first time with their blueprint for a series of outdoor concerts and asked my help in securing Adolph Lewisohn's permission for the concerts to be given in the Stadium bearing his name. My subsequent efforts, in collaboration with Mrs. Volpe, to raise the $10,000 needed for the initial two-week session, helped immeasurably to get me through a period of deep grief and despondency.

I OFTEN THINK back to a memorable night in 1942 when Jascha Heifetz was the Stadium soloist. The night before, a violent electrical storm had completely wrecked the orchestra shell and Heifetz had graciously agreed to play on an improvised platform without any overhead covering. He was in the midst of the Brahms violin concerto when the rains came again. When he reached the end of the first movement, he made as if to walk off the stage. But no one in the audience made the slightest move. They just sat there, completely unmindful of the weather, enraptured by the marvelous music.

Heifetz stared incredulously out at his audience. Then he picked up his precious "Strad" and announced: "If you can take it, I can." He played the concerto through to its conclusion, and it was one of the most glorious performances I have ever heard. At the end they gave him a deafening ovation, and he played encore after encore.

Music has proven itself for me and for a legion of stadium goers to be indeed the international language; the means of bringing people from many different walks of life and many different national, religious and socio-economic backgrounds into one common fellowship."

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Shock the Ingrates

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What would you do with a 15-year-old son who absolutely refuses to do any chores around the house? And with a husband who simply will not reprimand him?

This is my situation. And I'm almost going out of my mind. For it means that I'm worn out at the end of the day from doing the chores myself and from the constant wrangling with my son and losing my temper with my husband.

Help, please, a frantic, head - against - the - wall — MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER:

Write a letter to both of them. Leave it on the dining-room table. Then buy a ticket to some pleasant place not too far away. And in the letter tell them you've left and that you won't return until they both sign an agreement to carry out their responsibilities like decent members of the family.

A day or two of opening tin cans for themselves, tending to the laundry, etc., should bring them both around. But by that time perhaps you'll be enjoying yourself so much that you'll take a week or two longer. I sure would.—M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I have recently learned to play bridge, and, fortunately, here in the neighborhood are two other couples who are beginners, too.

But the trouble is they always want to play as a husband - and - wife team, while my husband and I have a knock-down drag-out every time we play together.

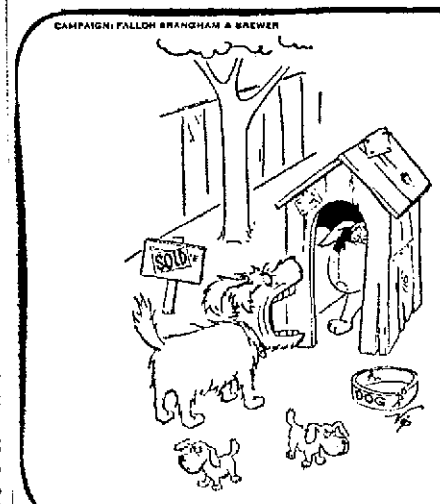

He has absolutely no card sense and leads his partner completely astray in the bidding, as he WON'T abide by rules. He thinks he knows more than Mr. Goren, or else he plays some other method, I don't know.

We could have such fun if he weren't so obstinate. What to do?—HENRIETTA B.

DEAR HENRIETTA B.:

I know lots of husbands and wives who wrangle over bridge. Either don't play together — or don't play. I honestly don't know any other way out.—M. M.

Luck, Skill Assure Bid

North and South held enough strength between them to justify a four-spade bid, but the fact that the king of clubs was opposite a singleton in dummy represented duplication of values, and South needed a good deal of luck to bring home his contract.

East won the opening club lead and shifted to the three of trumps. South wanted to ruff two clubs in dummy, but he saw that the defense was anticipating his idea and that he would not be able to achieve that objective. Another line of play was necessary. South counted three trump tricks and the king of clubs in his own hand, plus three heart tricks and one club ruff in dummy for a total of eight. Two diamond tricks were necessary also and he decided that he would have to get rid of the opponents' trumps before going after them.

ACCORDINGLY, South let the spade go around to dummy's jack and led the spade back. East rose with the ace and played a third spade which South won in his own hand.

Now he led a diamond. West played low and South put in the jack. When it held everything was "hunky-dory." South cashed three hearts, discarding a club, ruffed a heart back to his hand, discarded one of dummy's diamonds on the king of clubs and led another diamond.

Kleinholtz Exhibition Will Open

Twenty-four paintings by Frank Kleinholz will be featured in a one-man show at the Gallerie de Ville, Beverly Hills, for a month starting Monday.

While many celebrities, such as the Alfred Hitchcocks, Sol Lessers, Jose Ferrers and Paddy Chayefsky have Kleinholz paintings in their collections, this marks the first time that a full exhibition of his works will be on display in Southern California.

He is represented in permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, Phillips Memorial Gallery of Washington, D. C., and Museum of Modern Art in Tel Aviv.

* * * *

KLEINHOLZ didn't become an artist until he was 36, when he forsook an established law practice for the rather insecure life of a painter. In 1941 a painting was chosen for a Carnegie Institute of Fine Arts Exhibition, and since then he has had over 20 one-man shows in the U.S. and Europe.

Many of his canvases are of New York scenes, painted in a low-keyed but rich palette.

Arts of India in L.A. Display

Architecture and art in India is being featured in a special exhibition that opened last week at the Building Exhibit Center, 7933 W. Third St., Los Angeles.

Presented by Air-India, the display includes examples of old and new architecture, paintings by contemporary Indian artists, architectural sculpture, old textiles and brass pieces. Most of the material was collected by Mr. and Mrs. Jermeja Singh Hundal on a recent trip to India and flown to New York by Air India for this special showing.

The exhibition will continue through Friday.

Arthur E. Mann to Give Speech

Arthur E. Mann, member of AIA and partner in the firm of Raniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, will be guest speaker before the Women's Architectural League Monday.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard O. Prior, 6281 Marita Ave., at 8 p.m.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

An Eye for a City-to-Be

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.P-T Food Editor

He passed a corner way back in the "forties," and he never forgot that corner. It was the corner of Lakewood Boulevard and Carson Street. He returned in December 1945 and Chef of the Week Gene Nebeker today is president and owner of the Gene Nebeker Realty Co., 2735 E. Carson St.

He was born in Salt Lake City. Life for him was rather nomadic, and by the time he joined the Air Force in 1941, he had been in practically every state of the Union. Nebeker was a combat training instructor, which included judo and all-'round physical training. His main theaters of operation were Italy, Africa, Egypt and the Persian Gulf.

It was while he was escorting a troop train to our area that he, in a staff car, spotted the Lakewood area, and realized its potential.

STRANGE to say, however, his first point-of-landing was not Lakewood. It was—and we quote: "A 'six-bit' a night hotel on East Anaheim." The "six-bits" were earned cooking in the corner restaurant. In fact, he tended a service station and sold shoes, almost in-the-same-breath.

After his second breath he was a lease agent for a sign board company, sold office supplies, and set up his own restaurant. It was in '52, after he had served his "internship" with another real estate company, that he started his own.

That Nebeker has never lost his first dream of Lakewood is evidenced by the fact that he was instrumental in forming the Lakewood Junior Chamber of Commerce, and served as its charter president. On the board of managers for the Lakewood YMCA, he's also on the advisory council of Boy Scouts and a member of their 100 Club.

A member of the Lakewood Greater Chamber of Commerce, Nebeker has been on their "board" and a past "prexy." He has worked diligently on all civic and charity drives.

* * * *

ONE OF the initial organizers and a past president of the Lakewood Pan American Festival, he has served seven years on the board and as past president of the Long Beach Junior Football League. President this year of the district, Long Beach Board of Realtors, he's also a member of the legislative council, California Real Estate Association.

Otherwise . . . our "chef" finds time to include his wife and 11-year-old daughter in a swimming or tennis bout, ping pong or water skiing. He's an avid fisherman and golfer.

Nebecker says he "loves life," and that eating is his favorite pastime. His recipe is for Beef Burgundy a la Nebeker.

BEEF AND BURGUNDY
A LA NEBEKER

- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 1 lb. pearl onions
- 1 lb. button mushrooms

Saute these ingredients in Dutch oven for 5 minutes and then remove onions and mushrooms.

Combine and add to the juice in the Dutch oven:

- 1 tsp. meat extract
- 1 tblsp. tomato paste
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 2 bay leaves
- ½ tsp. thyme
- ½ tsp. Marjoram
- ½ tsp. parsley flakes
- 4 lbs. cubed beef dredged in flour

Braise the beef and while braising add 1 tablespoon soy sauce which seals in the meat juices and hastens braising. Remove meat from the Dutch oven and pour off excess fat. Then to meat, add 3 cups burgundy wine and cook beef cubes until tender or about 10 minutes. Combine all ingredients and simmer for few minutes.

Serve with baked cheese-stuffed potato browned in oven.

Gene Nebeker

OUR COVER

Tomorrow is the big day so Donald William Hambly, having reached the mature age of 5, puts aside Dodger cap and baseball glove and, understandably sober, carefully grooms himself for what is probably the greatest challenge in his life to date—the first day in kindergarten at David Burcham Elementary School. Puzzled about his seriousness, and possibly more than a little perturbed, is his cocker, Pancho. In case you're wondering about the reverse lettering on the calendar, this altogether appealing photograph was taken by Frank Lindgren, shooting into a large mirror. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Hambly Jr., 22 Via Di Roma Walk.

They Say 'Velkommen' in Solvang

Atterdag College was built in 1914, is now a tourist and guest center featured in Solvang's "Danish Days."

By Ryn H. Roberts

AS THE beginning of any settlement must come from the vision of pioneers, so the township of Solvang was born out of the dream of Rev. J. M. Gregersen, Rev. B. Nordentoft, and Peter P. Hornsyld. They believed a community might be established where old Danish customs could be kept alive.

They set out to prove it, by searching diligently for the ideal location, finally settling for 9,000 acres of the Rancho Carlos de Jonata, approximately midway between Santa Barbara and Santa Maria. In the fall of 1911 the first building was erected.

These pioneers saw at once the magic and beauty in a valley where one could look to snow-softened peaks, while standing in warm sunshine and lush fields. They decided to name the town "Solvang," meaning "sunny fields" or "sunny valley."

ATTERDAG College was built in 1914, named for the ancient Danish monarch, King Atterdag. Only Danish culture was taught students from almost every state. No textbooks were used, there were no examinations, nor diplomas, for this unusual folk school taught by spoken word only.

The Bethania Lutheran Church took longer to build. Seventeen years of labor went into this edifice, and Danes from all over the world contributed material, and furnishings. A wooden shoe maker in Wisconsin handcarved the altar, font and pulpit. Rare altar cloths were furnished by Danes in China, and hymn books came from Illinois. The bell in the church was once a part of an old ammunition factory.

During World War II Solvang received many refugees from Nazi invaded Denmark.

Atterdag College, now a tourist and guest center, has become the property of the Bethania Church. Solvang today has five elementary schools and a completely staffed high school.

Mission Santa Ynez, founded in 1804, is but a few steps from the center of Solvang. The Chumash Indians were schooled there.

The valley surrounding Solvang has become famous for its Aberdeen, Angus and Shorthorn beef. It is now the dairy center for Santa Barbara County, and helps supply cattle needs of Los Angeles as well.

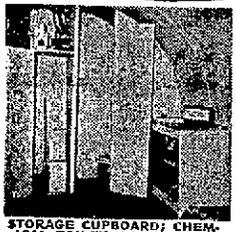

"DANISH DAYS," usually held once a year in Solvang, brings many tourists who visit colorful fronted shops, or drop in the famous Danish bakery to have their fill of coffee and cream-filled pastries. Cries of "Velkommen"

"Velkommen!" will ring in the streets of Solvang next month, as it does year around in this Danish bakery where tourists enjoy coffee and cream-filled pastry.

Song Born of Crisis

SO CLOSELY is the National Anthem associated with Independence Day that many Americans fail to realize the song was not written until long after the end of the war that made the United States a nation. Francis Scott Key was only 3 years old when the peace treaty of the Revolutionary War was signed Sept. 3, 1783, in Paris. Another 31 years were to elapse before he wrote the anthem, on Sept. 13, 1814.

Autumn, 1814, was a critical period in U. S. history. In August, the British had burned the Capitol, the White House and several other government buildings. Enemy ships stood in Chesapeake Bay.

A Dr. William Beanes had thrown three British refugees into jail. For this act he was arrested and taken on board a warship in Chesapeake Bay. John S. Skinner and Francis Key, an attorney, were granted permission to go out to the ship to intervene for Dr. Beanes.

THEY REACHED the ship and obtained the release for Dr. Beanes, but were not allowed to go ashore because preparations were under way for the bombardment of Fort McHenry. The English would not take a chance that their plans might be made known to the Americans. All that night Key watched desperately to see if the flag of 15 stars and 15 stripes was still flying. A flag which still can be seen in the Smithsonian Institute. Out of Key's desperation came the idea for "The Star Spangled Banner."

Key was too torn with anguish and despair to do more than stride the deck that night. But in the morning when the sun cut through the smoke and haze and he saw the flag still streaming, his gratitude rushed out in the immortal words of the anthem. He wrote part of the lyrics right there on the back of a letter he had been writing. He finished it in a Baltimore hotel after he had been released.

THE TUNE to which the words of this anthem were set came from England. It was composed by John Stafford Smithe and called "Anecreon in Heaven." It came to America about 1795 and became a favorite at banquets and social functions.

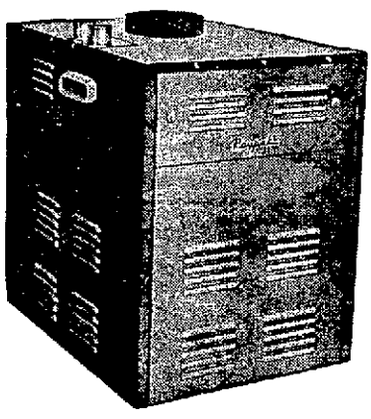

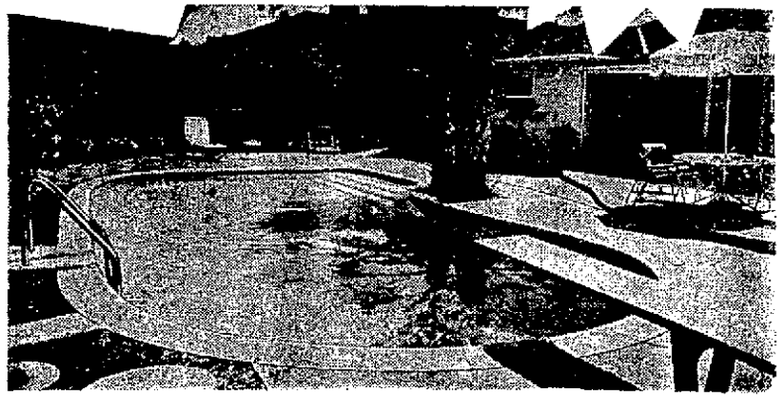

It is strange that with all its popularity the Star Spangled Banner had to wait more than 100 years before it became official. Herbert Hoover signed a bill making it the official National Anthem on March 3, 1936. Up to that time it had been recognized only by executive orders, and thus could have been cast aside at the whim of any President.

The anthem contains four stanzas but generally only the first is sung; occasionally the fourth. The middle stanzas are virtually unknown. The stanzas are long and the initial one is complete in itself except that it ends on a question. But we know the answer which is given in the last stanza anyway.

Corridor of fleecy curtains delighted Diana Paschall on visit to big store.

"Two Dianas!" said Diana, fascinated with reflection in the large mirrors.

"Like a merry-go-round," said Diana as she whirled with a bouffant petticoat.

Little Girl in a Big Girl's World

Photographs by Florence M. Harrison

Text by Fitz Bolton

DIANA PASCHALL, the 3½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Paschall of Torrance, recently made her first visit to a big department store.

To Diana the store was a vast playhouse, a playhouse for big girls, and she found the big girls' world a wonderful and exciting place. Diana visited almost all of the departments, but, woman-like, she was most interested in clothes and perfume. If Diana is like most women, this world will always retain much of the enchantment it now holds for her.

The last department Diana visited was the toy department, and here Diana lost all of her awe, dropping immediately back into her own little girls' world of dolls and slides. But it will be only a few years before Diana will enter the big girls' world as a big girl herself.

Diana lifts herself to the table top to get a better look at things to be found in the big girls' world.

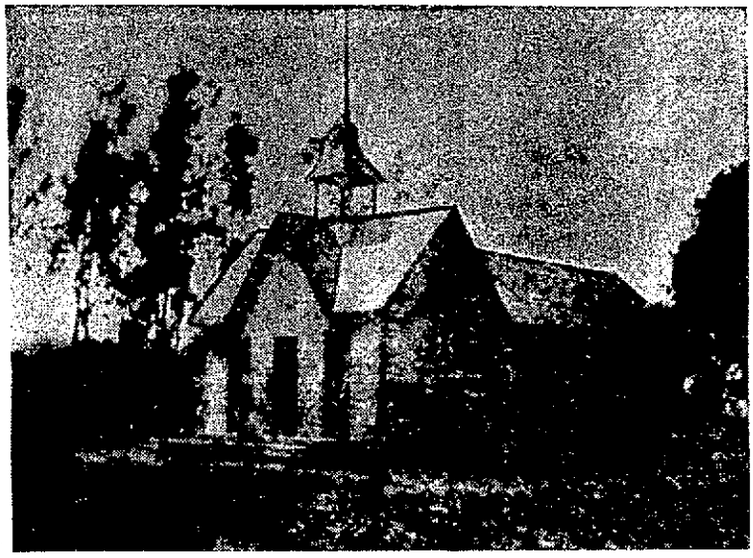

Sparkling beauty of the perfume counter seizes the attention of the young visitor who grows pensive for a few seconds in eye-level pose, then she's away to seek other wonders in this big realm of wonders.

Tired of adult things, Diana returned to kids' world and toy section slide.

First public school in Long Beach area was Los Cerritos District School, located at what is now 1415 W. Willow St. and constructed in early 1880s.

One-room building well remembered by a pupil, Katherine R. Bushong

Long Beach's First Public School

By Maymie R. Krythe

LONG BEACH has a charming pioneer resident who attended the first public school in this area—the Los Cerritos District School on W. Willow Street. She is Mrs. Charles T. (Katherine Robinson) Bushong, 1026 E. 5th St.

In 1882 she came by wagon with her parents, the R. B. Robinsons, from Modesto to Southern California.. At first the family went to "Forster City," near San Juan Capistrano. Because they could not get title to lands there, they were attracted to "Willmore City," at that time only recently surveyed by a Capt. Healey. That was the real beginning of Long Beach and the promoter, W. E. Willmore, was advertising for settlers.

Mrs. Bushong's father bought 20 acres at State Street and Perris Road (now Santa Fe Avenue), where they lived for five years. This farming district, near the present Silverado Park, was known as Cerritos Colony. Soon the various families (among them the Kincades, Wilhoits, Teels, Williamses, Tolles, Lewises, Saunderses, Prosises and others) realized the need for a school for their children.

In 1880, L. T. Hayes, of Wilmington, had bought 40 acres of the colony from Jotham Bixby and, on July 7, 1881, he deeded a site 270x290 feet, approximately an acre, for a school. This was rather "wild" country, with thickets of willow trees frequented by wildcats. Mrs. Bushong says that the boys used to throw stones up into the trees to make the "cats" hiss at them. One settler also declared that horse thieves had been hanged in this neighborhood.

SOME WILLOW TREES were cleared from the school grounds, and a plain, one-room frame building was erected. Some time afterwards, this was moved back on the lot and a larger room built in front of it. There was a well, with an old-fashioned pump on the grounds.

Robinson, Saunders and Lewis were the first trustees of this school district, which was bounded by the ocean, the Los Angeles River, the Dominguez School District and Alamitos Avenue. This pioneer Los Cerritos District School served nearby residents for several years as a center of activities, such as Sunday school and church services, evening entertainments, and socials.

Mrs. Bushong well remembers the teachers who taught there: Walter Cummings, Mrs. Zumwalt, the Misses Fitzmier, Remington and McLean. It was Walter Bailey who especially encouraged tree planting and used to give his pupils young trees as rewards of merit. Under his guidance, Mrs. Bushong planted the first eucalyptus on the grounds. Later, this tree and others were cut down when the street was widened. (Bailey afterwards taught the first high school classes in a building on Locust Avenue near Fourth Street before the first Long Beach high school was built at Eighth Street and American Avenue, now Long Beach Boulevard.

AT THE CLOSE of one school year, Mrs. Bushong received from her teacher, Carrie L. Remington, an autograph album, which she still has and treasures, as first prize for the highest standing and for perfect school attendance. In this old album her schoolmates wrote such sentiments as these:

"Of all the earthly music which reaches farthest (sic) into heaven is the beating of a loving heart."

"The truest music is found in making others happy."

"True friends are like diamonds, precious but rare;

"False ones, like autumn leaves found everywhere."

Mrs. Bushong recalls walking each day from her farm home about a quarter of a mile west and a mile north to school. En route she passed the home of the James Teel family.

A day she has never forgotten was Nov. 4, 1884, when Courtney Teel (an attorney in Los Angeles, and a brother of Ethel Teel Van Houton of this city) arrived at his parents' ranch home. He was the first boy born in the environs of Long Beach.

MRS. ROBINSON recalls that she and her friend, Callie Teel, were on their way home from school. Callie decided to stop at the Teel home to see her mother, who was staying with Mrs. Lulu Teel. Soon, Callie, quite excited, rushed out and told Katherine, "Lulu's got a baby! I'll go back and ask if we can see it." Soon the two little girls were in a very warm room, and saw just part of the swaddled baby's face. Outside again, they agreed that he wasn't too pretty!

The old school on W. Willow had had several names. When in the 1920s it was annexed to the Long Beach School District, it was "South Los Cerritos School," with grades 1 to 8. Later it became the "James A. Garfield," and finally the "Columbia," a special school for boys.

In May 1953, a $250 bond, the oldest outstanding bond of the city school district, was retired. It had been issued in 1913 by the old Cerritos School District. County Supervisor Burton Chace applied the match that destroyed the bond which had been drawing 5 per cent interest for 40 years.

THE BUILDING was to be abandoned as a school at the end of the term in 1948, and 11 men and women who had attended school there held a reunion. The former pupils sat in the modern seats, did sums, and drew a cartoon of the teacher on the board, making this "their goodby to the first public institution in Long Beach."

In 1959, the building was sold for a church building. Today the Willow Street Church of God occupies the site at 1455 W. Willow, a spot that deserves recognition in Long Beach history.

Descendant tells of life of famed frontier marshal

The Real Wyatt Earp

By Retta E. Ewers

Many views are taken of the career of Wyatt Earp and the kind of man he was, but he was a solemn type, seldom smiled, and was a rugged lawman.

WYATT EARP spent the early years of his life in Colton, Calif., in the home of his parents. His latter days were lived in the Colorado Desert, near Blythe. He was not the romantic adventurer portrayed on today's TV. Many who knew the marshal of Tombstone Territory thought he was a ruthless killer who hid behind the badge he wore.

On TV he is featured as a confirmed bachelor. In real life he was married twice, and his children and grandchildren live in the Southland today.

Morgan Earp, almost as famous as his brother, Wyatt, also left descendants, from one of whom we secured much of the information in this story. He lives in Riverside.

Before gaining fame as a lawman Wyatt had married. On his first job as marshal he took his wife with him to Tucson. He had two children, a boy and a girl. After the birth of the second child his wife died, leaving Wyatt with two small infants. Finding no one in Tucson to care for them he brought them to Santa Ana, and gave some friends $5,000 to care for them.

THIS FAMILY reared them as their own, even to changing their name. Today the woman lives in San Bernardino where she owns a dress shop. The son lives in Phoenix and operates a garage.

After the death of his wife, Wyatt apparently cared little for his own life and safety. He courted death in a hundred different ways and enforced the laws of his office perhaps more strictly than was necessary.

Later, Wyatt remarried, but had no more children so far as could be learned.

In 1875 he was appointed United States marshal of Tombstone Territory. He was joined by his two brothers, Morgan and Virgil, who became his deputies.

Simultaneously with the arrival of the Earps at Tombstone came Doc Holliday and Bat Masterson. The raw mining town now boasted of five of the fastest gunmen in all the West. They apparently had no desire to test their marksmanship against each other, and became known for the friendship that existed between them.

THE LAWLESS element strove against them, and many a battle was fought and men were killed, but the lawmen escaped with few injuries. The Clantons and the McLaurys, who operated nearby ranches, had long used their spreads to run stolen cattle across the Mexican border. They would push a herd across the line, rebrand them, bring them back into Arizona and perhaps sell them to the very men from whom they had been stolen.

It was this scheme that led to friction between the lawmen and the rustlers, and which culminated in the famous O. K. Corral fight which, in turn, brought the term "murderers" upon the heads of the lawmen.

After the Earps took office a new ruling became effective and mandatory. All men wearing guns had to remove them upon entering town and leave them in the saloon or at the hotel.

In trying to "relieve" Curly Bill Broceus of his weapons, Marshal White was accidentally killed. Virgil witnessed the shooting. Afterward he was appointed to fill White's post. At this time Tombstone boasted 65,000 population—reckless men out to find a quick fortune, either in the gold and silver mines, or via the saloons and gambling tables.

ONE DAY Doc Holliday rented a horse from the livery stable and rode off without telling anyone where he was going. The following morning the incoming stage was held up, robbed and the driver killed. One passenger swore he saw Doc Holliday in the group of robbers. When Doc arrived that evening he was arrested and placed behind bars.

Doc would not say where he had been, but denied any part in the holdup. "You should know me better than that, Wyatt," he said, hurt because of the mistrust of his friends.

"I don't believe you did, Doc," Wyatt replied. "That's why I'm going bail for you to the tune of $5,000. But why won't you tell us where you were?"

"Well—I suppose you'll learn sooner or later. I went to Tucson. Played poker all night. So—how could I have held up the stage when I was just leavin' Tucson?"

One day two Clanton boys and two McLaurys came riding into town. They had just dismounted at the O. K. Corral when the Earps and Doc Holliday approached them. Morgan and Doc carried shotguns. Wyatt had his Buntline Special, and Virgil had his six-gun.

THE FEUD between the lawmen and the cattlemen had been brewing for a long while.

"You been wantin' a fight," Wyatt called out. "Now you can have it."

"We got no guns 'ceptin' the rifles on the saddle," a McLaury spoke. "We ain't hankerin' for a fight."

"Get your hands up," Wyatt ordered, with guns trained on the rustlers.

An unwise movement was made by a Clanton and the firing began. One of the Clanton boys got away by dodging into the doorway of the pool hall. Wyatt shot Frank McLaury as Doc's gun blasted Tom McLaury. Morgan shot Billy Clanton. Later searching proved that they had lied about not being armed since hidden guns were found on all three of the dead men.

It was from Morgan's grandson we secured the account of Wyatt's early life. Morgan was shot from ambush, through an open window, while playing pool in the room through which the Clanton boy escaped.

Threats had been made by a Frank Stillwell to kill Morgan, and this was the type of shooting he would resort to. With him were two renegade Indians. All promptly fled the vicinity.

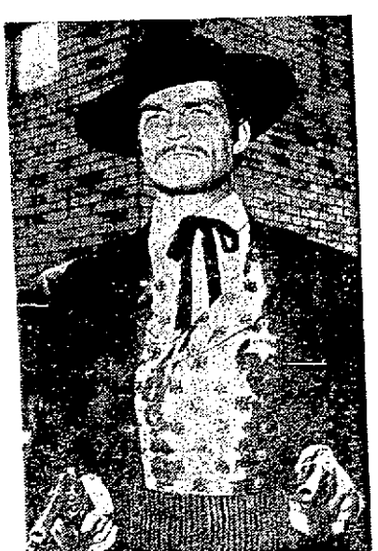

A posse was quickly formed and started after them. One Indian was found acting as chore boy at a camp. He was disposed of without much ado. The other Indian, with Frank Stillwell, was found near Tucson, out of Wyatt's district. A fight ensued in which both the Indian and Stillwell were killed.

THE SHERIFF of Tucson, who had no love for the Earps, promptly

Dr. Leroy Hardy's job of masterminding enrollment at LBSC is like

Riding a Tiger Bareback

By Dr. Robert S. Lorch
Assistant Professor Long Beach State College

ONE WHO thinks college professors are cold-blooded when it comes to flunking students should see how stony-hearted students can be when it comes to detecting the faults of teachers.

Like the Finch jury, each class ominously sizes up its professor as the course wears on hour by hour. Students have sensitive antennae for doing this, and they are stingier with an A (for accolade) grade than any professor ever thought of being. As for Fs, students think nothing of marching a quarter of the faculty into the gas chamber of failure.

A professor with eight years of professional training and all the academic degrees may be condemned after eight minutes on the platform by savvy students.

On the other hand, there are a few greats on every campus whom students worship, teachers who make the long grind tolerable and exciting.

DR. LEROY C. HARDY appears to be among the worshiped at Long Beach State College. Recently he was voted the most popular professor at LBSC by officers of the senior class (ruthless judges after four years of harassment), who awarded him a cup inscribed "for outstanding service." Sensitive antennae have been picking up the message from Dr. Hardy since he arrived on the campus eight years ago. "He's tops!" is the verdict.

At 33, the senior political scientist at the college in point of service, Dr. Hardy cannot be dismissed as a scheduled scholar. A scholar, yes, and admittedly he has secluded hours, for he is the author of many articles on political subjects, and has a very secluded private library with more than 1,000 books stacked from floor to ceiling. But there is evidence that he comes out into broad daylight from time to time. Last year he made more than 100 speeches to clubs and groups of every description all over the metropolitan area. Furthermore, his reputation for telling jokes and singing songs at the Sigma Pi fraternity (he's the adviser) is no longer secret.

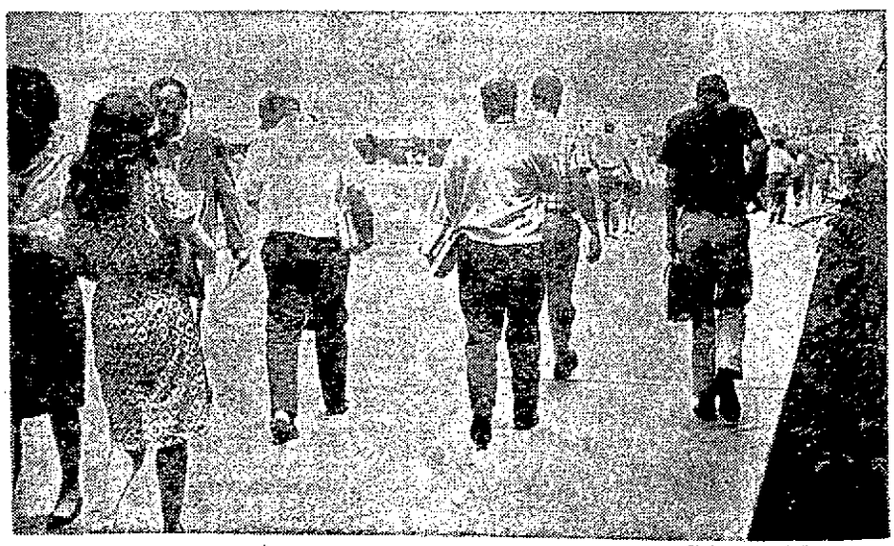

More than 10,000 students attend LBSC. By the most complex process known to man, this throng is enrolled each semester at "registration time" into nearly 2,000 classes. Registration week (Sept. 14-16) is the most critical, harried and maddening time in the life of the college. Mastermind and boss of this whole complicated affair is Dr. Hardy, whom Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, LBSC president, has appointed coordinator of registration. The job is like riding a tiger bareback. Hardy stays on top without unduly aggravating the great beast, a supreme test for administrative talent. Students no less than faculty are obliged for humane guidance through this time of misery.

LBSC senior class trophy for outstanding service is received by Dr. Leroy C. Hardy, associate professor of political science, from Patsy Funck of the class.

DR. HARDY played a key role this year in carving the face of California into 80 assembly districts. This job took

Dr. Hardy masterminds the incredibly complex job of enrolling 10,000 students in 2,000 classes, and the critical week of registration is almost at hand once more.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

It's the Individual Touch Does It

Filigreed wooden shutters placed above the stove close off the family room of the Harold Natheson home from the work area. Low chairs serve a bar along paneled wall.

By Stella George

WHEN is a tract home not a tract home? When it has the small individual touches that tailor it to the owners' needs, it truly becomes a custom-built house, regardless of size. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Natheson, 13341 Danvers St., Westminster, is such a home.

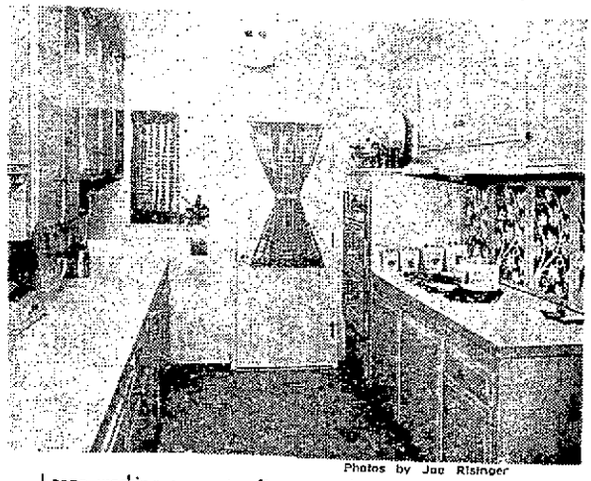

During the time the house was being built, the new owners made certain changes that would customize it to their particular preferences. For example, washer and dryer were supposed to stand beside the sink. The Nathesons desired to have these appliances in the garage, and used the resulting space for additional sink and work area.

Another cabinet in the kitchen was made larger to accommodate the stove which now looks more like an attractive accessory than a very necessary appliance. Further changes in the original plan include a front door of stained glass and natural wood, a shutter door between the living room and hall, and extensive and highly decorative stone work in the front and side of the home.

A MINOR, but very important change was the conversion of an intended broom closet between the kitchen and family room into a compact pantry with horse-shoe shaped shelves. Everything inside can be seen and obtained easily.

The entry, although small, has touches of luxury. Apart from the stained glass door, there is fine marble on the floor, and a tall artificial willow tree stands in one corner, its trunk and branches of particular interest to visitors because, through a strange quirk of fate, there is evidence that it has tried to grow again. Flowers are, of course, completely artificial.

The living room is done in French Provincial with a touch of the Orient. Twin chairs flank the fireplace. They are large, comfortable and quilted, featuring an orchid flowered print. The couch is orange, with touches of orange elsewhere in the room in the form of pillows and flowers. An heirloom needlepoint chair is near a marble-topped fruitwood table. Like the family room adjoining, glass doors open onto the patio in the rear.

THE FAMILY ROOM has a couch and TV, and low chairs serve a bar which faces the kitchen. Filigreed wood shutters, extremely decorative, can be drawn above the bar to afford privacy in the kitchen. They are just above the stove itself. The pantry mentioned before adds to the convenience of the kitchen area.

Accessories add interesting touches to the family room. For example, the coffee table is hammered brass. A rattan server holds an heirloom samovar of gleaming copper.

The boys' room has typical necessities and many extras. The headboard above one bed is actually a storage place for treasures — with pegboard doors performing their function well.

A roof covers the wide patio area beyond the living room and den. The cement slab is practical for outside entertaining. Beyond the slab is a wide garden.

The entire home represents careful attention to detail.

Stone trim in front and on the side adds an individual touch to exterior of otherwise regular design home.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Ten-Rooms-Plus on a Budget

Rental apartment upstairs is one of the special features of the narrow-lot, one-and-a-half-story home. It has six rooms and 1,514 square feet of space on the first floor.

By David L. Bowen

THIS HOUSE was designed for a man with a problem common to the vast majority of home-seeking Americans: limited financial resources and a growing family.

It was built at 143-08 Oak Ave. in the Flushing section of New York City by John Bartone, who could do something more than dream about the kind of home he would like to build. He is a member of the staff of Samuel Paul, House of the Week architect, who produces dozens of residential designs each year.

The home has 10 rooms on its first and second floors. Bartone had the home put up and both of these levels finished for $23,175.

"BECAUSE of Mr. Bartone's experience and the fact his work is connected with the building trade, savings were possible in his case which could not be duplicated by the average person," Paul explained. "However, I would estimate this saving at about 10 per cent — which would bring the price for the average man to about $25,500. If only the main level was finished, the figure would drop considerably."

The problem of design started with land. In the metropolitan New York area, building lots are hard to come by and their cost skyrockets with size. The Bartones purchased a 40 by 100 foot site. The house had to fit it.

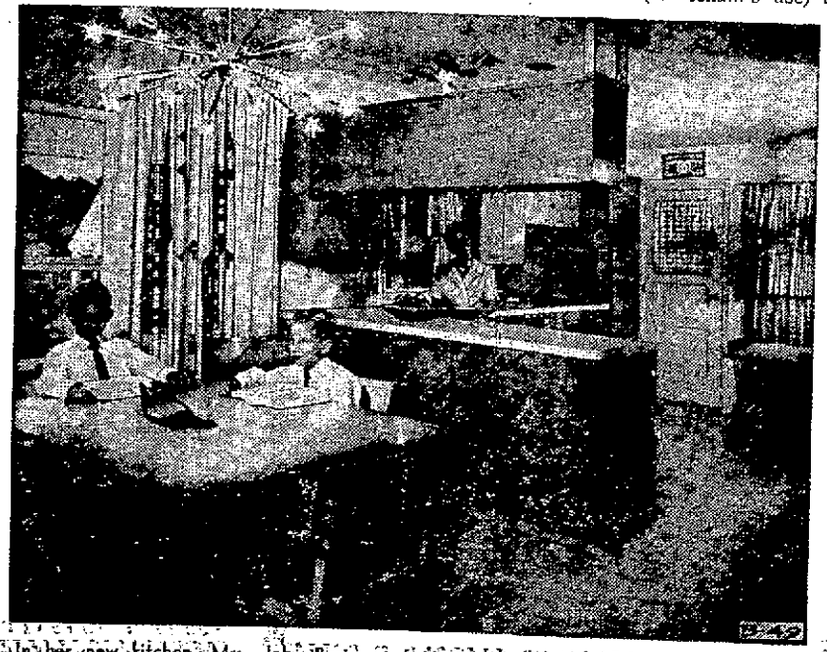

THE GENERAL specifications were three bedrooms, large kitchen, dining room, living room, two baths and garage. Although space was to be provided for a game room and a study, these could be left unfinished originally. An additional requirement was space for expansion should there be an increase in the size of the family.

B-49 in the House of the Week series is the solution to this list of demands. It is a narrow-lot story and one-half, with basement raised high enough to make basement rooms completely comfortable. The attic floor is available for family use at some time in the future, but as an especially welcome bonus can be developed immediately as an income-producing apartment. Thus while the owner's family is small and rental income desirable, the house can be made to help pay for itself. As the owner's requirement for space increases and his need for extra income decreases, he can take over the second floor.

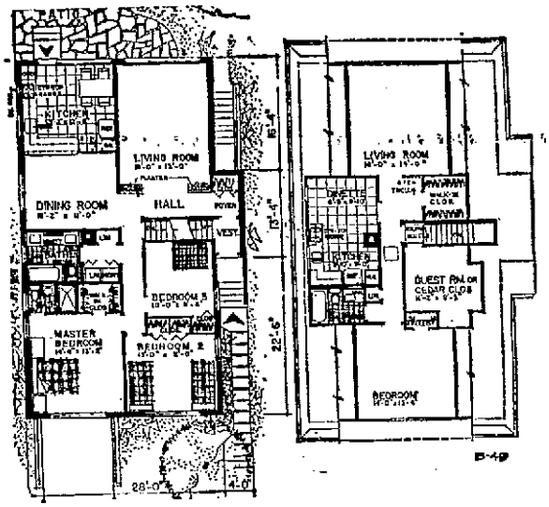

The over-all dimensions are 32 feet in width by 52 feet, 2 inches in depth. There are six rooms on the first floor, another four on the roomy attic level, and a large playroom and study or hobby room in the basement.

LIVING AREA on the first floor is 1,514 square feet with another 895 on the second floor.

The main entrance is at the side, about halfway back from the front. The entrance has an enclosed vestibule serving both the apartment stairs (for tenant's use) and the foyer of the main living quarters on the first floor.

In her new kitchen, Mrs. John Bartone of New York City can oversee the home's work of two sons. Her husband is on staff of House of the Week Architect Paul.

Bedrooms in this section have been placed towards the front of the house, permitting both kitchen and living room to overlook the rear yard.

The large master bedroom has its own bath complete with stall shower and deep walk-in closet. There are two other bedrooms for children served by the main bath. Just in front of the main bath, a laundry is concealed behind a folding partition to save the housewife steps down to the cellar.

ON THE SECOND floor, Bartone chose to make a one-bedroom apartment with a kitchen-dinette unit and a large living room. He reserved the small room opening on the stairs for use as a storage closet and expects to finish it at a later date as a guest room or additional bedroom.

The basement is accessible either through the main apartment or an outside entrance at the rear. It contains a large playroom, storage wall, a heater and laundry room, lavatory, study and one-car garage. The heater room is spacious enough to provide laundry space for the tenant, if he should desire it.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-49.

Playroom and study or hobby room, outside entrance are features of basement level.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Soda stand helps assure happy play days at home.

TODAY'S PROJECT: A back yard soda stand for small children which can be stored during winter months.

WILLIAM MEYER-RIECKS, Huntington, N. Y., designer, explains:

One of childhood's sheer joys is setting up for business in your very own lemonade stand. And naturally, the more realistic the stand, the more fun it is to play grown-up.

The Junior Soda Stand shown in the illustration has important advantages in addition to its real-life atmosphere. The basic construction is tempered hardboard nailed and glued to simple 1x2 frames. These panels—front, sides and roof—are then bolted together at the four posts. The result is completely solid, yet it takes only a few minutes to remove the bolts and store the entire unit away in sections for the winter.

Gay colors and the scalloped hardboard fringe at top insure that the stand will be an attractive addition to any backyard. Scaled to little people, it is 4 feet wide and 3 feet deep. Headroom at the front is roughly 5 feet.

To order, specify Junior Soda Stand Plan S-20 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Build This Relaxing Chaise

COMFORTABLE outdoor chaise that will yield hours of ease will reward well the home workman who expends the small amount of energy necessary to build it.

Any inexperienced person can build the chaise, and be assured it's really comfortable. You will notice it has a contour-shaped seat to fit all postures. The back is adjustable, the wheels make it easy to move and the wood is stock lumber available everywhere. The pattern for building the chaise is full size.

To order, specify full-sized chaise pattern No. 125 and send name and address and 75 cents in coin to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Amanda Blake, better known as Kitty of CBS television series, "Gunsmoke," demonstrates easily built chaise.

Upton Sinclair, 83, at It Again!

By Vera Williams
Independent Press-Telegram Book Editor

AT THE AGE of 83, Upton Sinclair still is turning out books!

The Pulitzer prize-winning novelist, former Long Beach resident who for some years has lived in Monrovia, is the author of a new novel, not of muck-raking but of conventions, "AFFECTIONATELY, EVE" (Twayne, ($3.75.)

Helping a friend move, Sinclair found on a shelf an old tin box the size of a small crackerbox, wired and sealed with wax. It contained, explained the owner, a series of letters she wrote Georgia friends and relatives when as a girl she went to New York to commission a statue for the Daughters of the Confederacy and remained to pose for the artist—"not in the altogether," she explained hastily.

Sinclair laughed heartily over the naive letters and persuaded her to let him publish them. She protested there must be no clues to her identity "because what would Mama and Papa think?"

Sinclair assured her they probably already guessed the worst.

Eve's identity is concealed—and Sinclair asks readers of Affectionately, Eve, not to even try to guess who she is.

The letters, in chatty, breathless style recount the adventures of the "Georgia peach" in Greenwich Village, her struggles with snow, with artists, with swains. The book ends with a wedding, and Eve's Mama and Papa must have thought it was about time!

No one, perhaps even Upton Sinclair himself, knows how many books he has written, but it is established that he is America's most widely translated author. His works appear in 60 languages in 55 countries. He was nominated for the Nobel prize and won the Pulitzer prize for "Dragon's Teeth," one of the Lanny Budd series which he started after he was 60 years old.

CLIFFORD IRVING
Turbulent cattle and mining country of 19th Century New Mexico is the scene of Irving's new novel, "THE VALLEY," the struggle for power in a family (McGraw-Hill, $4.95).

MENCKEN, the correspondent, had become a legend long before his death. A busy man, he nevertheless answered every letter within 24 hours after he received it. Fascinating epistles are gathered in "LETTERS OF H. L. MENCKEN" selected and annotated by Guy J. Forgue (Knopf, $7.95).

Included are letters to Theodore Dreiser, James Joyce, Louis Untermeyer, Carl Van Vechten, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Sinclair Lewis, Upton Sinclair, Edgar Lee Masters.

Russia Today

In "HOUSE WITHOUT A ROOF," Maurice Hindus, who knows Russia and the Russian people intimately, writes about the country as it is today, 43 years after the Revolution (Doubleday, $4.95).

Born in Russia, Hindus came to this country in 1905, returned there as a journalist and war correspondent, and has visited the Soviet Union twice since the death of Stalin, once in 1958 and again last year.

"House Without a Roof" is a book about accomplishments, cynical betrayals, selfless idealism, ruthless aggrandizement, ceaseless crusades against religion.

Throughout the pages, Soviet humanity passes in review—men, women, peasants, workers, intellectuals, Usbecks, Jews, Siberians, Cossacks and the restless and questioning younger generation.

The reader discovers a new Siberia, a country of vast natural resources and rugged people, of hunters and fishermen, of Canadian muskrat and American mink and of a drug to combat sexual impotence.

Above all else, "House Without a Roof" is a human story of four decades of turmoil and today's results—a valuable book for the present and the future.

A PHASE of the birth of Israel written from a new viewpoint is the novel "WHAT SHIP? WHERE BOUND?" by Shepard Rifkin (Knopf, $3.95). The viewpoint is that of the ill-assorted crew of the shabby ship Felicidad running displaced persons through the British blockade to Palestine. Despite the crude nature of the men who manned the old ship in America, they incredibly made her almost seaworthy and before the voyage to the Promised Land was over had established themselves as heroes.

Under the disparaging circumstances less earthy and expedient men just wouldn't have accomplished the feat of transporting 600 refugees from Europe to Palestine in 1947, the author makes clear before the end of the suspenseful story. A beautiful touch is Levine, member of the crew and an old sailor at the end of his days, disguising himself as a refugee to join the immigrants to the borning country of Israel.

THE SORDID TALE of what happens when four GIs assault a 16-year-old German girl isn't calculated to make the State Department jump with glee. Rather, it is fodder for Communist propaganda. But you may be interested in "TOWN WITHOUT PITY" by Manfred Gregor (Random House, $3.95).

Story of American Firearms

ASSEMBLYMAN Charles Edward Chapel of Inglewood, who for 40 years has collected historical guns and has written about them a good deal of that time, is the author of "GUNS OF THE OLD WEST: The Definitive Book on the Firearms That Opened the Frontier and Conquered the American West" (Coward-McCann, $12.50).

Chapel points out that from 1775 to the end of the 19th Century—from the opening of land beyond the Alleghenies to the securing of most territory to the West Coast—the story of American firearms is an integral part of our country's history.

"Guns of the Old West" describes and illustrates these weapons: shoulder arms, hand guns, percussion and cartridge, military and private. In addition, it tells the exciting stories of men who needed rifles to provide food and furs, weapons to protect them from hostile Indians, guns to protect their homes in brawling settlements.

Special attention is given the Kentucky rifle in the Revolution and the War of 1812; the repeating rifle in the Civil War and Indian hostilities; the Sharp's rifle and the great buffalo hunts; the Colt revolver, standby of cowboy and outlaw, and the Winchester rifle, and the opening of the West.

You Can Influence Others With Your Thinking!

TRY it some time. Concentrate intently upon another person seated in a room with you, without his noticing it. Observe him gradually become restless and finally turn and look in your direction. Simple—yet it is a positive demonstration that thought generates a mental energy which can be projected from your mind to the consciousness of another. Do you realize how much of your success and happiness in life depends upon your influencing others? Is it not important to you to have others understand your point of view—to be receptive to your proposals?

Demonstrable Facts

How many times have you wished there were some way you could impress another favorably—get across to him or her your ideas? That thoughts can be transmitted, received and understood by others is now scientifically demonstrable. The tales of miraculous accomplishments of mind by the ancients are now known to be fact—not fable. The method whereby these things can be intentionally, not accidentally, accomplished has been a secret long cherished by the Rosicrucians—one of the schools of ancient wisdom existing throughout the world. To thousands everywhere, for centuries, the Rosicrucians have privately taught this nearly-lost art of the practical use of mind power.

This Free Book Points Out the Way

The Rosicrucians (not a religious organization) invite you to explore the powers of your mind. Their sensible, simple suggestions have caused intelligent men and women to soar to new heights of accomplishment. They will show you how to use your natural forces and talents to do things you now think are beyond your ability. Use the coupon below and send for a copy of the fascinating sealed free book, "The Mastery of Life," which explains how you may receive this unique wisdom and benefit by its application to your daily affairs.

Solvang to Celebrate

—meaning "welcome"—are to be heard from the gaily costumed natives. Women in full skirts, tiny bonnets, men in knee breeches, and short coats, whirl about the streets.

The celebration is usually opened with an Aebleskive breakfast on Copenhagen Drive. Music and dancing follow, ending with evening programs in Atterdag Bowl.

During the winter celebration of Fastelavn's Fest, which marks the advent of Lent, children (according to old tradition) trim branches with gaily colored ribbons, fashion them into switches, and lightly switch their parents.

In the past, men had their part in ring-riding, pounding down a course on horseback, they would spear rings from a pole. It is said the idea of brass rings on a merry-go-round stemmed from this game.

However, this dangerous game has now been eliminated from the program, replaced by another contest: Slaa Katten ad Tonden (hitting the cat out of the barrel). The first man to break open the barrel is proclaimed King of the Festival. Even this sport has been modified from ancient days when a live cat would leap from its wooden prison. Instead a treat of oranges, apples and candy is the reward.

TOURISTS who hoped to participate in "Danish Days" last year were doomed to disappointment, as the annual celebration was not held. According to the town council, Solvang will commemorate its 50th anniversary this year on Sept. 22-24.

There are modern motels and hotels for guests wishing to stay for the festivities. Nearby Lake Cachuma provides areas for trailers or camping. Reservations may be made in advance for accommodations in the town of Solvang.

If you wish to visit this olden-modern town as well as Atterdag College, whose rooms still echo the whispering of ancient doctrines once taught there, then follow Highway 101 from Los Angeles to the turnoff on Highway 150, over San Marcos Pass, and down into the lush Santa Ynez Valley.

You will know you have reached your destination when you hear the cries of "Velkommen to Solvang."

him by air and auto to Sacramento 30 or 40 times, where he served as chief consultant to the state assembly committee on elections and reapportionment.

Even the most popular professor has detractors. Some of his critics assert that he soiled his hands helping the Democrats "gerrymander" the state. His answer: "Ten years ago I helped the Republicans." His critics say he is too busy in practical politics to be a good teacher. His answer: "To do a good job teaching government you need some experience in it." His critics say he should play less politics and have more regard for ideals. His answer: "Ideals aren't much good unless you play politics to put them over." His critics say he has many foes. His answer: "Anyone who does anything has foes."

His foes do not include the senior class of 1961. Dr. Hardy says he'll keep their trophy on his desk.

Baked stuffed halibut steaks make a tasty, attractive main dish for dinner. For 4 servings, 1¼ to 1½ pounds.

Variety for Halibut

By Mildred K. Flanary

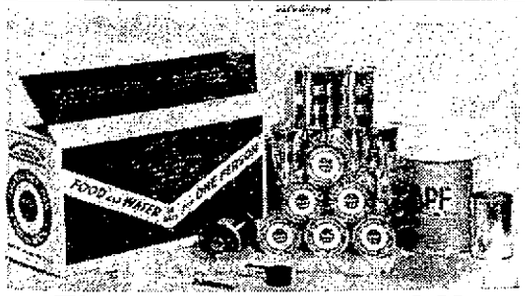

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

HALIBUT steaks, baked and stuffed, are delicious and attractive. If the steaks are small, plan on four whole steaks for four servings. If the steaks are large, four half steaks may be sufficient. An easy rule to remember is that one pound of halibut will serve three. So for the recipe below, buy from one and a quarter to one and a half pounds for serving four.

Baked, Stuffed Halibut Steaks

4 small halibut steaks, or 4 large steak halves, fresh or frozen
6 tblsps finely chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ tsp. dried marjoram crumbled
¼ tsp. dried thyme
1 tsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
3 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup finely chopped toasted almonds
¼ cup milk
paprika

If halibut is frozen, let thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Place two steaks on bottom of a greased shallow ovenware serving dish. Saute onion in butter or margarine. Add herbs, salt, pepper, bread crumbs and almonds. Mix well and moisten with milk. Spoon part of stuffing over fish and make tiny balls from remaining stuffing to place around fish. Cover fish in dish with remaining fish steaks. Brush tops with lemon butter (2 teaspoons lemon juice in ¼ cup melted butter), retaining some for basting while cooking. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven 375 degrees 30 minutes. Serve garnished with lemon slices and sprigs of parsley. Makes 4 servings.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give brief genealogy on DAILY and DAYLEY.—M.D., G.M., Long Beach.

M.D., G.M.: DAILY and DAYLEY are from the Gaelic Irish "Dalac." This historic name has the unusual interpretation "Frequenter of Assemblies," indicating a family progenitor who daily attended religious, political or philosophical discussions. Dalac's sons assumed the clan name O'Dalac, later converted to Daily and Dayley. Dalac was a descendant of Maine, son of Niall of the Nine Hostages, great 10th century Irish king. The O'Dalacs were natives of Westmeath in the center of Erin. The Daily coat-of-arms has three silver crescents on a blue shield; that for Dayley has three gold buck-deer heads on a red background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like to know about TOMANY. —H. W., Long Beach.

H. W.: TOMANY is an American spelling of the Italian name Tomani. The source was Tomasini, abbreviated by omission of several letters, meaning "Little Thomas." The Biblical "Thomas" meant "Twin." The Tomani coat-of-arms from Milan, Italy, has a silver castle in the center of a blue shield. At the top of the shield are three golden fleurs-de-lis below a red cross.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the genealogy on KENADY and CANADAY.—Mrs. E. L., G. R., Long Beach.

E. L., G. R.: KENADY and CANADAY are spelling variations of KENNEDY. Kennedy had its roots in both Scotland and Ireland. The ancient Gaelic meaning of these names is disputed. All are variations, however, of the word "Cinneide" meaning "Helmetedhead," or from "Ceann-Eidigh" meaning "Ugly Chief." Scotch Kennedys descended from Roland Kennedy of Ayrshire who in 1250 was declared "Caput totius progeniei suae" or "Sole head of his progeny." In all, 24 generations of Kennedys have lived on the family estate at Carrick, Ayrshire. The clan coat-of-arms has three black crosses and a red chevron on a silver shield. Irish Kennedys were the Clan O'Cinneide of County Clare, all descended from Cinneidig, nephew of King Brian Boru who died in 1014. Adam Canaday was a south Pennsylvania land owner in 1711.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on PETTIT.—Mrs. D. L., J. P., Long Beach.

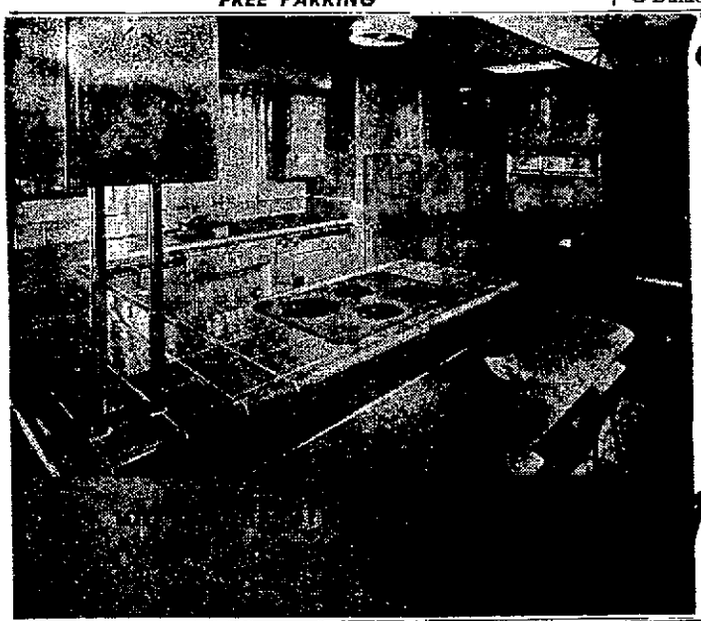

D. L., J. P.: PETTIT had its inception when the Norman-French conquered England in 1066. The source, from the French word "Petit," meant "of short stature." The 13th century Hundred Rolls parchments list Robert Petet, Hamo Petit and Roger Petyt. There were no established rules for spelling at that time. The Pettit coat-of-arms has three silver leopard heads on a blue shield. Pettit descendants were early 18th century settlers of Long Island, New York.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze MILLER. — E. M., Long Beach; D. M., Wilmington.

E. M., D. M.: MILLER was a term applied to the miller of flour in medieval Britain. Later it was assumed as a surname. Early day millers took pride in handing down their trade name to descendants, for they were honored for their profession by fellow townsmen and their king. The Miller coat-of-arms has three red wolf heads on an ermine covered shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish history on JASINSKI and JASIONEK.—Mrs. J. H., Mrs. F. J., Long Beach.

J. H., F. J.: JASINSKI and JASIONEK both refer to ancestors from Slavic central Europe. Jasinski is Polish, translating as "From the place of the oak trees." Jasionek is from Yugoslavia, with a similar meaning, "Son of the resident at the oak forest."

Potions, Posies and Folklore

By Betty Hardesty

MODERN NAMES of many Southland flowers reflect their folklore sources as Old World herbs.

Pansy comes from the French "pensee" given the tricolored violet of old Europe. It is still also sometimes called Heartsease from a concoction made from it to cure pangs of love. If the sad lover "was going into a decline" she was also fed an extract of Rue, the appropriate name given the herb with pink and white flowers.

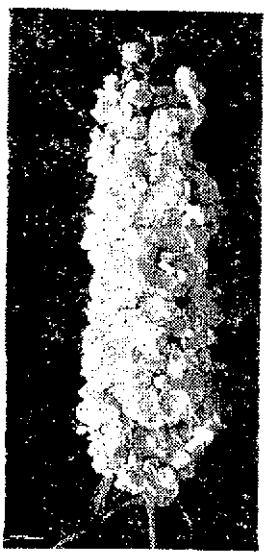

Folklore, however, gave digitalis, still used for serious heart ailments, the fanciful name of Foxglove which was first written in old English "Foxes glofa." These tall spikes of rose, white and lavender have had medical importance for ages.

THE NAME "stock" is only a few centuries old, having been derived from the resemblance of the stiffly flared petals to the distinctive collars called stocks which men wore in Shakespeare's time. Both the stock and wallflower are members of the mustard or crucifer family of plants. The word "crucifer" refers to the cross-like appearance of the four petals of the wild type. The common wild mustard as well as the condiment got its name from the must or new, unfermented wine with which it was mixed in preparation.

Lice and fleas plagued ancient and medieval people so they used the dried heads of the chrysanthemums to obtain pyrethrum known to Southlanders in garden insect sprays. South American Cholos Indians who live in the Andes still rub fresh mums on their skins to control such insects and relieve "nervousness" in infants.

Pansy (or pensee) once was used to cure the lovelorn.

Stocks drew their name from similarity to men's collars.

PINCUSHION flowers are obviously named for their full-of-pins appearance and prickly seed pods. But the species name, Scabiosa, is a linguistic legacy of that lusty period of history when bathing was a luxury and considered an affectation. It is understandable that this plant was cultivated as a cure for the "scabies" or itch.

Without her bath, a lady used the sweet-scented orris root both as a perfume and a dusting powder. The word "orris" is a corruption of our modern word iris. There is a long list of flowers which were first cultivated for perfume and toilet water as a substitute for soap and water. There were also many plants which, when rubbed in water, made soap-like lather. Europeans had a flower species of Saponaria or soapwort which came to America with them and is seen most often today as a roadside flowering weed called Bouncing Bet. To appreciate the source of this name calls for imagination. A dictionary of 18th century English slang explains it as being called formerly Bouncing Betsy because of its association with the family wash. It is associated with a rear view of a laundress bent over a washboard vigorously scrubbing clothes.

Here's Danger!

Nervous motorists and motorists pulling trailers should definitely not travel over the Big Oak Flat Road to Yosemite, the Automobile Club of Southern California cautions. Heavy and rough construction is in progress (State Rt. 120).

Regardless of construction, however, motorists should be aware that east of Jacksonville the road becomes slow and winding to the park boundary. From the boundary, the next eight miles to Crane Flat is a very narrow oiled road with tight, curves and steep grades.

TOKYO.

". . . any special health advice needed for a round-the-Pacific cruise?"

CRUISE SHIPS' doctors advise all passengers on health precautions from port to port. Prescription pharmacies with American drugs are in all ports.

A cholera series should be taken—the Far East epidemic seems to be controlled. But nobody knows what's going on in China or what might spill over the borders again.

You need a smallpox vaccination. With a certificate dated within the last three years — to land in some countries and absolutely to get back into the U. S.

Have your local Public Health office validate your doctor's signature. I went into Australia without it once. And they bayonetted me again at the airport.

An odd thing: Any kind of drug is sold without prescription in Japan and the Philippines.

". . . the places to get clothing made in Hong Kong?"

THERE ARE dozens and dozens of tailors. I use Original Jimmy Chen on the Kowloon side. I'd avoid anybody who says they'll do a suit in 24 hours.

This is a myth. They do it in 24 hours and it looks like it.

Allow 5 days and 5 fittings minimum.

". . . a hotel in Manila if we stay overnight?"

The Manila Hotel on the Luneta Park always seemed best to me. Quite a line of jumping night clubs along Dewey Boulevard nearby. Open 24 hours. Try one about breakfast time.

". . . can we get American cigarettes?"

BEST BUY will be on your cruise ship. Shouldn't be more than 25 cents a package. (They sell them to the crew for 10. No tax.)

". . . what to do during two-day layover in Yokohama?"

I'd pack a small bag and catch the electric train for Tokyo — one hour. Yokohama's not much of a town unless you're a seaman.

Get a reservation first by phone. Tokyo's always crowded. The new Hotel New Japan, the older Imperial, or the Nikkatsu are all good and have English-speaking help.

". . . any good buys in Tahiti or Samoa?"

I NEVER SAW anything except some good shell necklaces and rakish, some-enchanted-evening straw hats.

There's some good tortoiseshell work in Suva, Fijis.

"Do I need a visa for Yugoslavia? . . . What about hotels?"

You need a visa. Columnist Herb Caen flipped over Dubrovnik. He stayed at the Argentina and liked it fine. Best time to go is April to October for the coast. In Belgrade the best hotels are the Metropol, Majestic, Moskva or Excelsior, $7 to $10 a day, American plan.

For yachtsmen who want to take a look at the Southern Cross, and learn advanced navigation at the same time, Matson has a special cruise to the South Seas and Australia, leaving November 3. It's led by America's Cup winner, Captain Fred Lawton.

Here's a new gadget that sounds interesting — Tape Tours in Honolulu. Rent a small, open car equipped with a tape recorder. A map marks the places where you operate the tape for background information on high lights of the drive. Tropical Tape Tours, 328 Hawaiian Ave., Honolulu, has the information.

Artist Retreat in Taxco

Perched atop a winding side street about Taxco's main plaza is the home of the Mexican town's most prominent artist, Fidel Figueroa.

The house is furnished with antiques and early dated art objects with the main salon used as a studio. Here visitors weave among stacks of portraits and Mexican landscapes done in vivid oils and water colors.

Although now partly modernized, the home's unique old architecture is still apparent. Originally built during one of Mexico's uprisings, the house had 26 rooms, two windows, and contained a maze of passages and strange constructions.

Because the house is said to have been built by forced labor, Mexicans have labeled it La Casa de Las Lagrimas, The House of Tears. Symbolizing this name, a painting entitled the Madonna of Tears hangs above the household shrine. This tragic but beautiful madonna weeps what are actually exquisite opals set into her cheeks.

Up and Down the Vineyard Trail

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Travel Editor

IN 1769, at Mission San Diego near the Mexican border, Father Junipero Serra planted the first vineyard in Western America.

Today the California vineyard trail stretches for more than 800 miles, from the sandaled padre's first mission to a picturesque old winery in the mountains of Humboldt County — 461,890 lush acres in 48 counties.

Along this time-worn trail are more than 270 wineries which produce 85 per cent of all wine made and consumed in the United States. Some are within easy driving distance from Long Beach and a visit to any one of them at this season of the year—particularly if you like wine—is a pleasant experience.

GENERALLY SPEAKING, wineries easiest to reach from here are more or less grouped in the Cucamonga-Etiwanda-Ontario-Guasti area, a few even closer; but if you wish to drive as far as Escondido, you'll find still others.

You'll enjoy every minute of your drive through a countryside laden with vineyards to these places where, step by step, the ripe grapes are transformed into rich wines and champagnes.

Visitors are invited to witness this transformation, of course, with guides explaining each step in the process. Often, you're invited to indulge in winebibbing. Many of the wineries even have barbecue and picnic facilities to make your outing even more pleasant.

ROUTE MAPS, tour schedules and other information designed to facilitate such an excursion is available from Wine Institute, 717 Market St., San Francisco 3. But, in case you don't wish to wait for this material, here are a few wineries—all open Saturdays and Sundays — in the Southland:

Assumption Abbey Winery, Guasti; south of San Bernardino Freeway, one-fourth mile on Archibald Ave.; open daily 8-6.

Louis Cherpin Winery, Fontana, 15567 Valley Blvd. (Hwy. 99); daily 8-5.

Cucamonga Top Winery, Etiwanda, 12737 Foothill Blvd. (Hwy. 66); daily 8-8.

Masi Winery, Cucamonga, 11827 Foothill Blvd. (Hwy. 66); Sunday-Wednesday 10-4; Friday-Saturday 9-9.

Regina Grape Products, Etiwanda, south side of Base Line St., seven-tenths mile west of Etiwanda Ave.; daily 10-8.

Thomas Vinewards, Cucamonga, 8916 Foothill Blvd. and Vineyard Ave.; daily 8-6.

In the Escondido area is the Ferarra Winery, 1120 W. 15th St., west from S. San Diego Blvd.; daily 10-5.

San Antonio Winery, 737 Lamar St., Los Angeles, invites visitors from 10-12 and 2-5 daily.

TRAVEL AGENTS get a break Monday when approximately 100 of Hawaii's hotel executives and their wives, plus 10 top Hawaiian entertainers, will carry the islands' Aloha to Los Angeles' Statler-Hilton at a cocktail reception and show. Sponsored jointly by the Hawaii Hotel Association and Hawaii Visitors Bureau, the entertainment group will include Joe Kahaulelio, singer-dancer-musician; Andy Cummings, recording star and guitarist; Mae Beimes, hula dancer and model; Rose Marie Alvaro, Hawaii Visitors Bureau poster girl, and a covey of hula girls.

Visitors enter a vine-covered winery near Cucamonga.

GOING PLACES

With the Sloanes

THERE'S a travel trick for many a hobbled vacationist who feels he can't leave the office, the store or the shop, or whose financial status is too badly bent to roam afar.

The idea is to travel at home—and that doesn't mean fretting away the day in a back yard hammock. We're talking about doing just what all those out-of-town license plates have traveled hundreds of miles to do right in your neck of the woods. Only you can do it in a day, a weekend or a week.

Pretend you live in another part of the country. What would you do if you were a tourist here? Try these for size:

1. Check into one of those luxurious new nearby motor hotels with air conditioned rooms, a swimming pool and a fancy restaurant.

Expensive? Whatever it costs, it's less than it would be if you had to invest in half a dozen tanks of gas, two grease jobs and oil changes and enough in highway tolls to buy a mile of road, all just to get there.

And when you run out of money, go home. Think: no making beds, no cooking, no dishes and no need to check out at 7 a.m. to beat the traffic.

2. If you're in the nary (or hardly) a bit of money class, and want to sleep and eat at home, try exploring your own part of the country within a day's round trip distance of where you live. Honestly, have you ever really done it properly?

Get off those crowded, antiseptic turnpikes and onto the back roads that no one seems to use any more. You'll find lots of interesting scenery to view, things to do, people to meet, picnic spots to enjoy.

3. Ride a city bus through town. Silly? Not so. It's amazing what you can see for a quarter that you can't see when you're dodging bumpers and shifting gears through city traffic.

We've gaped at new construction, seen stately old mansions we swear we never knew existed, spotted unique shops (an iron monger, a cigar maker, a candy butcher). Try it.

Abroad we marvel our way through museums and art galleries but blithely scoot by those we may pass on our way to work every day. Our country is full of them, many as distinguished as those in Europe and often more specialized. All are fascinating, inexpensive to visit and—best of all — somewhere near where you live.

4. Visit an airport. It's a busman's holiday for us but never fails to fascinate us. In many cities sightseeing trips are available for a few dollars; these are often operated by scheduled airlines in regular passenger planes.

5. Drop down to the waterfront and take a harbor tour. If you haven't done it, it will open your eyes. If you have, it's fun to try it again.

6. Sportsman? Now that you have the time off, try another golf course. It may work wonders for your game. Or try fishing someplace else. It may change your luck.

7. Camping? Camp grounds within tent-pitching distance of home are also drawing visitors who may have traveled clear across the country to get there.

8. Gourmet? Visitors drive as far from their hotels—let alone their homes — as you would have to from where you live to sample the better restaurants in your part of the country.

9. Natural attractions? You may live near a national or state park preserve or a monument that you've never visited. And a quick look at a road map from the corner filling station will find you places of unusual interest we'll bet you never knew existed.

10. Think! You can think up more ideas; those above are just to get you in gear!

Pan Am Photo

SHOWPLACE OF VADUZ, capital of the principality of Liechtenstein, is the royal castle perched high on a cliff above the town. It now contains a multi-million dollar collection of art and armor. The tiny kingdom, 62 miles square, lies along the banks of the Upper Rhine, between Austria and Switzerland.

More Travel

More travelers from abroad are discovering Germany in winter, according to figures for the months of October to March of last season just released by the German Tourist Information Office.

Total overnight reservations at hotels in 2,364 tourist centers were up 6 per cent over the same period the previous year. Registrations by travelers from countries other than Germany increased 8 per cent. At the same time, big cities, spas and winter sports resorts showed an even greater increase in number of visitors.

now—your dog can take pills to stay tick and flea free all season long

imagine a pill that kills fleas, lice, even ticks

Veterinarians now have ECTORAL, the incredible new pill your dog simply takes with his food. ECTORAL works from the inside out to kill fleas, lice, even ticks that come in contact with your dog. Just one dose of ECTORAL every week can control these parasites all season long.

ECTORAL is the worst news external parasites ever had—an extraordinarily effective way to get rid of ticks, fleas and lice. It was tested for over two years by veterinarians in every region of the United States. Even though ECTORAL is more effective, it is just as economical as old-fashioned powders or sprays—and far more convenient.

During warm weather, disease-carrying parasites lurk everywhere, waiting to attack your dog. Ticks hide in weeds and brush. Fleas hide between floor boards, in the dog's bedding, under rugs. And any passing dog may be carrying those parasites.

Now—all season long—you can keep these troublesome, dangerous pests under control—with ECTORAL. Your veterinarian will tell you how to use ECTORAL. (You can find his address under "Veterinarians" in the yellow pages of the telephone directory.)

Doberman Pinschers are superb animals, keen of nose, bold, inquisitive, easily disciplined and quick to learn.

Dogs, Cats on Parade

By Eleanor Avery Price

THIS SEASON is always a busy one show-wise. Today for instance, hundreds of Doberman pinscher fanciers will collect at Stoner Playground, 1831 Stoner Ave., West Los Angeles, for the Los Angeles Doberman Pinscher Club specialty. Among Dobes to be exhibited will be Champion Haydenhill's Calais, a best in show winner owned by Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hayden of Beverly Hills. Calais is pictured with this article.

Next Saturday and Sunday, cat fanciers will trek to the Electric Building, Balboa Park, San Diego, for the Silvergate Cat Club show. On Sept. 23, the California Associated Specialty Club will present its big event at Hollywood Turf Grounds, and on Sept. 24, Santa Ana Valley Kennel Club stages its second benched show at Orange County Fairgrounds.

THE HOT dry summer has been hard on your dog. Check his ears for accumulation of wax and dirt in which ear mites thrive. Clean them carefully with cotton squeezed in warm mineral oil. Look at his toenails. If they have grown rapidly during "lazy days," trim them immediately, being careful not to cut into the "quick." If his teeth are yellow, give him a big knuckle bone to chomp on to help clean his teeth, or better yet, take him for a professional tooth scraping. Check his skin carefully. Now is a good time for a real antiseptic bath.

Your dog may have been spoiled during the summer having the children home to keep him entertained, and he may put up a big fuss during school hours. He is blameless, of course, but do everything you can to help him readjust. If he must remain alone in the yard a good part of the time, you should try to teach him not to bark incessantly. Pretend you have gone, then when the dog barks needlessly dash out and give sharp commands of "No! No!" and accompany your words with a newspaper slapped smartly across the palm of your hand.

IF, IN BOREDOM, your dog starts ripping up plants, use a commercial dog repellent that causes sneezing or a spray of nicotine sulphate diluted one teaspoonful to a quart of water. Fresh applications of the above products will have to be used after every rain, but before long your pet may be out of the habit even of sniffing around the forbidden areas.

As soon as children come home from school, they should romp with the dog to let it know it hasn't really been forgotten.

Additional calcium in the dog's diet and Vitamin B1 will help calm a nervous barking dog. And sometimes an extra meal will do him good, even make him a little sleepy. There is no harm in an additional meal so long as you do not stuff your pet and cause obesity.

DOMINGUEZ Riding Club will present a horse drill team show Sept. 17 at 195th and Main Sts., Gardena.

CAMERA ANGLES

Ever More Duffers!

"Today our pictures are sharp, clear and lousy."

By the Shutterbug

TRANSPORTS click, dials spin, shutters snap, and the prize picture of the year is shot—the Normal American Camera Owner at the dizzy height of his dizzy career.

When the tallies are in after their vacation season, industry estimates say, 1961 will have cost up upwards of $3 million at the photo counter. This No. 1 hobby in the U.S. has grown twice as fast as the national economy in the past decade.

But stand in the finishing room at any major film processing room at any major film processing lab and see what we're getting for our money. Defenseless children and kindly old folks lopped off at the eyebrows. Immense nothings bordered by bits of distant scenery. National monuments defying the law of gravity. Loved ones frozen forever in fatal blue or angry orange. A complete movie of perfectly exposed thumb.

ON THE CAMERA shelf today there are about 380 different makes and models—not only more than ever, but better and cheaper. According to Photo Dealer, a trade journal, about 100 have built-in range-finders, 150 let you see what the film will see, a dozen have an electronic eye to meter the light you'll need. The industry figures we'll buy over six million of these marvels this year.

"Ten years ago our pictures were fuzzy, dark and lousy," a spokesman for a mammoth film company says. "But today, with these amazing cameras, our pictures are sharp, clear and lousy."

Today, hardly an American family is without a camera in easy reach. This summer, a record 55 million of us are expected to swell the annual snapshot figure to three billion—and then spend $400 million to find out how the pictures came out.

BETWEEN 20 and 35 per cent of the average roll will be absolutely worthless, says Berkey Service, one of the biggest processing labs in the country. Of the remaining pictures, only half are really adequate. On a roll of 8 mm. color film, for example, that works out to almost $1 thrown out by the consumer.

"It's wrong to assume," a Berkey man says, "that the American snapshooter is interested in getting his money's worth."

THE MOST common reasons for ruined film are camera owners who:

Forget to take the protective cap off the lens.

Neglect to read the instruction with camera or film.

Don't bother to set the camera according to what the light meter says.

Leave the loaded camera in a steamy car.

Don't worry about where their thumb or camera case is when they snap the shutter.

Never learned how to insert the film, set the lens opening or adjust the shutter speed.

issued a warrant for their arrest. He sent a telegram to Tombstone sheriff, Behan, to arrest them upon arrival. But the telegrapher, a friend of the Earps, held the message until the lawmen came into town, and let Wyatt read it first.

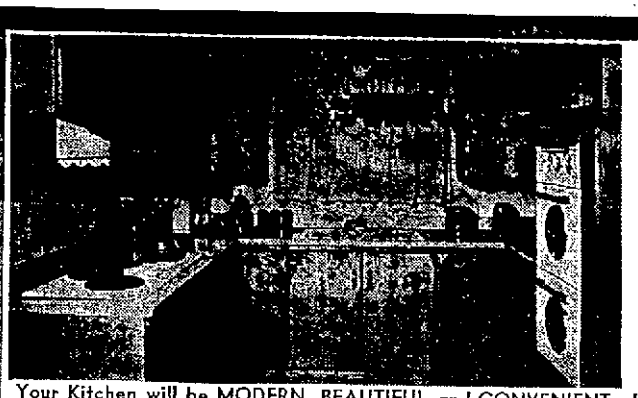

Rather than submit to arrest the Earps and Doc Holliday fled to Colorado, which also was a booming mining state at that period.

It has been hinted that Wyatt wore a steel vest which many times saved his life, but this is hearsay, and has never been proven.

Wyatt's career was a stormy one, but he died in a peaceful manner, living out the last years of his life in a small town near Blythe, where he worked a small copper claim.

He was a solemn man and seldom smiled or laughed. But he never lost the surety of his fast draw. He died in 1928 while on a visit to Tennessee to see relatives, and not in Colorado as historians claim.

Wyatt Earp was no knight in shining armor, but he was a man's man who brought law and order to the West.

IT'S NEW!

Greenhouse in a Window

PROVIDING house plants with proper fresh air, sunshine and humidity while displaying them for best interior and exterior advantage is a problem ingeniously solved by use of a new "window greenhouse" that can accommodate a generous number and variety of plants the year round and help them thrive in porous clay pots under the same conditions as a professional growers' greenhouse.

The all-aluminum greenhouse (developed by Emerson Industries, Hempstead, L.I.) does double duty as an indoor-outdoor picture window where all types of house plants can be attractively displayed. It may be moved at will, installed in any preferred location, is available in a variety of sizes and prices and is practically maintenance-free.

Construction of the greenhouse makes it sufficiently weather-tight to keep out drafts, while warmth from the adjacent room keeps temperatures right for most plants. The greenhouse is useful as a "reserve bank" in which to rotate house plants, or to house bulbs, such as amaryllis, forced daffodils, tulips and crocus, or as a cold frame to start seeds for outdoor planting.

Dorothy Digs

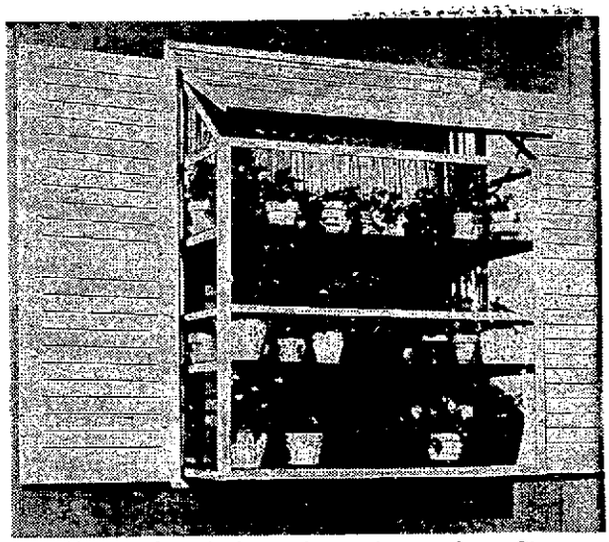

Now is the time when your roses are making new wood so, if you want long stems and good blossoms for the fall blooming season, give the roses a feeding now. This should be the last feeding until after the first of the year when you do your pruning.

To protect roses from the beetles and other "chewers" that seem more prevalent late in the season and cause ragged looking foliage, you can safely use a combination of malathion and dieldrin as necessary. Alternate this with the regular 2-purpose rose spray for mildew, black spot, thrip and aphis. A copper spray containing nicotine is excellent. By doing this you will keep all enemies under control.

If we have our usual mild California winter, you will probably be able to pick beautiful roses until New Year's, if you give them proper care and protection.

Sweet Pea Planting Time Near

Sweet pea seeds should be sown later this month, and soil should be properly prepared, aged in advance.

By Joe Littlefield

SWEET PEA seeds sown too early usually sprout easily and grow too rapidly at the expense of good sturdy root development. Plants are watered too often, and many rot off. Sow them later this month while days are still warm to hot, but nights become cooler.

There are several ways to sow sweet pea seeds. Some gardeners soak the seeds for several hours in water. Others sprout the seeds between two folds of burlap or a discarded turkish towel. They keep the cloth-like material moist and, in about five days, the seeds sprout and may be set out.

Punch holes one inch deep for sweet pea seeds. Dust holes and trench with soil insecticide as insurance against possible soil pests such as wireworms, false wireworms, sowbugs or other pests. Now plant the seeds in the holes and cover them with soil.

COVER the soil area with burlap or premoistened peat moss. Soak planting area well. Do not water again until the seeds have sprouted through the soil. Take off cloth cover and put chicken wire over the plants to prevent birds from rooting out the young seedlings. Then water as the soil dries, but be doubly careful not to keep the soil too wet. As soon as plants are up a couple of inches, water less often, but water longer. Cover plants about inch deep with soil when they've grown around four to six inches high.

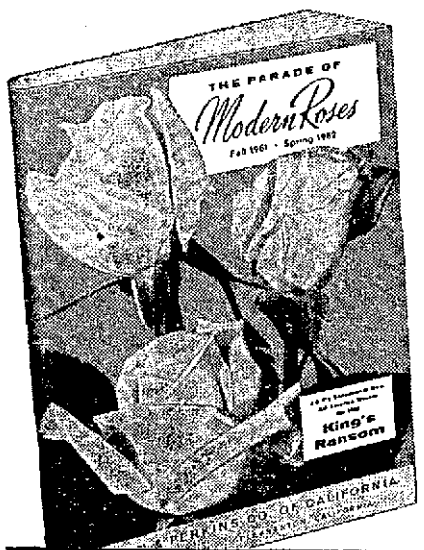

Remember this: Your young sweet peas stand more chance of growing if you water less often, but deeply. Sweet peas may rot off if they are watered too often.

DON'T SOW sweet peas in unprepared soil. If you didn't prepare the soil in August, do so now and wait several weeks before you sow the seeds. Dig the trench a shovel width and about 18 inches deep. Fill hole half full of steer manure. Scatter two cups of bone meal. Mix bone meal through the manure. Add soil to nearly top of ground level. Thoroughly mix all the materials together digging the area well. Soak down thoroughly. Week or so later dig over again, and soak down. Another week or so later dig over again, then you're ready to sow the seeds.

GEORGE HEINRICH
Restaurant With a View

STEP ABOARD the new Sea Winds restaurant and you'll swear you're on a millionaire's luxury yacht anchored at the water's edge.

This imaginatively designed restaurant is more than swank. Expensively furnished in a ship motif, the Sea Winds has unusual booths arranged on different levels, enabling all guests to enjoy a stunning view of the sea. Each booth, spacious and comfortable, faces a row of picture windows on the restaurant's south side. Through them can be seen such harbor sights as a seaplane landing on the water, large ships riding at anchor beyond the breakwater and small pleasure boats scurrying among them.

The Sea Winds, which cost $250,000, is located at the new Navy Landing at the foot of Magnolia and Daisy Avenues. It is the brain child of George Heinrich, whose firm also owns another beautiful ocean view restaurant — the Captain's Inn on the Marina.

STAIRWAYS topped with gay red, white and blue canvas canopies lead to the Sea Winds' main dining room, which is on the second floor above the coffee shop. The waterfront motif is also reflected in the cute apache costumes of the waitresses who wear French berets, striped shirts and slit skirts.

The view deck's cuisine is superb. The dinners, priced from $2.45 to $3.95, include soup du jour or chilled heart of lettuce salad; potatoes au gratin Delmonico or foil-wrapped large Idaho baked potato; a basket of hot garlic bread and yacht-sized coffee mugs kept filled from individual coffee pots warmed on flaming servers left on the table. Among the entrees are New York and Porterhouse steaks, a marinated teriyaki steak served with a special spicy sauce, lobster tail, grilled halibut steak, barbecued spare ribs and fried chicken. —TEDD THOMEY

TEACHING MACHINES

This fall you're going to hear a lot about them. ✧ Never before has an innovation so swiftly captured the fancy of public and educators. ✧ First described in detail only three years ago in a Harvard psychologist's technical paper, a laboratory plaything only two years ago, tested en masse for the first time last fall, teaching machines are invading classrooms, business offices and homes in vast numbers this school term. ✧ Nearly 200 firms are manufacturing them or the lessons that go into them. They are being hawked to school boards by high-pressure salesmen, peddled door-to-door to education-conscious parents. ✧ Research organizations, foundations, universities and the federal government are conducting large-scale evaluations of them. ✧ They have even inspired a limerick: The latest advice from the dean / To come down on the teaching machine / Is that Oedipus Rex / Could have learned about sex / Without even both'ring the queen.

STARTLINGLY, the jingle is grounded in fact. Students at the University of Kansas City are learning the facts of life from machines. "Instruction is private," says the teacher. "It saves embarrassment."

Many claims have been made for teaching machines, but what are the machines really? How do they work? Will they replace teachers? Will they solve school problems? Will they help your child?

First thing to know, the experts say, is that machines themselves don't teach. Programs—the printed lessons that are fed into the machines—do.

The unique feature of "programming" is that it breaks the subject matter into hundreds or even thousands of minuscule fragments and then strings them together in a logical sequence, leading the student from one to another in simple steps.

With each step or frame, the student is required to make a response: he either fills in a blank or punches a button. Then he compares his answer to the correct one. (Some machines make the comparison for him.) Thus he knows immediately whether he's right or wrong. Psychologists say this "reinforces" his right answers, weeds out his incorrect ones and helps him to retain what he has learned.

If printed lessons do the teaching, what do machines do? The simplest (Grolier's $20 Min-max, shown being tested in Albuquerque, N.M., schools, above) is merely a metal box with a window and a knob. Others (priced up to $5,000) "think" for the student. Depending upon his response in one frame, they "decide" what he should learn next. But a number of programmers have abandoned machines completely, substituting books and looseleaf binders and cheatproofing with shields and slides. Eventually, this system will replace machines, they predict.

All this activity has grown out of the work of a Harvard psychologist named B. F. Skinner, who discovered some years ago that laboratory pigeons learned more readily if immediately rewarded for correct responses with corn. Applying the same principle to people, he concluded they could learn best if "rewarded" with correct answers. Psychologists everywhere hopped on the bandwagon.

Programmed instruction seems to offer:

✧ Speedier, better learning. The average student seems to learn the same material in half the time. Roanoke, Virginia, students, for instance, completed a year's work in algebra between September and Christmas. Failures drop drastically, sponsors claim, and grades are raised all along the line. In one instance, program-taught students in college logic averaged nearly 20 points higher than conventional students.

✧ More help for individuals. Working at their own clip, bright students breeze through programmed instruction. A classic case is that of Larry Hill, 18, of Roanoke, who recently raced through a one-semester solid geometry course in five days. Less brilliant youngsters, meanwhile, plod along as slowly as they wish. One recently wound up a geometry course two months after the rest of the class. Nonetheless, tests showed he had the subject down pat. However, some students simply don't learn under programming, according to Lewis D. Eigen, of New York's Center for Programmed Instruction, and no one knows why. "This is one of those important questions that still must be answered," Eigen says.

✧ Limitations on what can be taught. Courses offered so far run heavily to exact subjects like math, science, foreign languages, English grammar. No one has made a serious stab at programming social studies. "We don't know if it can be done," says Allan D. Calvin, the supercharged young director of Encyclopaedia Britannica Films programming.

✧ Better use of teachers. Less and less is heard now about machines replacing teachers. Instead programmers talk about how machines will aid teachers and save time. "The teacher will be freed from routine drudgery," says Thomas Clemens, the thoughtful, pipe-smoking young supervisor of federally-sponsored research into programming. "Now she can plan, diagnose, assist, do remedial work—all the things for which you need a qualified human. She won't have to say the same thing five times a day."

✧ More effective home learning. Programming allows for supervised study anywhere. The student can supplement classroom learning with related work at home—what teachers call "enrichment." Furthermore, programming works equally well with adults, and many programs are being prepared for them.

✧ Reasons to go slow. The field is mushrooming so fast that it is attracting get-rich-quick operators. "If I were on a school board," says EBF's Calvin, "I'd ask salesmen hard questions: Who did the research? What were their results? How big was their test?" Almost everyone agrees schools should not plunge wildly into programming this year. But they should get their feet wet by buying a few machines.

✧ Enormous promise. Whatever the loopholes still existing in machines and programming, they unquestionably have walloping potential. "They will prove the greatest single innovation in a generation," says Theodore Waller, of Grolier, Inc., a pioneer in the home market. One programmer is even less reserved: "It's the wave of the future," he predicts.

FEWER CALORIES

in a bowlful than any other kind of cereal!

How else can you get so much good eating with so few calories first thing in the morning, than with Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice . . . ?

A bowl of either has about half as many calories, on the average, as a bowl of any other kind of cereal—full standard measuring cup servings.

. . . Less calories than a piece of toast, or any other breakfast food you've always thought of as low-caloried. Yet, both Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice offer good nutrition that's especially important when you're watching weight.

Nutrition . . . flavor . . . lots of fun in these weight-watcher's cereals "Shot from Guns!"

ARTHUR GODFREY

What happens to a man once he's been cancer-stricken?

by LLOYD SHEARER

Hospitalization makes most men philosophical. "If I ever get out of here alive," one favorite made-in-bed resolution holds, "I'm going to take it easy. No more of the rat race for me."

Arthur Godfrey, 58, different from most men, had an opposite reaction two years ago when a surgeon removed a portion of his cancerous left lung.

"That thing," he explained, "that damnable thing was not only imbedded in my lung, it was wrapped around the aorta, the main blood vessel to the heart. And because the surgeon I had was great—he doesn't want me to mention his name, that's the kind of modest guy he is—because he was great and he had courage, he got it out, and I got a break."

Tears trickling down his cheeks, Godfrey continued huskily, "I'm grateful, and I'm going to do my best to deserve my break. I'm going to try to accomplish all the things I've always wanted to accomplish."

Most victims of lung cancer—an approximate 35,000 Americans per year—die within six months following the discovery of the chest malignancy or the ensuing surgery.

Less than 5 per cent survive the five-year period which is necessary for a cure.

It has been 31 months now since Godfrey hobbled out of New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center. In those 31 months he has lived the life of a man who secretly feels that time is running out on him. He tries not to show it, but it twinges him like an aching tooth, and there are always manifestations of the omnipresent worry that each day is his last.

For example, as we sat on the terrace of his bungalow at the Kona Kai Inn in San Diego recently, he kept running his hand over his chest, superficially feeling for a possible tumor.

Last year he underwent physical check-ups every month to see if "that damnable thing had started up again." This year it's been two months between visits.

Godfrey tries not to think of cancer, but there is so much that calls it to mind: Gary Cooper's death, thousands of letters from fans inquiring about his health, his friendship with Gen. Nathan Twining, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who came down with lung cancer five days after he did.

While Twining was recovering at Walter Reed Hospital and Godfrey at Presbyterian, Arthur dropped him a note. "The way I feel today," he scribbled, "only Khrushchev should feel." Twining and Godfrey still keep in touch with each other, charter members in a club of the similarly afflicted.

Constant activity is the escape-mechanism that keeps Godfrey buoyant and optimistic. Since his operation in 1959, he has done the following:

"I went back to Honolulu after the operation," he says, "and did a television show there. Then I came home, did my daily radio program, also a TV special in Jamaica. Last year I went to India. I was supposed to stay five weeks, was gone almost two months. Went to Tokyo, Hong Kong, Laos, saw Dr. Tom Dooley before he died—cancer sure gets around.

BUT WHAT'S THE GIMMICK?

"When I got back to this country, CBS talked me into doing Candid Camera with Allen Funt. I shouldn't have done it, but I did. Anyway, that's finished now, and I don't want to go into any of the sordid details. Just say I'm not doing it any more and don't tell why.

"What I'd like to do best is a weekly television show—like the ones I did this past April and May—but the network says it has no time for me.

"Funny thing—I guess over the years I've sold more than $25 million worth of time for the network. But now they just can't find a spot for me. A few weeks ago one of the executives came up to see me, very nice guy, very polite, very pleasant. I discussed the show I had in mind.

" 'But what's the gimmick?' he asked. 'Tell me the gimmick, Arthur. Surely your program's got a gimmick?'

"I said to him, 'I'm the gimmick, if that's what you want to call me. That's the only gimmick. Otherwise it's an entertainment show, a variety program. I'd like to give the American public some plain, simple, wholesome, delightful, amusing entertainment. In the past I've come up with Pat Boone and the Chordettes and the McGuire Sisters and Carmel Quinn and people like that, little known artists of genuine talent.' "

Godfrey shook his head in disbelief. "You won't believe it, but this network executive, this big man, he was very polite, mind you, wasn't convinced. 'I'm sorry, Arthur,' he said. 'We just don't have the right time available for you.' I said, 'How about 1962?' 'No,' he said, 'I'm afraid that's true for 1962 also.'

"I didn't want to say, 'Look here, I might not be around in '62 or '63.' But that's the truth. Once a fellow's had cancer, it shows he's got the type of body in which another cancer can spring up. So who knows how long any of us is going to be around?

"I just know that I'm very happy working in radio, working in television, and I'd like to do both. Insofar as TV is concerned, I guess the only thing I can do is syndicate my own show this fall to independent stations. I'd like to do a half-hour weekly show with a one-hour special every month or so."

As he spoke there was no bitterness in Godfrey's voice, no truculence in his attitude, no feeling that CBS was a network manned by ingrates.

While he may have no role in TV at the moment, Godfrey is one of the two remaining personality-pillars of network radio. The other one is Don McNeill of

The Breakfast Club. Each morning from 10:10 to 11 the "Huck Finn of Radio," which is what Fred Allen used to call Godfrey, broadcasts over the CBS network in his warm, familiar, informal, husky voice, deleting the stuffiness from commercials, a practice he originated 30 years ago. He features "the sincere sell" and has reached the point where he will not advertise any product he doesn't personally approve of.

TWO KINDS OF RADIO LISTENERS

Of radio, his first love, Godfrey says, "I'm going to stay in it as long as it exists, because in my opinion radio is still the favorite listening post of what I call the thinking people in America.

"There are two kinds of radio listeners. The background listeners consist of 80 per cent of the public, I'm afraid. They don't want to listen to anything except background music.

"They want Muzak for free, the latest records for nothing, just music all day long, and if you open your mouth, they turn you off and find another record. No sponsor, not even the guy who sells used cars, gets his money's worth from them because they just don't represent any thinking population at all.

"But the others—those I call the foreground listeners—they're very much interested in what somebody thinks, the latest dope that there is, interviews that you have, the development of talent. Those are the kind of people I try to sell.

"Primarily I'm a salesman, you know, and if I'm a good salesman, it's because I believe firmly in what I'm selling, and I have the ability to enthuse about it and infect you with that enthusiasm. That's the art of salesmanship—creating a desire in other people for your product.

"To do that you have to get people to like you or believe in you. And you've got to put yourself on the side of the person listening. When I used to go from door-to-door back in the old days, I couldn't do that because the housewives didn't know who the hell I was. But on the air it's different. They know I'm Arthur Godfrey, a guy they can trust."

Although his bout with cancer has mellowed Godfrey, and he is no longer a self-appointed authority on national defense, he remains essentially the man he always was, open-handed, alert, perceptive, zestful, fun-loving, optimistic, quick to comment and, when as a result he puts his foot in it, even quicker to apologize.

This past summer he was showing his palomino stallion, Goldie, trained in dressage, at a horse show in Del Mar, Calif. On his way through San Diego to the fair grounds in the early morning of July 4th, he saw only a handful of American flags out for Independence Day. On his program he commented on the apparent lack of patriotism by San Diegans, a fatuous and inaccurate remark for which the mayor and local dignitaries roasted him, since San Diego, a Navy town, had thousands of flags on display. Godfrey abjectly apologized.

A few weeks later a lady guest on his radio program dropped a four-letter word ladies usually don't drop. In an attempt at gallantry, Arthur explained to his listeners that times had indeed changed when words that formerly were banned from polite print could now fall from such beautiful female lips.

For this explanation Godfrey was figuratively raked over the coals by Archbishop William O. Brady of the St. Paul (Minn.) Archdiocese, who asserted, "If Arthur's mother could have heard his defense of words on the radio, she would have washed his mouth out with soap."

In short, Arthur Michael Godfrey is still no saint, which doesn't bother him one bit, since he has never evaluated himself as a paragon of virtue. In fact, he owes his successful rise as a show business personality to a complaint filed against him by a radio listener.

Not many people know this, but 30 years ago when he was working as an early-morning announcer at the Washington, D.C., station WJSV (now WTOP), Godfrey tired of the Bulova Watch spot announcements: "Seven o'clock Bulova Watch time . . . Seven-thirty Bulova Watch time . . . Eight o'clock Bulova Watch time . . . Eight-thirty Bulova Watch time."

IN TROUBLE OR TRIUMPH

One night he rambled through the station record library, picked out a sound effects record of a cow loudly moo-oo-ing. The following morning he played it on the air, then asked jokingly, "Whatsamatter, cow? Did you have a bulova time?"

An irate listener complained to the advertising manager of the Bulova Watch Company. The advertising manager complained to the account executive at the agency. The account executive complained to the station manager, who laughed it off, but the response was so electric that Godfrey realized he had found a worthy, attention-attracting device in departing from the sponsor's sirupy script and criticizing the inane copy he was supposed to read.

Since then Arthur Godfrey has always spoken his mind, come trouble or triumph.

Cancer-cured or not, he still meets life as if it were his own adventurous invention.

"I'm not one," he says self-encouragingly, "to let a little thing like a lousy lung get me down."

In the words of Mary Ann Vann, his faithful and long-suffering secretary, "Arthur's first name should be Guts." ■

How Heidi's mama fixed the Sheik

Princess Heidi adjusts herself happily to life in her Kuwait palace. With her is Mama Dichter (left), whose threatened law suit persuaded Sheik Abdullah (right) to change his mind, install the German-born beauty as Wife Number Five of his seraglio.

TWO-TIME PRINCESS

THOSE OIL-RICH Arabian sheiks really lead the life.

They whiz into Europe with their entourages. They dazzle the beauties of the Continent with their extravagances—a diamond clip here, a pearl necklace there. They marry an irresistible, long-stemmed lovely. After three or four weeks, they obtain a Moslem divorce by renouncing the marriage. And presto! They're free to play the field again. What a life!

Take as a case in point Prince Abdullah Al Jabber Al Saban, 42, who happens to be the Minister of Justice and Culture of Kuwait on the Persian Gulf.

Some weeks ago the Prince flew into Hamburg, Germany, a seaport city well-known for its uninhibited night life. There he met Heidi Dichter, a young, curvaceous, blue-eyed charmer on vacation from Kiel.

Heidi speaks no Arabic, the Prince no German, but they held eyes across the table, hands under the table, and since they both speak the language of love, they were quickly married in Heidi's home city. Everyone in Kiel said Heidi was the luckiest girl in the world. What a catch she'd made! A real Arabian Prince, so fabulously rich he had his own plane.

The newlyweds flew to Capri for their honeymoon. But then the Prince, who already had four wives, had to return home on business.

PRINCESS HEIDI went on to Majorca to await her husband. But the Prince never showed. Under Moslem law, a man can divorce his wife by making a formal statement in front of witnesses that the marriage is finished. Abdullah did so.

Heidi, a princess for all of a month, returned to Kiel where she told the full, sad story to her mother.

Mama Dichter, a tough, proud, German Hausfrau of the old school, said, "Nobody can treat my daughter this way." She hired a lawyer to file suit against the Sheik for $500,000. Suddenly from Kuwait came the news that Abdullah had searched his soul and discovered he was still in love with Heidi, wanted her always beside him as his fifth wife. So to Kuwait flew Heidi and moved into her Sheik's palace.

There she reigns today, a princess for more than a month. How much more is anyone's guess.

Anyway, Mama isn't quite as angry as she used to be. It seems her new Arabian son-in-law has agreed to pay $75 per month for her rent. —NANCY HAGEN

Reconciled couple seem pleased with outcome of marital chase. Abdullah is oil-rich prince of Kuwait.

ROMAN GABRIEL, N.C. State	Quarterback	JOHN HADL, Kansas
ERNIE DAVIS, Syracuse LARRY FERGUSON, Iowa	Halfbacks	GARY BALLMAN, Michigan State JIMMY SAXTON, Texas
BOB FERGUSON, Ohio State	Fullback	RONNIE BULL, Baylor

ACCORDING TO football experts all over the nation, 1961 will be one of college football's most interesting and topsy-turvy seasons in decades.

They predict that Ohio State, UCLA, Penn State, Kansas, Rice and LSU will all bid for the mythical national championship, but warn that Iowa, Syracuse, Miami, Texas, N.C. State, Missouri and at least a dozen others could easily upset these front-runners.

This is the way sports editors and writers see the 1961 All-America backfield:

BOB FERGUSON, Ohio State: a bruising 6-foot, 217-pound, human battering ram. Bob ran up 13 TDs and a 5-yard-plus rushing average as a junior, which won him All-America recognition last year.

ERNIE DAVIS, Syracuse: the nation's No. 3 ground gainer with a 7.8 average for 877 yards, Ernie will repeat his All-America rating this year.

LARRY FERGUSON, Iowa: no relation to Ohio State's Bob Ferguson, Larry is an explosive breakaway runner who averaged 7.3 yards per carry last season.

ROMAN GABRIEL, N.C. State: an imaginative signal caller and poised passer, Roman is rated one of the great quarterback prospects to come out of the South.

Among the linemen, Maryland end Gary Collins was singled out for special praise. The Philadelphia Eagles and Baltimore Colts rate him as "the best player with pro potential in the country."

Marshall Shirk, a 6-foot-1, 230-pound mastodon from UCLA, was voted a standout tackle.

Here's how experts rate the squads:

THE EAST

Rip Engle's Nittany Lions of Penn State look classiest. Galen Hall, developing into an All-America possibility at quarterback, will have another potential All-America, end Bob Mitinger, to catch his long strikes.

Syracuse will challenge for top honors, their chances hinging largely on a return to 1959 form by quarterback Dave Sarette, who slipped badly last year, and another great season from Ernie Davis.

The Pittsburgh Panthers, spearheaded by stocky (5 feet 11, 218 pounds) guard Larry Vignali, could challenge the leaders, as could Boston College, if they're not swallowed up by a murderous schedule.

This isn't the year for the service academies. Army has little depth; Navy lost super-star Joe Bellino and a host of starters from their Orange Bowl team and will be rebuilding.

In the Ivy League, it finally seems as if the Big Red of Cornell are out of the red and will challenge Yale for the title.

THE SOUTH

An old-fashioned Donnybrook for top Dixie honors is predicted. LSU and guard Roy Winston are given a razor-thin edge over Alabama and Ole Miss in the Southeastern Conference. Massive tackle Billy Neighbors could turn the tide for the Crimson Tide of Alabama, however.

N.C. State, on the arm of Roman Gabriel, has to figure as Atlantic Coast Conference champ with stiff opposition from Clemson and always-tough Duke.

Miami, with end Bill Miller and triple-threat back Eddie Johns, should edge out Florida State as top independent.

VMI should top the Southern Conference, although under fire from West Virginia and Furman.

Maryland, Georgia Tech and Tennessee all could scramble the picture.

MIDDLE WEST

Ohio State and Iowa will battle it out for honors here, meeting head on on November 4, with the edge going to the Buckeyes on a break in the schedule, bypassing Michigan State, the Big Ten sleeper, and Minnesota. The loss of quarterback Tom Matte will hurt OSU, but 26 returning letterman will compensate.

Notre Dame seems to be on the way up. If they make it all the way back, look for coach Joe Kuharich to stroll off with Coach-of-the-Year honors. Detroit, on the passing of diminutive (5 feet 9, 168 pounds) Jerry Gross, will be tough.

SOUTHWEST

The Southwest Conference is loaded this year and there promises to be a real dogfight for the brass ring.

From here it looks as if Rice will nose out Texas and Baylor. The Owls locked up the title in '49, '53 and '57 and the four-year cycle should hold up again, thanks to a wealth of experienced seniors and a tough line. Fullback Ronnie Bull, converted from All-America halfback this season, could make the difference for Baylor if his forward wall holds up.

Kansas must be rated the titan of the rugged Big Eight. Coach Jack Mitchell has almost his entire line intact from last year's 10th-rated team, plus All-America quarterback John Hadl. Missouri, conqueror of Navy and Joe Bellino in the Orange Bowl last year, will challenge more strongly than Colorado or a rebounding Oklahoma. In the Border Conference, Arizona State will be pressed by New Mexico State, but should prevail.

ROCKY MOUNTAINS

In the Skyline Conference—this is its last year—co-champs Wyoming and Utah State will slug it out again, with the timid wink going to Wyoming. The Air Force Academy will certainly fare no better than her sister academies with quarterback Richie Mayo gone.

FAR WEST

UCLA, hampered by an inexperienced backfield, nonetheless must be chosen for the Big Five title and the Rose Bowl. A rockbound forward wall anchored by tackle Marshall Shirk and center Ron Hull should open holes large enough for even green tailbacks to filter through. Washington, the defending champ, have lost too many of their Rose Bowl stars, but will make it interesting. So will Southern Cal with 23 returning lettermen. Cal and Stanford figure as pesky also-rans.

Oregon State, switching to the T from the Single Wing to take full advantage of their star quarterback, Terry Baker, could cause a lot of excitement among the independents if they jell. Oregon and San Jose State will give them a tussle. ■

How to tell what a family quarrel means

What's all the shouting about?

EVEN IN THE MOST enlightened family, husband and wife occasionally get angry and hurl ultimatums that are not nearly as ultimate as they sound. All the comments below, for example, are old hat, to the caseworkers of Family Service Association, which represents 300 counseling and family-help agencies across the country. Most of these comments reflect nothing more than the normal wear and tear of married life. But a few are more serious. They too seem commonplace—but actually are symptoms of serious trouble, calling for a change of basic attitude by husband or wife before it's too late. Can you find the three booby traps in each list?

—ROBERT WACKER JR.

THE HUSBAND SHOUTS

1 "Must you always wait till I'm halfway off to sleep before reminding me about the garbage?"

2 "What makes you pick the one afternoon I try to reach you to stage one of your famous telephone filibusters?"

3 "If you make one more affectionate wisecrack in front of company about my baldness . . . ."

4 "You've let me run out of shirts again!"

5 "If you don't stop vetoing what I'm saying every time I tell the kids to do something . . . ."

6 "Let me have an illness all to myself just once, will you? Any time I tell you a symptom, it turns out you've got the same thing, only worse."

7 "If you run to that mother of yours the next time we have a fight and come back babbling any more do-it-yourself psychiatry, I'll wash your mouth out with soap."

8 "If I hear one more reminiscence about your old boy friend who's now a vice president at General Motors . . . ."

9 "You've got our account so fouled up that I have to hold my breath when I write a check."

THE WIFE SHOUTS

1 "If you lift the cover of one more pot, sniff and put it back without saying anything once more . . . ."

2 "How dare you come home from that comfortable office and ask, in that tone of voice, what I've been doing all day?"

3 "You always do that when we're having a discussion—you run into the bedroom and slam the door. Come out here and fight like a man!"

4 "If you tell me once more that all this house needs is a little organization . . . ."

5 "You come home and follow me around telling me your news while I'm battling the kids into bed; then, when it's quiet and I want to talk you turn on TV."

6 "Must you swallow your morning juice in one GOL-LOP like a trout striking at a fly?"

7 "If you break any more promises to Johnny because of business . . . ."

8 "If you look one more woman up and down that way when we're out together . . . ."

9 "If you doze in bed one more morning until 7:55, and then shout for a general family mobilization to get you on the 8:17 . . . ."

Any of these protests, explains the Family Service Association experts, actually could mean danger if repeated so often it indicated complete disregard for the other's rights. But that would be unusual. In most cases, marital counselors see a red flag if either husband or wife lists complaints Nos. 3, 5 or 7. Below are the reasons why, as caseworkers see them.

WHEN THE HUSBAND COMPLAINS

3 Public ridicule about baldness or any other unchangeable characteristic inflicts pain for no purpose It may mask hidden resentment, be a way of getting even for something else the wife won't talk about. Examine your motives, discover what you're really sore about and fling that at him—in private.

5 Vetoing his edicts undercuts Daddy's authority and deprives the children of needed confidence in their father. Even if he's wrong, it's better to discuss the situation after bedtime than to bawl him out on the spot and convince the youngsters their father doesn't amount to much.

7 Running home to Mother indicates you're still a selfish little girl at heart, not a married adult. Don't postpone the showdown; have it out. Using psychiatric jargon as a weapon is silly and dangerous. If you knew enough to understand what you were saying, you would know better than to say it.

WHEN THE WIFE COMPLAINS

3 Slamming the door and sulking is the counterpart of her going home to Mother. Stand up and face her, no matter what. A breakdown of family communication of this kind can only mean real trouble ahead.

5 Shouting your news at her and refusing to listen to her report of the day's doings indicates how important you think she is in the partnership. She's not a machine. Give her equal time. In fact, why not try putting the kids to bed yourself?

7 Maybe you can't help breaking a promise occasionally because of business pressure but it should be pretty rare. Doing it often shows that family needs rank low on your priority scale. You are turning your back on those who need you most. Perhaps a solution might be to make your promises a little more sparingly. Value them more highly and don't make so many of them, and it will be easier to keep the ones you do make.

Stop Bad Breath 4 Times Better With Listerine

*See directions on label

The Listerine way kills germs that tooth paste doesn't even reach

Tooth paste covers only a small area of the mouth, yet most bad breath is caused by germs throughout the mouth and throat. With the Listerine way*, the recommended way, you get antiseptic action all over the mouth and in the farthest recesses of the throat . . . and in germ-harboring crevices too tiny for tooth paste, or even water, to enter. This means Listerine acts in four times as much area—to stop bad breath four times better than tooth paste, and for hours on end. Reach for Listerine . . . relied on by more people than all other mouthwashes combined.

News for golfers: The first golf clubs with all-Fiberglas shafts are now available. Running the entire length, the glass fibers absorb all vibration, make the club non-conductive and safe for use in electrical storms, and easy to clean with a damp rag. The construction is said to lengthen drives—and also to modify hooks and slices since the shaft recovers quickly when twisted by a poor hit. Details: *Burke Golf Equipment, Comptometer Corp., Dept. In-the-wall night light: This new one (left) neatly recesses into a wall, casts a soft downward glow, always is cool to touch, safe for children. Its 4-watt fluorescent lamp lasts up to 6,000 hours, almost six times as long as a 25-watt incandescent counterpart, and uses one-fourth the current. Even day and night operation costs under $2.50 a year. 8½" x 6 7/16". $15.30. Day-Brite, Dept. PP, 6260 N. Broadway, St. Louis 15, Mo.

The untold story of one man's epic bravery

THE BISHOP and

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

SAN JUAN, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.

THE LATE JOSEF STALIN in Moscow once sneered: "How many divisions has the Pope?" But it remained for a tinhorn tyrant named Rafael Trujillo to find the answer here on America's doorstep. He imposed his will and whims upon the Dominican Republic for 31 years before assassins finally paid him off in hot lead. But the cruel dictator really met his fate in the Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana where Bishop Thomas Reilly preached belief in God and the rights of man.

The bishop's struggle for freedom went largely unnoticed by the outside world. He suffered the stones and cudgels of mobs, endless humiliation and harassment by Trujillo's goons. Once he was dragged out of a convent in the middle of the night and thrown roughly into jail. At times he was opposed even by his brother bishops, who were intimidated by threats against their relatives. Yet he proved that a single brave man, fired by blazing conviction, can sometimes be a division in himself.

Unlike Stalin, Trujillo never tried to abolish religion; he merely claimed a place for himself in the godhead. It pleased him to be called "Lord of the People," and he papered his domain with the slogan, "God and Trujillo." He decreed that time in Trujilloland should be reckoned not from the birth of Christ but from his own ascension to power. Thus May 16 became New Year's Day here, and the year 31 was understood to mean E.T. (Era of Trujillo) not A.D.

AN INSPIRATION TO ALL FREE MEN

The bishop who dared to defy him, Boston-born Thomas Reilly, is a slight man with twinkling blue eyes and a quick, disarming Irish smile. His 14 harrowing years here have turned his hair white. He speaks softly, with a trace of Boston twang. But beneath the gentleness and quiet humor lies the stuff of which heroes and saints are made.

The bishop's full story never has been told. His Excellency himself will not discuss it. When I visited him in his See here, he quietly but firmly turned aside most of my questions. "I am the representative of the Church in this area," he told me, "and I shall make no statement that might affect the delicate relationship between church and state."

His admiring priests, however, are less reticent. From their revelations and others, PARADE pieced together an account of deeds that are an inspiration to all free men.

Ordained in 1933 to the Redemptorist Order, Reilly began a life of service on forgotten fronts. He spent most of World War II as a chaplain on the barren, freezing, fog-shrouded Aleutians where a small force of GIs had more trouble with the elements than the enemy in dislodging the Japanese from their only foothold on this continent. A transfer to the tropics came just in time for him to hit the beaches with the first assault troops retaking the Philippines.

BISHOP THOMAS REILLY

Back in his robes after the war, he was assigned in 1947 to the Dominican Republic, to the arid, mountainous scrub country near the border of Haiti. Here he found the most forgotten front of all: villages of flimsy thatched huts, slums in the sun overflowing with hungry, naked children. He worked among the poorest of the poor, who often couldn't afford the few pathetic pennies it took to buy bananas, the bread of the tropics. Father Reilly found families who had lived for weeks, even months, on wild mangoes scrabbled from the tangled underbrush.

He also found discrimination against the descamisados, the shirtless ones, even in the Church. First as a priest, then nine years later as the new bishop, Thomas Reilly worked to change all that, to make the Church a place where all were equal, where the most ragged were welcome in the sight of God.

It was inevitable that the humble bishop and the haughty tyrant would collide. Fugitives from Trujillo's terror soon found a fearless friend in the quiet-spoken Bostonian. He sheltered them in his diocese, helped more than one to escape. A high diplomat relates how Reilly saved opposition leader Guido d'Alessandri by smuggling him out of the country in a nun's habit.

FIRST SHOTS IN A QUIET WAR

The bishop also began speaking out boldly against Trujillo from the pulpit. It was the first time such political heresy had been heard in the land. But Reilly was only one of six Catholic bishops in the Dominican Republic. Four were Dominican citizens whose families could be terrorized. When he sought to unite the hierarchy against Trujillo's oppression, only Spanish-born Bishop Francisco Panal Ramirez stood with him. They were usually outvoted, 4 to 2.

Then late in 1959 came a powerful reinforcement. Papal Nuncio Lino Zanini, a tall, dynamic man, arrived in Ciudad Trujillo. He listened to the opposing views: the Dominican bishops pleading for caution, Reilly insisting that the Church must stand for the freedom and dignity of man. Zanini threw his immense authority on the side of Bishop Reilly, and on January 25, 1960, the Church delivered an ecclesiastical bombshell.

The bishops signed a pastoral letter calling for recognition of "the rights of all men to freedom of conscience, of press and of assembly." The language had the ring of 1776, as if it had been drafted, say, by someone from Boston. "The basis and foundation of all positive law is the inviolable dignity of the human person," the letter went on. "We hope that by a program of mutual understanding, excesses can be avoided . . . tears dried, wounds healed and peace restored to so many homes." In a final, subtle thrust at Trujillo, the bishops added that they would seek a special boon from God that no member of the dictator's own family "should ever experience during his lifetime the suffering that afflicts today so many Dominicans."

This stirring document was read at all masses of all 624 Catholic churches in the Dominican Republic, including the oldest cathedral in the Western hemisphere, the 421-year-old Cathedral of Santa Maria la Menoir, which holds the tomb of Christopher Columbus. The churches were packed with grim-faced men and women, drawn by whispers of the freedom document. They listened, tense with excitement, as the bishops and their priests hurled down the challenge.

Trujillo raged and replied with the familiar weapons of terrorism. Bishop Reilly was dogged by the secret police. He received whispered warnings about the danger of automobile "accidents" — a favorite Trujillo method of eliminating critics. The bishop confided to a friend: "I expected every automobile ride to be my last." The Dominican bishops got the same warnings, extended to their relatives.

THE DICTATOR

Simultaneously, the puppet press began an attack upon the priests, calling them "psychotics, perverts and parasites." Priests were expelled from the country on the slightest pretext until more than 50 had been thrown out. Trujillo goons would dress in cassocks and cavort in bars and brothels to bring shame on the Church. The government put the squeeze on parents to remove their children from parochial schools.

As for the old dictator, he swung like a pendulum between fits of passion and attempts at placation. When he wasn't screaming invectives at the priests, he was pleading for the Church to settle differences quietly. He even hinted that, as a personal favor to the Church, he might free political prisoners. He also put on a feverish public show of being a good Catholic.

But to Papal Nuncio Zanini he sent a blunt message: "This is war." Zanini replied blandly: "On the contrary, this is a declaration of peace." Trujillo then sent his Foreign Minister, Porfirio Herrera Baez, to the Vatican to press for Zanini's removal and the silencing of the bishops. The Pope refused both requests. "The Church," he said gently, "cannot do otherwise than concern itself with justice."

All the while, Trujillo concentrated on making it hot for Bishop Reilly. He intensified the persecution of priests and nuns in the Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana until Bishop Reilly pulled them out and served notice that he wanted to talk to Trujillo.

It wasn't the first time the two men had met—the tyrant and the churchman—but in the past Trujillo had always been a model of cordiality. Now he stamped into the room, snapping out short, blunt orders to aides. "These troubles with the priests in San Juan must end," he barked. "The general up there is no good. He will have to be moved. I am sorry, Bishop, for your difficulties. But you see I am trying to put them right."

THE ARMED TRUCE AND HOW IT ENDED

Bishop Reilly was not taken in by all this good will. But the Dominican bishops pressed for a modus vivendi with Trujillo. The result in January 1961 was a mild petition to El Benefactor, as Trujillo was called, asking him to stop his minions from interfering in religious affairs and to stop other abuses against the church. For their part, the bishops promised the priests would be instructed to cooperate and not go beyond their religious duties.

Trujillo chose to treat the appeasement offer as a petition of surrender. In an insolent tone, the government began its reply: "We have devoted the most careful consideration to your intention to correct the imprudences which, as you loyally acknowledge, have been committed in the Church." Then as the price for ending the persecution, the government demanded: "The circumstances are propitious for you to support the initiative to grant to His Excellency the title of Benefactor of the Catholic Church."

The last time this title had been granted was in 1167 to the Holy Roman Emperor Friedrich Barbarossa. The bishops, choking on Trujillo's effrontery, made a barbed reply. They pointed out that only the Holy See could create such titles, then added: "We are sure, however, that God, the Infallible Recompenser, will not let merit go unrewarded." Trujillo could read that statement any way he chose.

GENERALISSIMO RAFAEL TRUJILLO

The dictator privately blamed Bishop Reilly for the rebuff and swore to drive him out of the country. He accused Bishop Reilly of heading a terrorist conspiracy against the government. Three men were produced who eagerly confessed their guilt and named Bishop Reilly as their leader. The alleged confession claimed that the bishop "put the finishing touches on explosive bombs." Of course, Reilly denied the fantastic charge and continued to speak out against Generalissimo Trujillo.

From words, the old tyrant fell back on violence. A dutiful mob, directed by Trujillo's soldiers in mufti, attacked and sacked the bishop's home. Reilly in his robes watched the havoc, then calmly walked toward the mob—which parted like the Red Sea at the approach of Moses and let him through. With quiet modesty, the bishop now disclaims any heroism. His comment: "There was nowhere else to go."

Having watched his home reduced to a shell (not a window, dish, door or ornament was left) the bishop made his way to the rectory. This was also attacked by a mob led by soldiers in civilian clothes. The surging, shouting rabble, using huge metal gate hinges to batter down the doors, hit the rectory in waves with military precision. The leaders told the mob exactly what to do, what to loot.

One priest told PARADE he was on the second floor with a baseball bat, defending a narrow staircase. He was a big, burly Spanish priest, clearly a Horatius to be reckoned with at any bridge. Two dogs also helped to defend the rectory. One attacked a soldier and was bayoneted to death. The other was muzzled and dragged off with the loot. It was learned later that the mob was under strict orders not to harm any nuns or priests. Says Bishop Reilly: "If they had only told us that in advance, we should have felt considerably more comfortable."

THE FINAL ACT — OR IS IT?

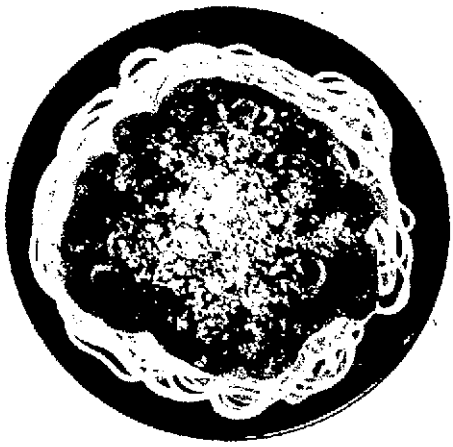

For the second time in a year, he pulled all his priests out of the mountains and led them to Ciudad Trujillo where they took refuge in a convent. He remained there under house arrest until Trujillo's assassination on the night of May 30. Early the following morning, revenge-seeking police hammered at the convent door, knocked down two nuns, seized Bishop Reilly and dragged him off to jail. But calmer heads prevailed; the bishop was released and allowed to return with his priests to San Juan.

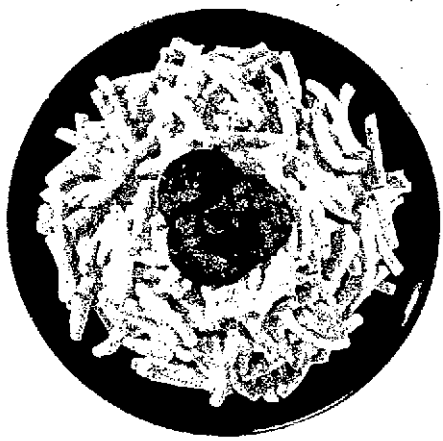

Here his sorely tested faith was restored. He found his people—the shirtless ones—full of shame and repentance for the attack on his home and rectory. They had wanted no part of it, but they could not defy the soldiers. They regarded Trujillo's death as God's punishment for the man who had ordered the attack on their beloved bishop.

They pooled their poor pennies and scoured the black market to buy back the bishop's looted belongings. They even found the stolen dog and bought him back for five pesos.

The new Dominican government now seems eager for peace with Bishop Reilly and his priests. But the police still watch his every move. They questioned my driver as I was dining one evening with the bishop. We ate canned soup and Spam served on a long, battered table in the wrecked rectory.

As we munched on the Spam, a telegram arrived for Bishop Reilly. It read: "The windows will be ready on Wednesday." The bishop chuckled, then explained: "It is from one of my priests, notifying me of a meeting. Things are better now, but we must still be careful." ■

An extra special dessert:

ICE CREAM PIE

by BETH MERRIMAN
Parade food editor

THIS VERSION of ice cream pie has an air of elegance that establishes it at once as a dessert for company. The pastry shell is flecked with finely chopped walnuts that take on rich flavor as the pastry bakes. The filling is creamy peach ice cream crowned with swirls of soft meringue. And, for the final touch, a spoonful of satin-smooth fudge sauce. Not a dessert for every day, as you can see, but one to remember when you want to make an impression.

The dinner leading up to this dessert should be worthy of it. Begin with frosty cold cranberry juice. For the main course, serve broiled club or shell steaks garnished with buttery brown mushrooms, fluffy mashed potatoes with chives, asparagus spears and a crisp green salad with French dressing.

Peach Alaska Pie

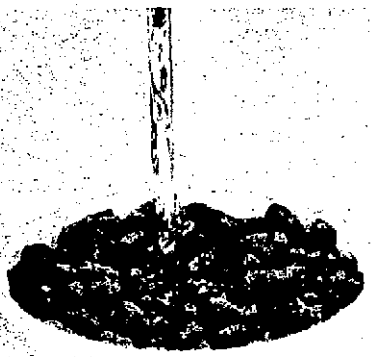

Walnut pastry
1 quart peach ice cream, slightly softened
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
Satin fudge sauce

To make the walnut pastry, add ½ cup finely chopped walnuts to the dry ingredients for pastry for one-crust pie. Line 9" pie pan with pastry; trim edges, press to rim of pan with tines of fork. Prick surface with fork. Bake in hot oven (450°) for 12 to 15 minutes. Cool thoroughly. Fill with ice cream; freeze until ice cream is firm. Beat egg whites until foamy; add sugar slowly; beat until stiff peaks form. Beat 5 minutes longer. Swirl over ice cream, making sure that all ice cream is thickly covered. Bake in hot oven (400°) for 3 to 5 minutes or until golden brown. Serve at once with sauce.

To make satin fudge sauce, combine 1 package (¼ pound) sweet cooking chocolate and 2 tablespoons water in small saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat until chocolate is melted, about 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add 3 tablespoons cream; stir until smooth.

HEMINGWAY BIOGRAPHY. Leicester Hemingway, younger brother of Ernest Hemingway, has finished a biography of his famous brother to be published in January 1962. It contains intimate family material, many heretofore unpublished photos.

SELF-LIGHTING CIGARETS. By Christmas a self-lighting cigaret is scheduled to go on sale in the American market. The cigaret tip will be ignited by gently rubbing the treated end on a specially impregnated package surface. The application to the striking surface will cause the entire end of the cigaret to glow evenly. The cigaret can be lit under all weather conditions. American Machine & Foundry is producing the machines for the Continental Tobacco Company, which has put in four years on the project.

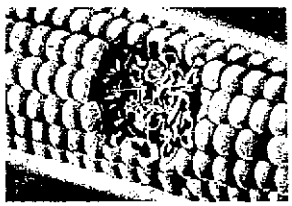

CHANDLER'S DEATH. Hollywood expects an investigation to be made concerning the untimely death of actor Jeff Chandler following an operation. The actor's former wife has hired attorney Irving Green to look into the full circumstances of Chandler's death and, if necessary, take necessary legal steps to determine the entire truth. Green handled most of the damage suits filed by victims of the 1956 airplane crash over the Grand Canyon.

FEMALE ROAD GANGS. New and welcome on Midwestern highways are female flaggers. These are college girls hired by contractors working on highway repair jobs. The girls, young, attractive, clad in shorts or blue jeans, flag down approaching cars. Idea, which started in Iowa, is that girl flaggers antagonize male motorists much less than men do.

COMPULSORY POLIO SHOTS. Immunization against polio is now mandatory for admission to elementary and secondary schools in about half our states. In many of these states the law exempts only those persons who stipulate in writing that polio immunization is against their religious or private beliefs.

IMMIGRATION CURBS. Influx of West Indian Negroes, Pakistanis and Indians is compelling Great Britain to pass new laws curbing immigration. To be introduced later this fall is legislation proposing that immigrants be of good health, have guaranteed employment awaiting them, have some job skill. The law will apply to all immigrants irrespective of color, but will serve to keep out of the United Kingdom those immigrants who contribute the least, take the most. The British are now face to face with their own "color problem."

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Genius, they say, often is misunderstood.

I am not sure that I always understand the genius of playwright Eugene O'Neill.

But I marvel at it.

And I am absorbed in the strength and depth of his characterizations, although the players that walk across the O'Neill stage are spiritual and moral weaklings.

Their strongness lies in the feeling for life—or death—that the mastery of O'Neill's pen has transfused to them.

Even the most mediocre of actors, with these lines from life, acquires a stature far above his every-day capability.

No cardboard characters, these. How unlike the run-of-the-mill, flip, TV private-eye they are. How unlike the gurgling video skin-diver.

For four hours last Wednesday, I had the privilege of previewing O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh."

The first two-hour part will be aired next Thursday on "The Play of the Week" at 8 p. m., channel 13. On the following Thursday, the conclusion will be shown.

It is depressing. It is exhilarating.

It is sustained quality that attains the greatness of TV's potential.

It is torment alive—the torment that was O'Neill and the torment he bled onto the pages of his script.

Jason Robards Jr., an actor whom I have not seen before, has the lead role of "Hickey."

Although he is a young man, I cannot imagine how, in his continuing career, he will ever top this performance.

Robards, particularly in the concluding part, wraps his feelings around you and engulfs the viewer in turbulent, soul-searching emotion.

He's great. Simply great.

THE SETTING for "The Iceman Cometh" is a water-front bar. The bar's habituees are the human dregs for whom everyday life daily starts with an eye-opener and nightly ends in passed-out stupor.

Their life is the bottle and pipe dreams.

Into this palace of pipe dreams comes Hickey, a one-time boozing buddy.

But he is a reformed Hickey and he's peddling peace of mind.

Not peace of mind through old-fashioned religion, oh, no. Pied Piper Hickey, the black-sheep son of a preacher, wants none of that.

What he's selling is a facing of the pipe dreams and recognition that they're nothing but smoke.

That's enough about the plot.

No editor, no critic, no "Reader's Digest" condensation could do plot-line justice to this giant.

It is a profane giant. A controversial giant.

Before the play starts, Al Flanagan, general manager of KCOP, makes this announcement:

"If there are children in your home, may we suggest another form of entertainment or another channel."

Parents should take that as fair warning.

While there is nothing of the strip-tease physical, very little else of what can be verbally expressed is left to the imagination.

I am not sure that the majority of viewers will like "The Iceman Cometh."

I am sure that the production is not just intended to appeal to the intellectual or psuedo-intellectual.

A man with a diploma from the "School of Experience" can as readily appreciate this play as a Harvard professor.

Make no mistake about "The Iceman Cometh." It is not a joyful thing. Its basic feeling is that of defeat.

You won't have a happy "entertained" feeling like watching the "Ed Sullivan Show."

But it is a feeling of defeat that is victoriously sculpted with a genius that touches all man, each uncommon in his individuality.

BARNEY RUBBLE (left) and Fred Flintstone pool their talents to make a fortune in the "Hit Song Writers" episode opening "The Flintstones" second season 8:30 p.m. Friday, channel 7. Real-life composer Hoagy Carmichael also had his voice recorded for this sequence.

IRENE DUNNE LIKES TV 'CHALLENGE'

SURROUNDED BY LIONS

Irene Dunne Appears in TV's 'Frontier Circus'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Irene Dunne was back before the cameras working in a TV show called "Frontier Circus," of all things.

She likes TV, she said. After a long career of plowing through feature pictures, she enjoys the hit-and-run schedules of television.

"It's a challenge," said the actress, as regally lovely as ever at 56. "You're entirely on your own. You've got to work out your own characterization before you start, because you won't have time afterward."

She was working on the back lot of Universal, where she made "Back Street" and "Show Boat" early in her film career. There was something incongruous about the great lady being surrounded by bears, lions and roustabouts of the slightly seedy circus. She plays a lady doctor who becomes involved with Chill Wills, impresario of the traveling troupe.

"I haven't retired," Miss Dunne remarked. 'I never would retire, because I love this business. And you know, there's something strange about it. No matter how long you've been gone, you can come back and it seems as if you've never left it."

* * * *

SHE DOES AN occasional TV show, but most of her time is devoted to charities and her work for the United Nations. One of her big jobs this year was lining up the deal for "How the West Was Won." The MGM cinerama epic is a unique project which will benefit St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica. She is married to Dr. Francis Griffin.

"I was practically the casting director for the picture," Miss Dunne said. "I spent weeks going around to the different stars to line them up. Each of them works only three or four weeks and they get a pro rata payment of their usual salary. I must say they've all been wonderful about it."

Among the stars: James Stewart, Henry Fonda, Debbie Reynolds, Richard Widmark, John Wayne, Carroll Baker, Hope Lange, George Peppard, Karl Malden, Walter Brennan, Gregory Peck, Robert Preston.

Miss Dunne is not in the cast, nor has she made a feature since "It Grows On Trees" in 1952. Will she do another one?

"I don't know," she said dubiously. "I had a long and wonderful career in films. Would I ever be able to find a picture as good as some of those I've done?"

David Brinkley Prepares New Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—TV newsman David Brinkley—the girls call him "Twinkly Brinkley"—promises he will not give away washing machines on his new half-hour show.

He isn't sure just exactly what he will do with his weekly Wednesday night program.

"But I can say what it won't be," he declared.

"It won't be a news show. Every station in the country has a news program of its own at that hour (10:30) every night and the news would be old by that time.

"And I won't do a weekly review of the news. That's just a rehash of everything viewers have heard before."

Neither will Dave play the banjo, sing, dance, tell jokes or talk about his horse and airplane like Arthur Godfrey does. Brinkley doesn't happen to own either a horse or plane. And friends say his singing voice leaves something to be desired.

DAVD 'TWINKLY' BRINKLEY

So here's a man with 30 minutes of NBC network time to fill beginning Oct. 11 and he's working overtime to get things organized.

"I DON'T HAVE a format or a gimmick," he said. "Documentaries are out, too. Some weeks we'll cover just one subject, and other times we'll have three or four different subjects.

"If you have to make a comparison, it might be like the feature and editorial page of a newspaper."

Some of the ideas Brinkley and his staff of 12 are working on:

A critical examination of the British press.

The boomtown of Cocoa Beach near the Cape Canavaral space activities.

A story of the 1961 cowboy and what he really is like.

"The British press story has me worked up," Brinkley said in a soft Southern accent that had a bit of steel behind it.

"WHEN WE SHOT Virgil Grissom into space the British papers said we shouldn't have done it because, 'There was nothing to be gained.' They said it was risky and silly.

"Then the head of our space administration began answering the English papers. In effect he was answering their editorials. Why the hell should we bother with them? With a couple of exceptions, British newspapers are lousy. I'm going to point this out."

From all indications Brinkley is going to hit hard whenever he feels like it. Even his own medium, TV, is not safe.

"My new show is the type of thing television can do best," he said.

"Entertainment—westerns, thrillers, drama can be done better on the stage or in movies.

"Our show (The David Brinkley Journal) will be mostly live with film and tape segments. Right now there are five camera crews working all over the world for our material.

"I think it will be a different kind of TV show, and think I'll enjoy doing it."

THE STORY of Will Rogers' life, including his friendship with Charles A. Lindbergh (left), is repeated 9 p.m. Tuesday on channel 4. Bob Hope narrates.

'TELEVUES' DEADLINE SEPT. 23

Deadline for entering the "Why I like TeleVues" contest is Sept. 23.

Letters should be limited to 100 words and addressed to "TeleVues, care of Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif."

Winners will be announced Oct. 1.

A check for $25 will be presented to the top winner.

The runner-up and a guest will have lunch with Donald May, featured on ABC-TV's "The Roaring 20's," at the Warner Bros. Studios' commissary. The pair will also be conducted on a tour of the lot.

The third-prize winner will have his choice of four tickets for a Dinah Shore NBC-TV special on Oct. 6 or a Bob Newhardt program at a later date.

Holiday Show

Gordon MacRae will star in a musical variety show, "Home for the Holidays," set for airing Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 23, on NBC-TV. Other show principals will include Patrice Munsel, Carol Haney and Al Hirt.

Pilot Plots 'Hoax' Public

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Did you ever stop to think about the ways in which television insults you?

OK, let's think about it. There now are several "preview" programs. Their names are unimportant; there have been programs like them every summer for years. They are a series of unsold pilot films. They aren't repeats, because you haven't seen them before. These are previously unused half-hour films which cost a lot of money, because a script had to be bought; producer, director, and actors hired; sets built and film and camera men utilized.

The pilot films were made to be sold as forerunners of successful series.

The only trouble is: they didn't sell.

* * * *

IN OTHER WORDS, these are failures. What you are seeing is a parade of flops. These are the have-nots of TV—the programs that were by-passed when the networks and the agencies bought those "great" shows—"Happy" or "My Sister Eileen" or "One Happy Family" or "Mr. Garlund."

Those were bad. These are worse.

Can you think of any other art form where the flops, the failures, the dogs are commercially sponsored?

Take book publishing. Just supose that a publisher took all his rejected manuscripts and put them out. He might call them "Preview Editions," or some other jazzy title.

Or take music .Even songwriters have their bad days. If they adopted TV's philosophy of making capital out of rejects, they could bundle up their most miserable, unpublished tunes and put them out on one big LP—call it "And Then I Almost Wrote."

How about the Broadway theater? There are plays that are given one or two performances and then quietly fold in the face of the critics' onslaught. But you should see the ones that don't even make it into town. Using TV's approach, these theatrical gems would be showcased in an attractive repertory season—"The Best of Way-Off Broadway."

THE TRAGEDY of TV's philosophy is that we, the public, are paying (for we pay for all TV, actually, by buying products) to see shows which admittedly are poor. And not merely poor, but so bad nobody wanted to invest in them. Yet they are offered up with great fanfare, as sommething new in the way of summer viewing.

CYNTHIA PEPPER AND STAN MORESS
Off for Hot Campaign

IN RACOON COAT

Tub-Thumper Has Hot Time Publicizing 'Margie'

The kookie capers of press agents often become legendary in the world of show business.

The latest stunt to come from Hollywood involves a young flack named Stan Moress who is tub-thumping around the country for "Margie," a new half-hour comedy series which premieres on Oct. 12 on ABC-TV.

While everyone else tries to beat the heat in lightweight summer clothing, Stan happily dons white flannel slacks, a bright corduroy blazer and a 35-pound racoon coat straight from the Twenties, the period in which "Margie" is set.

Oblivious to the curious glances he receives, he dutifully climbs into an old touring car, arms himself with publicity material and sets out to visit newspapermen.

Stan, who takes these things in stride, follows in a long line of enterprising publicists, many of whom have become famous in their own right.

PROBABLY THE MOST CELEBRATED drum beater in America is bearded Jim Moran.

During his colorful career, Moran has promoted refrigerators by selling them to Eskimos and, for the movie "The Egg and I," he crouched in a huge egg in a department store window until it "hatched."

At one time he also gave another press agent the scare of his life.

His colleague had brought Rhubarb, Hollywood's acting cat, to New York to publicize a picture. Part of the stunt called for the cat to be interviewed at "21," the well known restaurant. The press agent was called to the phone before the interview began and when he returned, Rhubarb, worth thousands of dollars, was missing.

It was later discovered that Moran had filched Rhubarb and taken him to Texas much to the horror of the studio press agent.

But all was forgiven when the story broke nationally which, after all, was the purpose of the original idea.

SOMETIMES, DESPITE CAREFUL planning, unforeseen events occur which completely ruin a promotion.

To publicize a Mae West picture titled "It Ain't No Sin," an old pro rounded up a hundred parrots and locked them in a room with a recording which repeated the title of the movie. After two weeks, all the parrots were faithfully babbling "It Ain't No Sin" and the press agent was ready to send them to movie editors around the country when he got a message from the producer.

The title had been changed to "I'm No Angel!!"

Another stunt that backfired happened during the campaign on a sailing-ship movie. The studio planned to truck the ship on a nationwide tour but it didn't get further than Pasadena. The 30-foot masts just wouldn't squeeze under a railroad bridge!

'Toy World'

The joy of children with toys will be TV captured in an hour-long special set for airing Nov. 12 on NBC-TV. It is entitled "The Wonderful World of Toys."

WHO WILL WIN NEW RATING DERBY?

Can 'Sing Along With Mitch' Gun Down 'The Untouchables'?

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They're off and running in the 1961-62 TV rating race.

Perhaps you couldn't care less, but up and down Madison Avenue they're all a-tingle. You and I can tell at a glance whether a show is good or lousy. But the ad man never knows until the ratings tell him so.

As always, the main interest in the rating derby concerns the long-running, high-rated champions and whether they can be toppled from their thrones. Here's how the races shape up:

"Gunsmoke" is going double-barreled this season, expanding to an hour. That may or may not aid its chances of retaining CBS' Saturday night monopoly with "Have Gun, Will Travel." NBC is countering with an unimaginative but potentially successful plan of offering old Fox movies. ABC is sticking with swinging Larry Welk and the fights.

WHO CAN BEAT "The Untouchables"? Nobody, judging from the opposition: "CBS Reports and NBC's "Sing Along With Mitch."

Will the public continue to swing along with "Wagon Train"? Probably. CBS can muster only "Alvin and the Chipmunks" and "Father Knows Best" reruns. ABC is pitting Steve Allen against the westerners. Remember when he was NBC's choice to lick Ed Sullivan?

The unlickable Sullivan faces NBC's Walt Disney, who was earlier downed by "Wagon Train" (this gets to be a round-robin). ABC's sacrifice offering is "Follow the Sun," south-sea adventure out of the 20th Fox mill.

"The Rifleman" faces real trouble from Robert Young's new show on CBS, plus "The Price Is Right" on NBC.

DANNY THOMAS, the Satchel Paige of TV, seems to have easy going against ABC's potboiler "Surfside Six" and something called "7th Precinct."

"The Real McCoys" faces some tough competition with the rejuvenation of "Dr. Kildare" on NBC and the third coming to TV of Robert Cummings on CBS.

Ratings, ratings, ratings. Everyone condemns them, but the television industry continues to live by them.

The dreamer likes to think of what might happen if ratings were abolished for a season. For one whole season the network bosses, ad men and advertisers would have to provide programming without regard to how many sets were tuned in. The yardstick would be intelligence, taste and quality of entertainment.

An idle dream, but fun to think about.

'The Defenders' Lose Cases but Win TV Slot

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — All right, so another series about the law, and its servants, and the people who run—as the papers sometimes say—afoul of it, is getting under way next Saturday. What's so new and different about that? Perry Mason's been around for years.

Matter of fact, this new one-hour show named "The Defenders" is coming on CBS-TV (channel 2) at 8:30 p.m. right after Mason gets through winning his case every week. But these new boys—a father and son team of lawyers—don't always win. And the show portrays practically no violence on screen. And it's legally accurate.

"We've finished 18 shows so far, and they've already lost four or five times," said Reginald Rose, the creator of the series. Rose wrote a number of the scripts and is script editor of the others.

He's the man who won an Emmy for "Twelve Angry Men" and has a list of other notable TV plays to his credit. This is his first series.

* * * *

"I'M VERY excited about it," he said. "For us, it's a chance to prove you can do a mature series on TV and be successful. We're trying as best we can to take on adult topics and handle them in an adult manner and still be entertaining.

"And CBS has gone along with us on some pretty tough topics. Not one of our ideas has been turned down. Some of them are subjects that TV usually doesn't deal with: Abortion, religious sects that don't allow surgery, the rape of a small child.

"In one of them we discuss the pros and cons of mercy killing very thoroughly. It deals with a doctor who kills a newborn infant who was born a mongoloid idiot. He was a friend of the parents. He's caught by a nurse and tried for first degree murder."

E. G. MARSHALL SUMS UP DEFENSE

Rose got interested in trials when he served on a jury in 1954. It was there he got the idea of "Twelve Angry Men," a drama set entirely in a jury room. Then, in 1957: "My own lawyer more or less dared me to write an authentic courtroom drama—he said it had never been done, with the technicalities, and such, accurate—so he sat down and helped me write 'The Defender.'"

* * * *

THIS PLAY ran in two one-hour instalments that winter. The new series is sort of an outgrowth of that idea, with two defenders instead of one. It will attempt a realistic depiction of the legal profession, but not necessarily stay tied to a courtroom.

"We've hired my lawyer, who has been a trial attorney for 14 years, as a technical assistant," Rose said. "Sometimes he sits down and writes the courtroom scenes with the writers so that things are technically right.

"But what we've tried to do, rather than run a show of trials and hearings, is to deal with the real problems of people—the people rather than the gimmicks. And also, our DA's are not villains and the judges are human beings; we meet all of them outside the courtroom.

Tucson dogs check new dog food claims

TUCSON, Ariz.—Local dogs turned out in force recently when General Mills held dramatic, informal dog food tests right in the heart of downtown Tucson. This test, one of several held in various West Coast cities, confirmed earlier kennel tests in which 2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket from their regular dry dog food.

2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket in General Mills' Kennel Tests

$1.00 GUARANTEE OFFERED

One of America's leading food producers, General Mills, has created a new dog food called Surechamp Meal Ticket with such an appealing and different taste that:

- 2 out of 3 dogs tested switched to it from their regular dry dog food in scientific kennel tests.
- In a series of public feeding tests 2 out of 3 dogs also chose new Surechamp Meal Ticket over their owner's choice of five leading packaged dog foods.
- General Mills guarantees dogs will enjoy the new food and backs the guarantee with the offer of a $1.00 coupon, good toward the purchase of any dry dog food.

Meal Ticket is a greatly improved formulation of Surechamp, a food long popular among West Coast dogs.

Tests prove theories

The feeding tests, General Mills spokesmen say, gave scientific proof to widely held theories that dogs, like people, welcome exciting new flavor in their diets.

Discoveries about the importance of a combination of ingredients, cooking, shape and texture in the enhancement of dog food flavor produced the taste triumph.

Unique new shape

The product's unique new roll shape is of great importance, General Mills officials say. Kennel tests show dogs are especially fond of this new form.

And, certain ingredients not only enhance flavor but add vitamins and proteins to an already completely balanced canine meal.

"EATIN' GOOD" GUARANTEE

Following are details of the product's guarantee, believed to be the most daring in the history of the dog food industry.

New—guaranteed eatin' good. Your dog will eat and enjoy Surechamp Meal Ticket. If he doesn't, send the certificate of guarantee from any package of New Surechamp Meal Ticket and a letter describing your dog's reaction to: General Mills, Inc., Box 37, Minneapolis 60, Minn. We'll send you a $1.00 coupon good on any dry dog food at your grocer's. Limit, one coupon to a customer.

Sky Spy, Nike-Zeus Blow Up

By LEE CRAIG
Aviation Editor

America's defense plans suffered a double setback Saturday when a Samos sky spy satellite that was intended to orbit over Russia exploded on its Point Arguello launching pad and, a half-hour later, a Nike-Zeus anti-missile rocket blew up six seconds after launch at Point Mugu.

Army officers, however, declared they were pleased with the Zeus test, despite the blow-up.

LAUNCHING equipment worked perfectly and the 48-foot rocket designed to protect this country from nuclear attack by intercontinental-ballistic missiles, performed as planned until just after its second stage ignition.

The Army will study preliminary data to determine what caused the 450,000-pound-thrust missile to destroy itself.

Air Force spokesmen in charge of the Samos project had no explanation for the Point Arguello explosion.

Concussion from three rapid-fire explosive shocks rocked the press observation point a mile distant from the pad. When the smoke lifted, the satellite and its rocket booster were gone, blown to pieces.

* * * *

THE TWO-TON Samos III had been scheduled for a polar orbit that would have taken it regularly over the Soviet Union and other iron curtain countries approximately every 27 hours.

First successful satellite of this type, Samos II, was launched at Point Arguello last January. The Air Force refused comment on whether the spy satellite's cameras are still working.

A network of 8 to 12 Samos satellites is planned, which

USS Long Beach Joins the Fleet

By BOB WELLS

BOSTON—The guided missile cruiser USS Long Beach, the world's first nuclear-powered surface warship, officially joined the U.S. fleet in commissioning ceremonies at the Boston Naval Yard Saturday afternoon.

More than 1,500 persons, including 30 from Long Beach, sat in folding chairs along a concrete pier under a hot New England sun and heard Navy Secretary John B. Connally salute the Long Beach as "a ship that will herald the beginnings of a new navy."

* * * *

AS THE RED, white and blue pennant formally putting her in the Navy was hoisted, Connally told 960 crewmen and the guests, "our goal now, in these non-war days, should be to insure that if we should have to fight again, there could be no question that we would finish strong."

Connally gave no hint of the future missions of the Long Beach, but said her range is "practicaly unlimited and she will be traveling the sea at an unprecedented speed."

"Jane's Fighting Ships," the British publication on the world's navies, said her speed is 45 knots (52 miles an hour).

On the speakers' platform aboard the bunting-draped quarterdeck of the cruiser were Representative and Mrs. Craig Hosmer, Mayor Edwin W. Wade of Long Beach, Capt. Eugene P. Wilkinson, skipper of the nuclear cruiser, and Mrs. Wilkinson and numerous Navy dignitaries.

* * * *

A SCANT three miles away across Boston harbor, other crowds were touring USS Constitution, "Old Ironsides," the first great fighting ship of the American Navy, which is moored here as a naval museum. The two ships provide a historic contrast: Old Ironsides, which swept the seas with her round shot and subdued the Barbary pirates, cost approximately $300,000 to build.

The Long Beach armed with Talos and Terrier missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads cost $320,547,000.

Mayor Wade told the crowd the reason the atomic cruiser bears the name USS Long Beach is the fine relationship which exists between the United States Navy and the people of the City of Long Beach.

He reviewed the past history of that relationship, noting that Long Beach was a

Jobs Hit Record in Area

Increased hiring in the aircraft industry in Los Angeles and Orange counties marked a zoom to an all-time high of 2,780,000 persons with jobs in the two counties last month.

Irving H. Perluss, director of employment for the State Department of Employment, said the outstanding development of the job picture in August was that the aircraft industry posted its first increases in hiring in two years.

* * * *

THE OVERALL increase in employment in August for the two counties was up 16,300 from July and 45,800 over the figure for the same month last year.

Another bright spot in the employment picture was that unemployment in the areas dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time this year.

Unemployment fell from 206,600 in July to 199,500 in August, compared to 168,500 in August 1960.

JFK Hits at K for Fallout

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Saturday night accused the Soviet Union of violating its own health rules for the world by splashing the atmosphere with radioactive fallout from nuclear weapons tests.

The chief executive and the prime minister joined in a statement of "deepest regret" that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev turned down their Sept. 3 proposal that fallout-producing tests in the atmosphere be halted immediately.

* * * *

"THIS ACTION contrasts vividly with the Soviet Union's own repeated expressions of concern as to the health hazards of such testing," the joint Kennedy-Macmillan statement said.

Possibly because Khrushchev complained that an agreement with Great Britain and the United States would not stop other powers such as France from testing in the air, Kennedy and Macmillan repeated their willingness "to negotiate a controlled nuclear test ban agreement of the widest possible scope."

Khrushchev, in his note delivered Saturday to the American and British embassies in Moscow, gave no indication of willingness to halt the current Russian series of test shots.

* * * *

AMERICAN officials expect Khrushchev to end the series with explosion of a weapon to support his claim of being able to produce a 100-megaton bomb.

U.S. Airliner Crashes With 82 on Board

Loaded With Army Personnel; 'Heavy' Loss Is Reported

SHANNON, Ireland, Sunday (AP)—A chartered airliner carrying 82 American Army personnel and their families crashed in the River Shannon early today, a U.S. Air Force spokesman reported.

"It appears that casualties are heavy," the spokesman said.

Most of those aboard the plane were women and children.

(The wire services carried contradictory dispatches on the identity of the passengers. UPI called them Germans; the Air Force spokesmen in London informed the Associated Press that all those aboard were U. S. Army dependents.)

* * * *

THE AIRLINER—a DC6—went down soon after taking off from Shannon airport in a thick fog.

The fog hampered rescue operations.

The River Shannon, where the plane was reported to have crashed, is about two miles from the airport.

The four-engine plane was flying from Germany to the United States and stopped at Shannon for refueling.

Airport officials said the plane was believed owned by President Air Lines.

A thick fog covered the airport area as the big airliner set out at 3 a.m. Shannon time).

* * * *

OFFICIALS said the aircraft was believed to have come down about two miles from the airport—near the banks of the storied River Shannon.

All ambulances and hospitals in the Shannon area were called.

Telephone lines out of the airport and nearby Limerick were taken over for emergency purposes.

JFK to Address U.N. Sept. 21

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—President Kennedy plans to address the U.N. General Assembly Sept. 21, diplomatic sources said Saturday night.

One source said the date was "as firm as anything can be" in view of Kennedy's uncertain schedule due to the world crisis. The source said the speech would set forth the U.S. stand for a nuclear-test ban and disarmament under proper controls.

It also was believed Kennedy might bring up the Berlin question and state his views on a possible meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

RED EMBASSY SET AFIRE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet Embassy spokesman said Saturday night an attempt had been made by unidentified persons to set fire to the Embassy building during the day, but the fire was quickly put out.

The embassy, through its press officer Oleg Sokolov, issued this brief statement:

"An attempt was made today by unknown persons to set fire to the Soviet Embassy. The fire was quickly put out by the embassy personnel. "The charge d' affairs (Mikhail) Smirnovsky called on Secretary of State Rusk and stated strongest protests against this unprecedented criminal act."

State Hailed in Longest L.B. Parade

160 Units of Native Sons, Daughters March to Cheers

By BILL JONES

The longest parade in the history of Long Beach marched past thousands of cheering spectators Saturday night in the annual observance of California's admission to the United States.

Though the crowd was described by police traffic officials as disappointing, the line of marchers certainly wasn't.

More than 160 units, led by Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, took part in the 20-block march along Ocean Boulevard.

* * * *

THE GREATEST cheers were reserved for the governor's wife. After Brown finished speaking — mentioning that he was a native son—he handed the microphone to his wife and asked her to address the crowd. "No, thank you," she answered, "I'll leave the speech-making up to you."

Rousing cheers greeted San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, who led the largest single group of entries in the parade. Preceding him was the famed San Francisco Police Motorcycle Unit.

Spectators had a lengthy wait before viewing drill teams and bands as a cavalcade of parade officials, state and local government officers and past heads of the sponsoring Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden

10-Foot Waves Hit Gulf Coast

Bulletin

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—The U. S. Weather Bureau here said Sunday night hurricane Carla may flood 90 per cent of Galveston Island with tides up to 15 feet above normal.

"All persons planning to evacuate Galveston Island should do so immediately since the lower sections of the Galveston-Houston freeway likely will be flooded before daylight," the bureau said.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—More than 200,000 persons fled the Texas and West Louisiana coasts Saturday night, leaving only ghostly towns for on-rushing hurricane Carla and her 135 mile-an-hour winds.

They fled areas where nearly 7,000 persons died in storms of 1900 in Galveston, Tex., and 1957 in Cameron, La.

Red Cross national headquarters in Washington, D.C. called it "the greatest evacuation of persons in the face of a national calamity in modern times." President Kennedy, in Hyannis Port, Mass., offered "all possible federal assistance" to officials in both states.

Saturday night Carla was 255 miles southeast of Galveston and pushing through the Gulf of Mexico at about 10 miles an hour. It continued in a northwesterly direction.

Ten-foot waves began lashing Cameron about dusk, crashing through city streets and belting the court house—the only building to weather hurricane Audrey's awesome blow in 1957.

* * * *

AS CARLA PONDEROUSLY pushed her deadly winds toward land tides rose five to 10 feet above normal, squalls began lashing extreme southerly coastal areas and winds reaching gale force over most of the area from Grand Isle, La. to Port Aransas, Tex.

More than 150,000 residents fled the Port Arthur and Galveston Tex., areas. At least five highways leading out from Port Arthur were choked with cars three lanes deep. They stretched bumper-to-bumper for 20 miles in some cases.

"Port Arthur is rapidly becoming a ghost town," radio newsman Dusty Rhodes reported late Saturday afternoon. "There is a solid line of cars from Port Arthur to Beaumont."

Other towns in the area were equally deserted, Rhodes said while refugees tried to flee the storm, rain squalls triggered by the fringe of Carla's disturbance whipped down on them.

* * * *

NEARLY TEN THOUSAND PERSONS moved out of Cameron, and the marsh of Cameron Parish. As they traveled by every means of conveyance northward to Lake Charles, they remembered the dead left by hurricane Audry in 1957.

East of Cameron, along the Louisiana coast, an estimated 10,000 persons fled from the marshy lowlands to higher ground in and around New Orleans. Without waiting the Weather Bureau's warning, they took livestock and personal property in a quick evacuation.

Although more than 300 miles east of where Carla was expected to go inland, two national highways were closed near New Orleans.

Carla was pinpointed at latitude 25.8 and longitude 92.6 about 275 statute miles southeast of Galveston by the New Orleans weather bureau in its 8 p.m. (CST) bulletin. The storm continued its ponderous trek in a west northwest and northwest direction at about 10 m.p.h.

Hurricane warnings were displayed from Port Aransas, Tex., eastward to Grand Isle, La. Gale warnings were posted from Brownsville, Tex., to Pensacola, Fla.

The bulletin warned of tremendous tides and cautioned every possibly precautionary measure should be completed Saturday night.

* * * *

BY LATE AFTERNOON CARLA was following a path parallel, but about 150 miles southwest of the great hurricane in 1900 which killed more than 6,000 persons near Galveston. And Carla was approaching the path of hurricane Audrey which blasted through Western Louisiana.

Preparations continued for Carla in both states.

The Red Cross in Beaumont, Tex., said it was prepared to handle 400,000 refugees. Hotels and motels in inland cities were swamped with reservation requests from families seeking a place to stay.

An estimated 250 schools along the coasts of both states were accepting evacuees.

A Lake Charles weatherman, Joe Worrell, warned that

L.A.C. Says: The Profit System

President Kennedy has made a very definite move toward abolishing the profit system. He has, in effect, told the steel industry—made up of many individual companies—that if they increased prices to make up for increased wage costs they could expect government interference. He says his "economic advisers" tell him the companies can make adequate profits without increasing prices—therefore they must not do so.

We do not know to what extent the companies can absorb wage and other labor increases. But we do know that no two companies have exactly the same conditions. We also know that they must compete with each other—and more important, they must now compete with cheap foreign labor and new modern foreign plants. These are factors that have always controlled their prices and the only way prices should be controlled in a free, competitive industry.

It will be noted that neither Mr. Kennedy or his advisers had a word to say to the unions about freezing wage or fringe benefits in an effort to avoid inflation. He says a steel price increase would cost more for our armaments — but ignores what the new wages — new insurance programs — longer vacations and numerous other fringe programs will cost. Of course, the one-fifth of our working population belonging to unions means votes.

This attempt to freeze profits in the steel industry is the starting point for the attempted freezing of profits in all segments of our economy. We may be sure it will be used in the automobile industry. Prices are already fixed by government in most of our food production. The next move will be to freeze rents and retail prices. As the trend continues, wage freezes will be ignored until a firm grip is had on all industries—then a freeze on wages must come if the controls are to be effective.

When that time arrives, we will have a socialistic-fascist or nazi society. It matters little what it is called. Any one of them means totalitarianism and the end of free enterprise as we have known it, and upon which the entire prosperity of this nation has been based. We are finding a small group of so-called liberals changing the system. They are undoubtedly sincere in their belief that they know what is best for this country. The same could have been said for Mussolini and Hitler and Lenin. But only tragedy came to Germany and Italy from these dictators—and the people of Russia remain slaves of a ruthless dictatorship.

We have written many times about the importance of adequate profits to provide more jobs—reasonable returns to investors and technological research. We know that our system has been the envy of the entire world. Now we are facing an arrogant attempt to change this system. If there is monopoly or dishonesty among producers, there are laws to curb them. But the workers and investors of this nation will never profit from a dictator that sets prices—profits—rents and wages. But that is exactly what the President's threat means.—L.A.C.

North Carolina Beauty Reigns as Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) Maria Beale Fletcher, a hazel-eyed, brown-haired North Carolina beauty, Saturday night was chosen Miss America of 1962.

The 19-year-old Miss North Carolina, winner of a preliminary swimsuit competition in the pageant, succeeded Nancy Anne Fleming of Montague, Mich., as holder of the world's oldest and most famous beauty crown.

The new queen, from Asheville, is 5 feet, 5½ inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, and measures 35-24-35.

A former member of the Radio City Rockettes in New York, she hopes for a career in the entertainment field after completing college.

24 Bombs 'Ready' for Nevada Tests

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The United States, says an authoritative source, has 24 bombs "ready to go" at the proving ground for its arsenal of nuclear weapons.

Authoritative sources that cannot be named also say:

1. The first blast almost certainly will be in a deep tunnel under Rainier Mesa at the north end of the Nevada Test Site, 65 mies northeast of this gambling resort.

2. It could be set off within hours after officials at the Atomic Energy Commission's Camp Mercury get the green light from Washington. Sources in the Kennedy Administration said on Sept. 7, though, that the first shot would be fired in about two weeks.

3. Camp Mercury, Rainier Mesa and construction offices on the site—now closed to newsmen—are bustling with activity reminiscent of 1951-58 boom days halted by the international ban on atomic tests.

4. A test shot with conventional explosives, to check tunnel instrumentation, was set for Sept. 6—but called off to speed up nuclear tests.

Preparations for the possibility that the United States might resume nuclear tests have been under way for months. When the Soviets announced they were resuming tests, activity here went into high gear. President Kennedy's subsequent announcement that the United States would resume, with underground tests, was an added spur.

* * * *

EVEN NOW, some scientists make it plain they favor United States tests in the atmosphere, where Russia is testing. These are easier, cheaper and provide information not obtainable underground.

The big argument against it is radioactive fallout, loaded with political implications.

AEC officials have imposed a strict information clampdown. They decline answers to questions about preparations, and have cancelled scheduled news tours of the test site.

The source that said there are 24 bombs ready to go would not, for instance, elaborate on whether all could be tested underground.

Trio Held in Try to Get Dope

Off-duty Patrolman Jim Rodda went into a drug store at Fourth Street and Bonito Avenue Saturday to get a sandwich.

A few moments later, he had arrested three suspects, including a 16-year-old girl on charges ranging from attempted extortion to narcotics addiction.

While Rodda was in the store, the young girl handed druggist William Scott a note demanding narcotics.

* * * *

"A HOSTAGE will die if you don't," the note said. The girl said two men were holding her baby as a hostage. Scott showed the note to Rodda.

Rodda circled the block in his car, then drove up an alley near the drug store, where he found Denny Blackwell, 24, of 632 Orange Ave., and Fred Meece, 18, of 906 Ohio Ave. The two had been watching the store, Rodda said.

The officer arrested both youths, then arrested the girl as she left the drug store.

* * * *

THE GIRL, who later admitted she had no baby, was turned over to juvenile authorities for investigation of her part in the attempt to get drugs from the pharmacy.

Blackwell and Meece were booked for investigation of extortion and narcotics addiction. Blackwell also was booked on a charge of possession of narcotics after police found marijuana in a jar in his house, officers said.

Colonel Loses Job as Result of Paar Show

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Saturday removed one officer from his job and admonished another for their roles in helping Jack Paar film a television show on the touchy border between East and West Berlin.

The Defense Department announced this quick windup of an investigation of the incident undertaken only Friday with White House approval. Army participation in the filming of a Paar showing for use in the United States next week had been bitterly denounced in the Senate as "shocking . . . highly dangerous."

* * * *

ACTION IS being taken to prevent repetition of any such incidents in the future, the Pentagon said.

Relieved from his post for "improper performance of duty" was Lt. Col. Dallas Hoadley of Baltimore, information officer of the Berlin command.

Admonished was Col. J. R. Deane Jr. of San Francisco, commanding officer of the 2nd Battle Group, 6th Infantry, in Germany. The investigation report said he was on hand with 13 enlisted men "solely to participate in the filming."

He was accused of "exercising poor judgment in diverting a squad from regular training duties in order to participate in activities beyond the scope of their military mission."

* * * *

THE ADMONITION is being administered through the commanding general of the Berlin command, the Defense Department announcement said.

Army participation in the Paar show Thursday at the delicate Friedrichstrasse border crossing in Berlin caused a storm of criticism in Congress and elsewhere.

Protests were raised that the use of U.S. armed troops for such a show might have led to shooting, with tremendous consequences.

The critics also said the display of unusual armed might at the border crossing would be grist for the Communist propaganda mills, which picture the United States as an imperialist warmonger.

200,000 Flee Gulf Hurricane

Carla "is one of the biggest hurricanes and one of the worst" to ever approach the Louisiana coast.

Wherever the hurricane strikes land it will be as large — or larger — and as strong — or stronger — than Hurricane Audrey.

Between Carla and the coast are hundreds of offshore oil wells in the rich tidelands. Operations on the big rigs ceased and equipment and workers sped ashore in boats and helicopters.

Gale winds buffeted the coastal area south of New Orleans.

Most of Grand Isle was inundated, Sheriff Eddie Ste. Marie of LaFourche Parish reported.

Ninety-five per cent of Theidland's residents have already been evacuated.

* * * *

CIVIL DEFENSE authorities ordered all coastal roads in Louisiana closed.

Lake Pontchartrain lapped over U.S. 11 east of New Orleans as winds kicked up high waves on the large lake.

Louisiana Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said National Guardsmen will remove all persons in the path of the hurricane if necessary.

Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas put guardsmen in the east Texas area on alert.

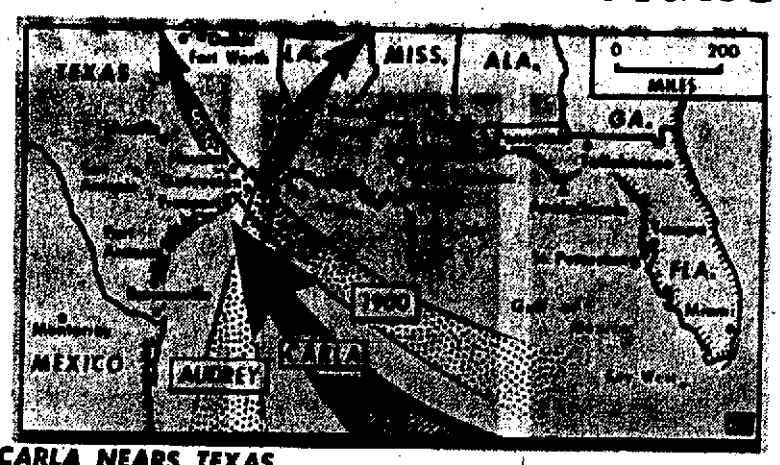

Civil defense and the Red Cross put emergency plans into operation and made plans to house refugees. Government surplus food was being used to feed the evacuees.

Military airfields along the entire coastal area sent planes to other areas.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A meteorologist aboard a Navy plane which penetrated the eye of hurricane Carla Saturday called the storm the biggest he has ever seen.

"The storm was affecting wind patterns over the entire Gulf of Mexico," Lt. John Lincoln said. He is a meteorologist assigned to hurricane hunter planes operating out of Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

Lincoln flew into the eye of Carla three times early Saturday in a Navy Constellation. The eye which then was "almost right in the middle of the Gulf of Mexico due south of New Orleans," fluctuated between 45 and 50 miles in diameter.

CARLA NEARS TEXAS
Heavy arrow indicates approximate path of Hurricane Carla, described as extremely dangerous, as she nears the upper Texas coast late Saturday. Other arrows show paths of two previous hurricanes, Audrey, which left 590 dead in 1957, and the great 1900 hurricane which killed more than 6,000 persons around Galveston.—(AP Photo)

Red Pact Nations Boost Defenses

MOSCOW (AP)—The Communist Warsaw pact nations announced Saturday night they are strengthening their military defenses because of what they called stepped-up military preparation by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The decision was reached at a two-day meeting of the eight-nation bloc's defense ministers in Warsaw, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

* * * *

THE ANNOUNCEMENT did not spell out what military measures would be taken.

Members of the pact—the Communist counterpart to NATO—are the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Albania.

The Tass dispatch said:

"The meeting noted that the countries of the aggressive North Atlantic military bloc have of late sharply stepped up military preparations and are intensifying the arms race and increasing their armies in reply to the proposals of the Soviet Socialist countries for the conclusion of a German peace treaty, and are even threatening a new war.

* * * *

PROCEEDING from the situation obtaining, and guiding themselves by the directives from their governments the ministers of defense and chiefs of general staffs discussed specific questions concerning the enhancement of military preparedness of the troops belonging to the joint armed forces of Warsaw Treaty States.

"The meeting instructed the chiefs of general staffs to work out practical measures towards the further strengthening of defenses of the Warsaw Treaty States stemming from the agreement reached at the meeting."

Sky Spy, Nike-Zeus Blow Up

would enable the Air Force to keep all parts of the world under constant surveillance.

The Nike-Zeus launching was the first firing test at Point Mugu of the weapon's guidance and control system. Preliminary testing was done at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico.

* * * *

THE ANTI-MISSILE rocket left its launching pad like a scorched cat, in contrast to the leisurely lift of the ponderous ICBM's. Trailing a long tail of flame and smoke, the Zeus streaked skyward until it exploded spectacularly thousands of feet overhead.

Saturday's test was aimed specifically to check the rocket's response to guidance commands from its fantastically complicated ground control equipment.

Only two of the missile's three stages were to be utilized in the test. Three-stage firing of the Zeus will be held within a few months, it was indicated.

Slayer Kills Self as Police Kick in Door

SARNIA, Ont. (UPI) — A young father shot and killed himself Saturday as police were kicking in the door of his house to arrest him for the savage slaying of a 45-year-old neighbor and her 10-year-old son.

Only minutes before, Thomas Crawley, 23, had confessed the killings to his wife, Judy, and he was in the midst of writing a suicide note when officers began breaking in the door.

However, the note gave no clue to the motive for the slayings of Mrs. Evelyn, Moore and her son, Danny, and an officer said "I doubt if we'll ever know why he did it."

* * * *

MRS. MOORE and the boy had been beaten with a claw hammer. Police said Mrs. Moore died of strangulation and Danny of a broken back.

Crawley's wife and another woman, Mrs. Doris Currie discovered the bodies early Saturday.

Crawley left a note to his wife saying: "I don't know just what to say except that it was I who killed those people. I can't find any reason for it. Don't tell the kids and take them away from Sarnia. This is the only way out for me. So I am going to take it. Tom" resume underground testing, but has taken the position that tests adding to radioactive fallout are not necessary.

Kennedy returned from an afternoon cruise on Nantucket Sound, examined an English language version of the Khrushchev note and then approved the joint statement.

* * * *

HE AND Macmillan apparently had agreed in advance through their aides on its language. It was a comment on Khrushchev's position rather than a direct communication to the Soviet leader.

Kennedy and Macmillan last Sunday sent Khrushchev a proposal for an immediate three-nation agreement to forego above-ground testing.

Khrushchev responded Saturday morning with a flat refusal. He said such an agreement would not bind France.

GENEVA (AP)—The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union recessed their negotiations for a nuclear test ban in failure Saturday and passed the unresolved problem on to the United Nations.

U. S. delegate Charles C. Stelle said "it is idle and useless to keep up a pretense of negotiating in these circumstances."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

De Gaulle Escapes Bomb Plot Death

PARIS (UPI)—Right-wing terrorists believed to be rebellious army officers tried to assassinate President Charles de Gaulle but failed when a bomb burned instead of exploding, police disclosed Saturday.

De Gaulee escaped injury, but his speeding limousine was slightly damaged and blackened by smoke as it sped through a sheet of flame during the incident Friday night. The right fender and headlight were smashed and the car was blotched with sand and dirt.

VANUXEM

It was the first attempt against De Gaulle's life since the Algerian "General's Revolt" against him early this year. Police conducted a mass roundup of suspected members of the outlawed secret army organization OAS that hopes to "keep Algeria French."

Two generals were seized but there was no official statement linking them with the assassination attempt. They were identified as Gen. Jean Crevecoeur and Gen. Paul Vanuxem, both graduates of St. Cyr, France's equivalent of West Point.

"It seems . . . following inquiries yet to be verified, that the heads, or at least those mainly responsible for the OAS in metropolitan France may be Generals Crevecoeur and Vanuxem," investigating officials said.

L.A. Teamsters Boo Hoffa

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Some Teamsters Union members booed and hissed national president James R. Hoffa in a stormy meeting on their new contract Saturday.

Hoffa pounded the gavel and called for order throughout the more than six-hour session.

Irate teamsters repeatedly shouted down, with cries of "sellout," his reading of the lengthy proposal. Many said the terms fell short of promises Hoffa made to the union here last July.

18 Children Attend Parents' Wedding

CARMEL (AP)—Flanked by their 18 children — including a cooing baby cut-up who almost stole the show—Navy Chief Warrant Officer Francis Beardsley and Mrs. Helen North were married Saturday in historic Carmel Mission.

The children marched into the mission in a double-rank military-style formation, tallest in the rear. A baby and a toddler were carried in. At the front pew they divided and half sat on each side for the Roman Catholic ceremony.

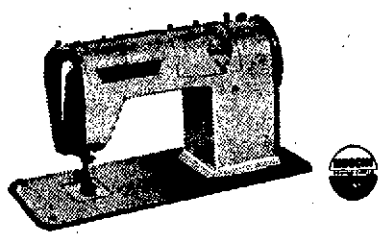

Beardsley was left with 10 children when his wife died last year after a short illness. Mrs. North's husband was killed in a Navy jet bomber crash. They exchanged condolence prayers after learning of each other's tragedies, began corresponding, dated and then decided to get married.

Gorilla Born in Capital Zoo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Moka, a young Washington Zoo gorilla, gave birth Saturday to the fourth gorilla ever born in captivity but the male infant had to be turned to a human substitute mother for care.

The newcomer, who was discovered around 6 a.m., weighed 5 pounds, 4¾ ounces. When Moka, an 8-year-old female, showed no interest in the baby, it was turned over to Mrs. Bernard Gallagher, wife of a zoo keeper, who has been preparing for the role of foster mother for months.

Lively L.B. Girl Visits 28 Lands

By GEORGE ERES

Ninety-nine of the 100 U.S. girls in the American Aquacade Ballet Group who went to Europe to give exhibitions of precision swimming last year came home after the Olympic Games.

The 100th girl, Gail Reynolds of Long Beach came home last week to report she had a wonderful time. She—

—Waltzed with an Austrian prince in the Imperial Palace in Vienna;

—Discussed the hazards of playing football with Leopold Stowkowski;

—Covered the President Kennedy-Premier Khruschev meetings as a "press photographer" by wangling credentials from a friend;

—Sneaked into the Vienna State Opera House for a chat with American singer Leontyne Price.

—Travelled in 28 countries and scooped in facts and impressions to feed a growing political-economic interest.

She managed all this and made a B-plus average for a year's study at the University of Vienna.

* * * *

SOME of Miss Reynolds impressions:

Vienna—"Vienna is reputed to be a cheerful city. I didn't find it so. Maybe it's because it just got its freedom back. After all the Russians only left six years ago.

East Berlin—"I was in East Berlin on May Day and saw people carrying banners with slogans and marching. I speak German and talked to some of the people. They didn't even know why they were marching. Somebody just told them to march."

Egypt—"I was in Egypt on July 23. Overnight, Nasser's program for confiscation of wealth was put into effect. The people who had money lost it. Naturally, the government press hailed the move. But the mass of the people can't even read. Presumably, the action was taken to help the poor and illiterate. I hope it will. Only, I noticed soldiers marching through the streets. I suspect the confiscated money went to pay for uniforms."

About scheduled tours — "I've taken some of these and if I had my way I'd abolish them. The way to travel is to take a guide book, wear tennis shoes and a smile. Talk to the people; ask questions; they like it when you're interested in them."

* * * *

WHILE VINNEA may not be as cheerful as it's pictured, its interest in music has not diminished over the years. People stand in line for tickets. Admission prices are low.

"I paid 32 cents for a ticket to hear Stowkoski conduct the London Symphony Orchestra. Afterwards I was invited to a reception for him. We talked about football. He'd broken his shoulder playing football with his children, he told me."

The Leontyne Price appearance in Aida in Vienna was to sell-out houses. "I saw the big line and knew I'd never get a seat, so I 'sneaked' in through the stage entrance.

"A guard asked me what I was doing thre. I said I wanted to see Miss Price.

"So he took me to her dressing room to see her."

* * * *

MISS REYNOLDS returned home with a collection of musical instruments and native costumes she bargained for in her travels: drums from Lebanon; an Austrian zither; flutes from Karachi, Dehli and Yugosalvia; a mandolin from Paris.

Most of the items she picked up, she understands. But one thing she never learned is why the toes of the slippers she bought in Pakistan come pointed and curled.

Miss Reynolds was busy packing again late last week. Not for a long trip to a far country; this time she's going to Berkeley for her senior year at the Univirsity of California. She's an education major.

Naturally, she's put in an application for residence in International House.

THAT'S A SAZ, or bagalama, Gail Reynolds is holding. It's from Istambul where she paid $4 for it. Other instruments she collected are grouped on the floor and chair. What looks like three vases on the floor are drums purchased in Lebanon. Miss Reynolds's skirt, is from India. The embroidery work is more than 100 years old.—(Staff Photo by Kent Henderson)

Big Rate Hike Seen in Sports at Reservoirs

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—City reservoirs could be opened for public recreation only if the public would be willing to support a 50 per cent hike in water rates, according to Samuel B. Nelson, water department general manager.

Nelson said if reservoirs were opened for boating, fishing and other sports at least $132 million would be needed to install filtration plants and other facilities to prevent pollution.

Nelson's remarks came in a policy statement on proposals by several outdoor and athletic groups.

U.S. Beefing Up, Modernizing European Units

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is taking steps to increase the mechanization — and thus the mobility—of its three infantry divisions in the critical German area.

The aim is to equip them better to meet on equal terms the highly mechanized Soviet forces they face across the Iron Curtain.

Gen. George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, said each of the divisions—the 3rd, 8th and 24th Infantry—is being given 1,000 additional men.

"This reinforcement will permit 7th Army to man and maintain an additional number of armored personnel carriers which they will be provided promptly to improve their mechanized strength," Decker said in a speech to the Association of the United States Army.

Kansas Unit Picnic

The Columbus, Kan., annual picnic will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. next Sunday in Bixby Park.

Freeman Names 32-Man Council on Grain, Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has appointed a 32-member advisory committee on feed grains and wheat.

The committee will hold its first meeting here Sept. 19 and 20. It will advise Freeman on major legislative proposals and other matters connected with feed grains and wheat.

Fred Heinkel, Columbia, president of the Missouri Farmers' Association, was named chairman.

Brown to Be Feted at Party Luncheon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown will be honored next Wednesday at a luncheon attended by prominent party members from throughout the state.

Hugh Evans of Democratic Associates, Inc., said guests will include Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk and Assemblymen Jesse Unruh and William A. Munnell.

THOMPSON (L), KRUSZ . . . Inspect Local Industry

KRUSZ IN CHARGE

C. of C. to Boost Industrial Plan

Harry Krusz, executive vice president of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, has assumed over-all direction of business and industrial development activities for the chamber, it was announced Saturday.

The operational change was described as a move to speed development of new businesses and industries for Long Beach.

"This important phase of our community development will receive the fullest possible attention from both our staff and volunteer workers," Krusz said. "Our Industrial Development Committee, headed by Richard Caldwell, is accelerating its activities."

Krusz also announced he has appointed Dick Thompson, former staff writer, as fulltime industrial research director. Operation of the new research department will include economic research, statistics, processing of industrial inquiries, industrial publications and industrial relations activities.

Bill Boyd, manager of the chamber's International News Bureau, will assist in promotional phases of the program, Krusz said.

In addition, the new changes are to emphasize the industrial program created a year ago by a special economic study committee headed by Ben Clawson.

Objectives of the program are to seek new industries; serve existing industries through services including industrial relations and legislative activities; industrial advertising and promotion, and researching and accumulating data.

U.S. Farm Totals Top Russ

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States still tops the Soviet Union in farm production by around 60 per cent despite Communist efforts in recent years to surpass this country.

This was reported by the Agriculture Department Saturday in a detailed comparison of production of important farm commodities. For the most part, these comparisons are based on output in 1960.

* * * *

IN THE important livestock category, Soviet production last year was only 33 per cent of this country's for beef, 54 for pork, 26 for poultry meats, 46 per cent for lard, 26 per cent for margarine and shortening, 92 per cent for milk and 43 per cent for eggs.

* * * *

THE SOVIET Union led in lamb, mutton and goat meat with production equal to 265 per cent of this country's, and in butter at 126 per cent. The Soviets also led with a wool production of 259 per cent of this country.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has been anxious to duplicate this country's corn production—the basis for America's great superiority in the output of meats and other livestock products.

But in 1960, the department said, Soviet corn production was only 15 per cent of that in this country.

Laws Urged to Ensure Voting Right

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Rights Commission said Saturday that Southern Negroes must have more help from Congress to avoid a long and expensive delay in achieving voting rights.

It told President Kennedy and Congress that the civil rights acts of 1957 and 1960 have helped some Negroes reach the polls but that new and broader laws are needed to hasten voting equality.

The commission's report, a heavily-documented indictment of voting denials in eight Southern states, found "some basis to be encouraged" over the progress achieved in the last two years.

* * * *

BUT THE commission stopped short of saying it is easier for Southern Negroes to vote today than it was in 1959.

It said that under present laws the government must still proceed slowly, suit by suit, county by county. It added that the suits were expensive and time consuming and the Justice Department could not file and prepare all the warranted suits.

Director Berl I. Bernhard said reports on housing, education, employment and discrimination of justice would be presented later this month.

Court Order Clears Huge Bank Merger

NEW YORK (AP)—A government move to block a merger of the Manufacturers Trust Co. and the Hanover Bank was rejected Saturday by U.S. District Court Judge John M. Cashin.

Cashin, however, granted a government request that the banks show cause Tuesday why a temporary injunction should not be granted. Cashin's action will permit the banks to open Monday in merged form.

The State Banking Department had argued that a restraining order would have caused chaos Monday, leaving the combined bank without authority to issue checks or make loans.

* * * *

THE MERGED bank would be the fourth largest in the world and the third largest in the city.

The Department of Justice held that the merger would lessen competition and create a monopoly.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said in Washington "we believe the merger of these banks would result in increased concentration of financial power in a city where such concentration already is heavy."

Officers of the two banks said in affidavits a restraint against the merger would have a chaotic effect.

* * * *

CHARLES J. Stewart, president of Manufacturers Trust and of the merged bank, said relations with a number of customers would be affected adversely.

He said issuing a restraining order would damage Manufacturers Trust "in ways that cannot be measured in dollars and cents."

John M. Toohey, an attorney for the Justice Department, said if the merger went through and later were dissolved "on the merits," it would "inevitable cause and compound extremely entricate and complex problems of unscrambling, identification and separation of assets and other relief."

Bank Car Bandit Faces FBI

An armored car guard, charged with the $42,000 robbery of his own truck Tuesday in Santa Ana, will be deported from Tijuana Monday, Mexican authorities said Saturday.

Jerry Reece Peacock, 23, of 1110 S. Pacific St., Santa Ana, will be arrested at the border on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for armed robbery and kidnaping, the FBI said.

He will be returned to Santa Ana for trial.

PEACOCK was arrested early Saturday in Tijuana in the midst of a $3,000-a-day night club spree.

Mexican police said they found more than $29,000 in cash and a .38 caliber revolver in his possession when they arrested him.

They said Peacock arrived in the border town only a few hours after he allegedly held up Kenneth Grissinger, a fellow employe of the Armored Transport and Depository Co. of Santa Ana, forced him at gunpoint into Grissinger's apartment, and left him bound and gagged.

900 Exiles Peril Castro Cubans

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Some 900 screaming Cuban exiles threatened the lives of a small group of Fidel Castro's adherents at Miami International Airport Saturday before beinb subdued by a police riot squad.

Thirty policemen threatened demonstrators with clubs and shoved them away from their intended victims but no blows actually were struck. After the Castro sympathizers were hustled out of sight, the crowd soon quieted.

The exiles were at the airport awaiting the arrival of a special Pan American Airways plane bringing refugees from Havana.

Three Bullets Save Zoo Worker From Lion

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A lion unexpectedly returned to its zoo pit Saturday and attacked a young employe cleaning the area.

Lynn Hudson, 19, a new employe at the Lincoln Park zoo, was saved when a fellow workman, Homer Spikes, fired a pistol three times at the lioness.

Attendants said a cage door leading to the pit apparently had been left ajar.

"I hated to open fire when the lion was so close to his head, but the animal was going for the kill," Spikes said. The lion didn't appear to be seriously hurt despite the three wounds.

A male lion also started into the pit but another attendant slammed the door shut before it could get out. Hudson was alone in the area at the time of the attack. He was seriously injured.

Cruiser L.B. Joins Fleet at Boston

port of call for Teddy Roosevelt's Great White Fleet and that in the 1930s the city was the home of the Pacific fleet.

* * * *

"In 1933, The City of Long Beach was shaken by an earthquake which took 57 lives and caused widespread damage. The city needed help, and the Navy provided it without even being asked."

"It was a tragedy which caused a special kind of kinship to develop between the citizens of Long Beach and the men of the Navy," Wade said.

The mayor noted that the motto of the USS Long Beach was "Strike and Strike Home."

"I might add that this also was the battle cry of the citizens of Long Beach when they set out to have this cruiser named for their city," he said.

* * * *

THE MAYOR presented a $20,000 silver service, a gift of the citizens of Long Beach, to the cruiser.

Mrs. Hosmer, who christianed the ship in 1959, presented a water color painting of the vessel by Arthur Beaumont.

Standing proudly at attention among the ships crew, as the flag was broken out from the cruiser's stern and the Long Beach commissioned, were radar technician J. K. Nichols and fire controlman Dennis C. Hassel, both of Long Beach. Nichols mother Mrs. June Nichols lives at 1057 Vina St.

Capt. Wilkinson was born in Long Beach on Aug. 10, 1918. He graduated from San Diego State College and taught chemistry and mathematics there before entering the Navy in 1940. He commanded the world's first nuclear submarine, the USS Nautilus, before being assigned to the USS Long Beach.

* * * *

HIS EXECUTIVE officer, Cmdr. Hal C. Castle, is from Peoria. The assistant weapons officer, Lt. Cmdr. James G. Wilson, worked as an engineer for Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach plant.

Cmdr. Castle posted the first watch at the conclusion of commissioning ceremonies and the officers and guests of the USS Long Beach were entertained at a reception at the Sheraton-Plaza. The silver service presented to the ship was on display at the reception, and next to it the canteen of Pacific Ocean water secured at great personal risk by Mayor Wade.

Today Capt. Wilkinson will give the order, "Prepare for sea." Monday, at some time past 9 a.m., the nuclear reactors will deliver power to the Long Beach's great twin propellors and the cruiser will leave Boston harbor for the Atlantic.

* * * *

AT SEA, she will conduct trials, but she also will be an operational unit of the Atlantic cruiser force. In fact, she will be the flagship of that force, for on the admiral's bridge will be Rear Adm. Robert W. Cavanaugh, Commander, Cruiser Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

And sometime soon, the order will be given that will open the huge blast hatches. Long-range Talos and smaller, sleeker Terriers will slide onto their launches. On order, the missiles' tails will spout their hot white flames and the new gray paint on the decks will scorch and peel.

The great birds will lift and fly, and the men on the bridge will watch and calculate the USS Long Beach's power for freedom.

U.S. Heads Toward More Fearsome Bombs

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States' decision to resume nuclear testing is expected to increase substantially the already fearsome explosive power of most American strategic and tactical missiles.

It could also lead to a whole new family of atomic weapons, bombs with reduced radiation hazard, an anti-missile missile and devices for fighting any future thermonuclear war in space.

These are opinions of warhead experts here, most of whom applauded President Kennedy's signal to go-ahead with nuclear tests after Russia broke a three-year moratorium last week by triggering the first of a series of blasts.

* * * *

SOME FEARED that failure of the United States to resume tests would have enabled Russia to catch, or even surpass, this nation's presumed nuclear armament lead. They believe the Soviets may have sliced considerably into this once-healthy margin with secret firings during the three-year ban.

Military officials in Washington indicated the initial Nevada underground tests will be of relatively small warheads for battlefield atomic rockets like Honest John, La Crosse, Corporal and Davy Crockett. The explosive equivalent of these blasts would range from 100 tons of TNT to 20,000 tons of TNT.

But the feeling here is that the Atomic Energy Commission must move as quickly as possible toward development of more powerful warheads for larger missiles—primarily Minuteman and the submarine-launched Polaris which are emerging as key weapons in America's plans to build a retaliatory force so overpowering that an aggressor would be foolhardy to attack.

* * * *

THERE ALSO is urgency to work on more potent payloads for the inter-continental range Atlas and Titan city-busters, the Army's Pershing artillery missile and the plane-launched Skybolt rocket.

Tests of Atlas and Titan-type payloads probably would have to be conducted above ground. Kennedy for the time being is restricting the program to underground detonations.

The approximately 30 Atlas ICBMs on station in the western United States are capable of delivering devastating 4 megaton bombs to targets 6,300 miles away. Each bomb packs the wallop of 4 million tons of dynamite, or 200 times the punch of the Hiroshima bomb dropped on Japan in World War II. Titans, soon to be deployed, will have a slightly larger payload.

* * * *

SCIENTISTS believe they can nearly double the destructive force of Atlas and Titan without increasing the weight of the warhead. Or they can reduce the weight and hurl the same explosive yield over greater range. But these theories must be tested before the bombs can be trusted on a rocket.

An improved Titan II will begin test flights here late this year. It will be able to hoist a 10 megaton warhead, if such a huge device can be tested properly. A payload this large may be required to knock out hardened underground military installations or missile sites.

Lake Area Planned for San Diegans

Reclaimed sewage water is being used to build a string of 19 lakes ranging in size from 5 to 20 acres in San Diego's dry back country.

The first of these lakes was opened recently in Sycamore Canyon, reports "Engineering News-Record."

The lakes will extend 3½ miles down the canyon and will be used for fishing, boating and picnic areas. One of the lakes will be chlorinated and used for swimming.

Santee County Water District, which serves some 18,000 suburban San Diegans, is creating the lakes. The district handles about a million gallons of sewage daily. The sewage is treated at the main sewage plant, then pumped to three oxidation ponds in Sycamore Canyon.

After 45 days in the ponds, the reclaimed water is pumped to the head of the canyon, then "percolated" downstream to the lakes through the sand and gravel canyon floor.

The water district plans to form two lakes a year.

Many Losing Homes for Tijuana Project

TIJUANA (UPI)—Roberto De La Madrid, president of federal public works commission, said Saturday some of the 3,500 persons residing in the Tijuana river bottom have begun evacuating the area, which is to be used for a commercial and civic center.

Hydrofoil Ship Is Shark-Killer

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

Discoverer, the prototype passenger hydrofil undergoing a series of tests off the Southern California Coast, has a new distinction. She's a shark killer.

In a recent run from San Diego to Long Beach, the 22-passenger vessel killed 25 sharks with her metal skiis. The smaller sharks she sliced in half without so much as a shudder on deck, but with the 15 to 20-foot-long denizens of the deep the Discoverer had to back off from her prey and cruise around.

VOLUME OF exports from the port of Long Beach will skyrocket beginning next summer when the ore terminal on Pier G is put into operation. Nine Japanese steel mills have already contracted to buy approximately 1.15 million tons of Eagle Mountain iron ore each year. The ore will be shipped by Kaiser Steel via Long Beach.

The operation will tremendously expand railroad traffic into Long Beach. One hundred (and perhaps 125) car trains will arrive in Long Beach from Eagle Mountain every three days during the first year, carrying the ore alone.

Port Manager Charles Vickers says he expects that more than 2 million tons of ore will be shipped through the harbor during the first year.

Motorists will be pleased to know that they won't have any long railroad crossing waits for the huge ore rail caravans while driving into the harbor on Pico Avenue. The railroad lines will be realigned to the west of Pico, paralleling the thoroughfare and not crossing it at any point to the terminus at Pier G.

THE U. S. Merchant Marine declined by 320 vessels in a year's period ending July 1. The Maritime Administration of the Department of Commerce said there were 621 vessels of 1,000 gross tons and over in the active ocean-going U. S. fleet on that date as compared to 941 on July 1, 1960.

The lengthy national maritime strike didn't help things either. The American Merchant Marine Institute claims that 189 privately owned vessels of 207,800 deadweight tons were laid up because of the strike. Also tied up were 15 government-owned dry cargo vessels under charter to private steamship companies.

IT WAS like stepping into another world for those of us who went to La Casa de Rancho Los Alamitos for the dedication of a plaque marking this historic spot, arranged by the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West.

When I arrived at the hilltop hacienda off E. Seventh St., Johnny Johnston remarked that my trip from downtown, if made in the horse and buggy days when the rancho was in its prime, would have required two hours. I had made it in about 15 minutes, despite the crush of afternoon traffic on E. Seventh.

The little driving experience helped to sharpen the contrast as I moved into the serene, shade-and-sunshine atmosphere of the old rancho headquarters. Here was quiet and peace amid great trees, mature shrubbery of great beauty and ancient buildings that spoke volumes about the romantic past.

THE physical surroundings and the program were pleasantly permeated with nostalgia. Fred Bixby Jr., who grew up at this place, told fascinating intimate details of the old life there.

An amusing sidelight was this account of the time his father decided to give a billiard table to the Long Beach YMCA.

The offer was met with horrified indignation by people who thought the game table would corrupt the youth of the community.

So Bixby hauled the table out to the rancho and it still sits in a room toward the front of the building, known from that moment as the "billiard room."

The dedication ceremonies were pleasingly arranged and proceeded with leisure, in keeping with the surroundings.

After it was over the cars were started and we rolled down the oleander-lined driveway to the front gate, where we plunged into the traffic of E. Seventh again. Three city traffic men were there to help us survive this emergence into the rampant modern world.

THE "little old lady" has become something of an institution, and when one hears the phrase he knows pretty well what she looks like.

But you never can tell about little old ladies.

Two of our men were at lunch at a Pine Ave. cafeteria when a soft, confidential voice came to our ears:

"Would you gentlemen like to buy an Irish sweepstakes ticket?"

They looked up to find a grandmotherly-looking woman leaning over between them in surreptitious manner. Her sales pitch rejected, she smiled sweetly and went on her way, out and down Pine Ave.

My friends speculated on what would have happened had one or both been police officers in plain clothes. But evidently the little old lady knows her police if not her best sales prospects.

SIGN Language—On a trip to the northern part of the state, Capt. Bob Rife noted this sign at a cafe located on a lonely side road: "Anyone who can remain calm in the midst of all this confusion simply doesn't understand the situation." Leaving the cafe he followed a Camper truck which displayed a small sign reading: "Have Credit Card —Can Travel." And a fellow in San Francisco sported a bumper sign reading: "Drive Carelessly. Help to Solve Our Over-population Problem."

Community Fund Quotas Allotted

Quotas for the various sections of the four communities in the United Neighbors Community Chest to be solicited by the residential division were released Saturday by Mrs. Francis M. Lowry, division chairman.

Largest goal of $20,465 has been assigned eastside teams, under the leadership of Mrs. Harry Krusz, one of the six vice chairmen of the division. This is broken down into a quota of $11,428 for Mrs. Russell Peterson, area general for Belmont Shore, Naples, Alamitos Heights, and the Peninsula, and $9,037 for Belmont Heights teams under Mrs. R. S. Kibler.

Five Lakewood-area generals with Mrs. George Nye Jr. as vice chairman have a total $5,717 goal. Individual quotas for the different Lakewood sections are: Mrs. Norman Gottlieb, $1,560; Mrs. Henry Olague, $893; Mrs. S. D. Sakry, $1,619; Mrs. George Nye, $590; Mrs. A. J. Corske, $1,055.

* * * *

IN BOTH LAKEWOOD and Belmont Shore business firms are not solicited by the residential division, but uptown Atlantic firms are included in the $11,495 quota set for Bixby Knolls and Los Cerritos teams under the leadership of Mrs. Leo Shultz.

Los Altos neighborhood businesses are expected to help raise the $7,630 goal for that area, where Mrs. Zeddie Marsh and Mrs. F. B. Perkins are generals in charge.

North Long Beach quota of $5,467 and the $5,712 goal in the northeastern part of the city promise real competition between Mrs. A. W. Jarvis of North Long Beach and Mmes. Roland Kautz, G. S. Shepard, and Winifred B. Patterson in the northeast.

* * * *

WESTSIDE'S $9,073 quota is divided with Mrs. James Kunkle's Wrigley volunteers responsible for $6,791 and the remainder for Dominguez' area general, Mrs. P. E. Larson.

In the central section of Long Beach, Mrs. Jesse S. Hulton Sr. and Mrs. Charles F. Reed have a combined $12,061 quota.

Residential's special advance gift committee, with Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby as chairman, have been given a $15,300 quota.

Hearing Will Air Transit Problems

School Schedule Listed for L.B.

Final instructions to the army of 100,000 youths and adults who will return Monday morning to the 77 local public schools were issued Saturday by Douglas A. Newcomb, superintendent of schools.

All schools will open at the regular time, 8:30 a.m. for junior and senior high schools and 9 a.m. for elementary schools. Pupils who have not already enrolled are urged to report a half hour before the starting time so they may be assigned to classes the first day.

* * * *

ALL ELEMENTARY, junior high, and senior high schools will close at 2 p.m. on the first day to permit principals and their staffs to make changes necessary to meet actual registration.

Kindergarten and first grade pupils who do not have a birth certificate or other evidence of date of birth will be accepted temporarily for enrollment. They must furnish proof of date of birth in accordance with the state law, however, before their registration can be completed. A child must be 4 years and 9 months of age on or before Sept. 1 to be admitted to kindergarten and 5 years and 9 months of age on or before Sept. 1 to be admitted to first grade.

School officials suggest that the school nearest the home be contacted if a pupil is in doubt about which school to attend. Maps showing the areas to be served will be available in each school.

* * * *

ALL cafeterias in all schools will be open the first day of school. An extra nickel for lunch might be appropriate this year as small raises have been made in the price of some items on the school lunch menu.

Registration for day classes at the Liberal Arts Division of the Long Beach City College is closed. The only registration that will be accepted is for evening students in the Lakewood campus cafeteria from 6 to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday. New day students at the Business and Technology Division will be programmed in the cafeteria at 1305 East Pacific Coast Highway throughout the week.

Evening students at BTD and in all General Adult Division classes will be accepted beginning Monday at the first meeting of the class. In addition, BTD will have preregistration from 6 to 9:30 p.m. in all evening courses numbered 1-99 and those with a "T" prefix.

30 Billboard Workers Still Picket in L.B.

The strike by more than 30 billboard workers at two Long Beach firms has entered its fourth week.

Picketed are Foster & Kleiser Co., 1429 Magnolia Ave., and Pacific Outdoor Advertising Co., 4647 Long Beach Blvd.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH workers, members of Billposters, Billers and Distributors USA and Canada, Local 32, and workers in Arizona, Oregon, Washington and California are represented by their international president, Doyle Gilmour, in negotiations at San Francisco.

President of Local 32, Anthony Emerson, of Los Angeles, said the main issue concerns safety. The union wants two men assigned to all jobs on high structures. The advertising companies want to solve the matter through arbitration, Emerson said.

Pupils Will Have Short First Day

School opens Monday, but students are in for a pleasant surprise.

The schools have to close at 2 p.m. to allow principals to attend administrative meetings.

Regular sessions will begin Tuesday in all area schools, according to Douglas A. Newcomb, superintendent of schools.

Injured in Traffic

Harlow P. Tovie, 33, of 1360 Junipero Ave., suffered minor injuries in a traffic accident near Encinitas Friday night, the California Highway Patrolmen reported.

Solutions in Report Limited

By GEORGE WEEKS

City officials will conduct a public hearing within three weeks on the transit question, now shaping up as one with only two possible solutions, neither of them inviting.

The Bureau of Franchises will announce the date of the hearing shortly after its chairman, City Manager John R. Mansell, returns at midweek from Washington, D.C.

Indications are that the bureau members — four city councilmen in addition to the city manager — are sharply divided on the issue of allowing Long Beach Motor Bus Co. to be taken over by Metropolitan Transit Authority or the alternative of purchase and operation by the city itself.

* * * *

THERE IS no third choice, according to a report last week by De Leuw, Cather & Co. on local transportation problems. The consulting engineers had just completed a detailed analysis under terms of a $21,000 city contract.

Their conclusion that public ownership in one form or the other is inevitable was based on repeated statements by National City Lines officials that the local subsidiary is for sale because of its unfavorable profit - and - loss record.

MTA negotiated with company officials for the purchase last year and subsequently offered the city an option to take over the operation within two years with a cost formula contemplating no resale profit by MTA.

* * * *

CONSIDERATION of the option has been held in abeyance in recent months pending the completion of the De Leuw, Cather report. It is expected to become one of the issues at the bureau hearing.

Only one bureau member is on public record since the report was delivered. Councilman William A. Graham predicted that MTA will take over the operation.

But the membership also includes sharp critics of the transit authority, among them Councilman Emmet Sullivan. The latter has repeatedly forecast consolidation of routes and reduced service under MTA operation.

Transit experts point out also that it would be difficult for the city two years hence to take over the local segment of the MTA system, disentangle it from other lines, settle labor problems and embark on an operation designed to support the economic and social welfare of the community.

* * * *

THAT SERVICE level was one of two outlined in the De Leuw, Cather report. The other was a level intended merely to meet present rider demand. Says the report:

"There is increasing recognition throughout the country that public transit is a public responsibility, and as essential to the welfare, prosperity and development of the community as are water supply, sanitation and police and fire protection."

According to the consultants, 21,000 persons use the buses for transportation daily to and from the downtown area.

But on the financial side, the engineers give no reason to believe that under city control fares could be held at their present level or service improved without eventual deficits that would have to be met from other city revenues.

* * * *

A SERVICE level designed for economic and social welfare would result in annual deficits of $120,000 under a 20-cent basic cash fare or $65,000 under a 25-cent fare during the first five years, according to the experts' calculations.

Even a level of service to meet present rider demand would yield only a $27,000 annual profit under a 20-cent fare or $72,000 with a 25-cent charge.

Our Schools Keep Pace With Rising Challenge of Times

OPENING OF Long Beach Unified School District's schools tomorrow turns the spotlight on the tremendous effort made by the school administration, backed by the taxpayers of the district, to do the educational job right in the face of increasing enrollments and the changing challenges of the times.

For the eighth consecutive year, all boys and girls will have full-day schooling and a qualified teacher. This condition is unusual in rapidly growing Southern California. It is notable here because our area is sharing in this growth. School statisticians predict that once again all-time enrollment records will be broken, with the greatest increase in junior and senior high schools where the mounting crop of "war babies" are signing up.

THERE ARE SOME marked differences in the school programming this year. Some of the things that are new:

Foreign languages will be offered for the first time in elementary grades. Six pilot classes will be conducted, and evaluation of these classes will determine how rapidly the program will be expanded.

Algebra will be offered the first time in the eighth grade. This is one of the programs designed to meet the needs of particularly able youngsters.

Driver education will be offered on Saturdays and in after-school hours, reducing interference with the teaching of basic subjects in regular periods.

Special literature classes will be offered bright youngsters in the fifth grade.

The school system will have one individual, charged with heading up a program for superior pupils.

THESE ARE AMONG the various evidences that Long Beach school administrators are keeping up with the needs of the times. They not only have the physical plant to handle the swollen enrollments, but they are determined to make the educational effort count for more in the modern world.

We can look with satisfaction upon the community's preparations for another year of educational service for our children whose sharp training is not only important to their chances in the future but is a contribution to the welfare of the nation.

Guess We'll Have to Ride the Bus

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Science Trying Hard to Catch Up With Rest of Us

By BILL VAUGHAN

A SYMPOSIUM of psychologists reports that the threat of H-bomb warfare is a form of insanity. Science, apparently, has a crash program which enables it to catch up with the rest of us, who have always known the world was nuts.

HORATIO ALGER'S heroes are inexplicable. After rescuing the banker's daughter and being rewarded with a position of trust, the tyke neglects to ask if the place is air-conditioned and the fringe benefits ironclad.

THESE ARE challenging times for the syndicated brains, who must urge us to rouse from our apathy and keep calm.

THE OLD HOME TOWN is fortunate. On account of never having had a downtown it isn't faced with the problem of saving its downtown.

IF INTERNATIONAL detectives are going to be especially active in tracking down thefts of great art masterpieces, we want to get it on the record that our lithograph of "Custer's Last Fight" was legitimately obtained.

IN VIEW of the generally bad press it has gotten over the centuries, it's amazing that hate stays so popular.

MAYBE IN THE matter of nuclear tests, Mr. Khrushchev is just trying to make us overconfident by demonstrating that he can make propaganda mistakes too.

TWO HIGH-RANKING Japanese air force officers say they are sorry that Pearl Harbor wasn't wiped out. The big thing is that they're sorry.

"AND ANOTHER THING," said a loud voice on the bus, "Those Communist hose trucks in East Berlin are reliably reported to be squirting hard water."

DAVID LAWRENCE

It's Time for U. S. to End Pussyfooting Forbearance

WASHINGTON — Everyone in America would back up almost any effort President Kennedy might make to avert another world war and to bring about a reduction in the current cost of "peacetime" armaments.

But, as so often happens when governments get bogged down in the rituals of diplomacy, the obvious is overlooked. Reliance is too often placed on strong talk to the Kremlin about bigger and better weapons or the mobilization of armies. But this doesn't reach the Russian people.

LAWRENCE

Today the most obvious fact staring the whole world in the face is that a dictatorship exists in the Soviet Union which lies to its own people by completely distorting and misrepresenting the viewpoint of the Western countries. This is not an academic matter for the Russians either. For if war comes, millions of them will lose their lives.

Yet the United States government is falling down badly in communicating its views to the people behind the Iron Curtain. The excuse usually offered is that it is hard to penetrate communist-controlled areas and that radio broadcasts can be "jammed." This is partly true, but there are ways of reaching into the Soviet Union if a massive effort were made.

IT SEEMS incomprehensible that in a country like America, where publicity and advertising have reached such a high degree of effectiveness, the government itself should be fumbling and bumbling in presenting its views to the world. President Kennedy has an alert mind, and he fully understands the art and value of publicity in domestic politics. It is a mystery why he has allowed the publicity of the United States government abroad to be neglected.

There is need for a vigorous and aggressive policy with a powerful directive from the President of the United States which would authorize direct appeals to the people of the Soviet Union. The bureaucrats may oppose it, but they are not realistic in view of the threat that faces the world.

THE EXISTING directives, for instance, are based on a pussyfoot policy of forbearance. They provide that care should be taken not to seem to be dealing with internal affairs in Russia. So broadcasts are made in vague and abstract jargon, designed mostly to reach so-called "intellectuals."

Today, when the world faces the possibility of a nuclear war, is not the time to handle America's viewpoint with tenderness or politeness. It is a time for straightforward and plain speaking by the American people to the Russian people.

The United States, moreover, need not hesitate to tell the Russian people that Nikita Khrushchev is threatening world peace, that he is suppressing the truth about his own nuclear tests, and is following a dangerous course which can lead to a war that neither side really wants.

Facts about the suppression of the truth and the enslavement of hundreds of millions of human beings behind the Iron Curtain — these are matters which need emphasis over the air waves everywhere. They must be repeated persistently, day in and day out, so that the whole world will have a basis for condemnation of real tyranny and real colonialism.

NOR IS THERE any good reason to ignore the "non-aligned" or "neutral" nations either. Their peoples, too, should be told the truth. In many of these countries, which profess the virtues of their "neutralism," censorship of the press and radio is maintained, so that the American viewpoint doesn't become known or is deliberately misrepresented.

When will the administration stop overlooking the obvious? Time is running out. Officialdom has sidestepped the problem for the last 15 years. It is not a political or partisan question. It is a simple matter of directly telling the peoples of the Soviet Union and the communist bloc, in their own languages, that the West is truly interested in peace and that the Soviet leaders are playing with fire and can bring on a nuclear war.

QUESTIONS

Place in Sun

Q. What is the origin of the phrase, "a place in the sun?" R.B.

A. In the 17th Century Pascal used it in his Pensees (No. 295): "That dog is mine, said those poor children; that place in the sun is mine. Such is the beginning and type of usurpation throughout the earth." In modern times, the phrase was made famous by Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany. In a speech in 1901 on the acquisition of Kiachow, China, he said: "It will now be my duty to see to it that this place in the sun shall remain our undisputed possession."

DREW PEARSON

Adlai Got Brickbats for Urging Test Ban

WASHINGTON—Most people have forgotten it, but it was Adlai Stevenson, during the election campaign of 1956, who first demanded that the world stop nuclear testing because it was contaminating the air with poison.

PEARSON

Today everyone except the Kremlin is in favor of the ending of nuclear testing. But five years ago, when Stevenson was running an uphill race against Eisenhower, nobody was for it except Adlai. Nixon poured cold water on the idea, and accused Stevenson of "catastrophic nonsense." Eisenhower accused Stevenson of making a "theatrical gesture." He implied that Stevenson didn't know what he was talking about.

However, Stevenson stuck to his guns. He delivered a full-dress speech Sept. 29, 1956, demanding that nuclear testing be stopped—if Russia would agree. Various Democratic leaders begged Stevenson to lay off, told him to drop the subject—it was losing votes, killing his chances of election.

Adlai, however, persisted.

Later it developed that John Foster Dulles in a cabinet meeting on Sept. 4 had proposed exactly the same suspension of nuclear testing and that Eisenhower had concurred. But after Stevenson made his speech, the Eisenhower administration reversed itself and trained all its guns on Stevenson.

The Eisenhower administration continued testing until Oct. 31, 1958. On Aug. 12 some of the biggest bombs ever tested were exploded over the mid-Pacific and on Oct. 30, the United States detonated an underground device at the Nevada proving grounds with a force equal to 20,000 tons of TNT. Next day all further U.S. tests were stopped. Three days later the Soviet fired its last test—until last week.

This was two years and a month after Stevenson's proposal.

THE LADY from Maine, who sponsored legislation permitting Air Force women only one single top rank of colonel, had occasion recently to watch proudly as her administrative assistant Bill Lewis was made a brigadier general.

Lewis, who has always outranked his boss, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith in the Air Force — she is only a lieutenant colonel — says he handled the situation in the same manner as Gen. Doolittle riding in a jeep with a WAC aide.

The car stopped. The lady looked at him in obvious distress.

"General," she said, "you outrank me, but I'm a woman. What do we do now?"

"Ma'am," answered the general, "beauty always precedes rank."

THE EX-VICE president looked terrific when in Washington the other day. The tired lines have vanished from his face, which is now more pink than tan. . . . Newswomen were burnt up when Nixon held a luncheon in the Press Club bar where no women are admitted. . . . It was from this luncheon that rumor leaked that Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy is to have another baby —since denied by the White House. . . . Nixon told friends he was going up to New York "to see people" about the California governorship. The inference was that he was looking for financial backing . . . There seems no question but that Dick will run for governor of California. . . . Nixon told friends he was more worried over Brazil than Cuba. Goulart, he said, is in the same category as Castro. . . . Nixon's new book will be written by himself. It will be on his own experiences in public life. Earl Mazo, his old ghostwriter and friend, is doing much of the research.

GOP's Need for Demo Votes Seen as Top Knight Asset

NO ONE will be surprised if Goodwin J. Knight tosses his hat into the gubernatorial ring within the next couple of weeks.

In fact, a good many Republicans have been expecting him to do so, and thereby toss out a once and for all challenge to the voters of the GOP in California for the nomination next June.

During an exclusive interview with Capitol News Service recently, Ex-Governor Knight was asked if he intended to have an announcement soon which would be important to the Republican party, in fact, within a couple of weeks.

"I just may, I just may have that," Knight replied.

* * * *

SUCH AN ANNOUNCEMENT, of course, would be only his intention to seek the governorship once again, in the face of all the factions of the GOP which are seeking recognition at this time, including Richard Nixon, Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, Assemblyman Joseph Shell of Los Angeles and former Lieutenant Governor Harold J. Powers of Modoc County.

KNIGHT
Could Split Demos

The Republicans at the present time are almost disastrously split, with virtually no leadership and no definite program. The party has lost national leadership, the governorship of California, and all the state elective offices except that of secretary of state. It has bare minorities in the senate and assembly of California.

With this situation to face, it will be up to the nominee of the party at the June primary elections to solidify the remaining remnants into a workable group, with the idea of regaining control in only a few years instead of the long period of time it took the Democrats to come back after the Bourbons lost control of California.

* * * *

THERE ARE many in the party who feel that Ex-Governor Knight is thoroughly competent to do the job. And there are also many who feel that Nixon could do it well.

But when everything is taken into consideration, the fact remains that the Democrats, with a 3-2 majority in registration in California, fear Knight as a candidate more than they fear Nixon.

They argue that Knight would be the most likely candidate to split the Democrats wide open, dividing the ultra-liberals from the more conservative element of the party, who are probably not quite conservative enough to vote for Nixon, but would go along with Knight, who while he was governor approached administration on more of a bi-partisan basis.

* * * *

BUT THESE Democrats, of course, will have nothing to say as to who is the Republican candidate, due to the fact that cross-filing is out, and they will have probably only one candidate to support in the primary, that being Governor Edmund G. Brown.

The question of the eventual election, therefore, observers feel, hangs on the vote of the registered Republicans next June. With Nixon solidifying the Democrats, Brown no doubt would be an odds-on favorite to return to office. But, if a candidate is selected who would split the Democratic vote, the Republicans might have a running chance.

Scholarship on Word of Experts

EDITOR:

Recently the executive committee of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Assn. voted to make an appropriation of $300 from the scholarship fund to a Long Beach boy, Billy Tarpy. This appropriation made it possible for the boy to take advantage of a full scholarship at the American School of Ballet in New York City.

Since there have been some questions asked regarding the basis and criteria upon which the appropriation was made, I would appreciate your printing this letter in the interests of public information.

Scholarships are customarily awarded in cases where the following things exist: (1) talent and ability, (2) seriousness and dedication, and (3) need for financial assistance. All of these things were incontrovertibly established by letters written in Tarpy's behalf by Eugene Ouroussow, Carmelita Maracci, Valerie Silver and others. The executive committee did not assume the highly skilled function of auditioning the boy, but felt that the recommendations of the outstanding specialists listed more than adequately provided the needed information.

'Anti' Position Most Effective

EDITOR:

Your editorial on the successful anti-subsidence fight was most interesting. Subsidence has been gnawing away slowly but relentlessly for many years, destroying the waterfront area of the Port of Long Beach.

Some fuzzy thinkers in our country tell us that it is not enough to be anti-something—that we must be for something. They would have us believe that it is not good to be anti-anything. They would tell you that when you are anti-subsidence you are attempting to influence people to hate subsidence.

If the anti-subsidence fight had been waged as a "for" something type of fight, it would have been impossible, because of the many varied interests involved, to get all of the cooperating groups to be for the same thing.

The fight against communism is similar. Communism has been gnawing away at the United States and the free world for many years. All Americans, no matter what they may be for, can unite in the anti-Communist fight. No matter whether a person is "for" Democrats or Republicans, "for" Catholic, Jews, or Protestants or "for" open or closed shops, once he is made aware of the true nature of communism, he will be uncompromisingly anti-Communist.

This is a fight that can only be won by each of us educating ourselves as to the nature of the Communist disease and its treatment. If we neglect this fight, communism will destroy us just as surely as subsidence would have destroyed the Port of Long Beach if the anti-subsidence fight had not been staged and won.

Sees Racket in Shelter Drive

EDITOR:

As regards civil defense, what good will these underground shelters do when you have to breathe the same radiation-adulterated air as those who stay above ground, or when you emerge you find the ground for many miles around is polluted? I think, and so do many of us, it is just a racket for someone to make a fat profit.

Languages in the News

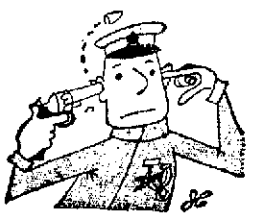

By Charles F. Berlitz and Robert Strumpen-Darrie

We have lately received numerous interesting inquiries from our readers. Here are some:

"Where does the phrase "to get down to brass tacks" come from?" (Mrs. H. S. Mason, Providence, R. I.)

There are two explanations. Take your choice!

1. In early times in the United States bolts of cloth were placed on the counter in general stores and the amount to be cut off was tacked down and cut after the initial haggling over the price had been settled.

2. Wooden ships were scraped for barnacles right down to the copper nails or "tacks" in their hulls.

* * * *

"Where does the phrase "Russian Roulette" come from?" (Sandra McGhee, North Kansas City, Mo.)

It refers to the onetime custom of Russian cavalry officers to show their bravery. They challenged each other by taking turns spinning a revolver barrel containing one bullet and then firing it at the spinner's head. Somewhat similar is the American teen-age game of "chicken" played with cars, or the Japanese parties for men where "fuku" (fookoo) a delicious fish, that can be extremely poisonous if not expertly cleaned, is served.

L.B. Pastor Tells of Angry Scenes at Brandenburg Gate

The anger and frustration of a divided Berlin and the hope for victory of Christianity over Marxism through example was related here Saturday by a Long Beach pastor who was in Berlin at the time of the closing of the Brandenburg Gate in crisis-ridden August.

The Rev. C. LeRoy Doty, Jr., pastor of the First Church of the Brethren here, went to West Berlin to participate in a three-week seminar on "The Christian-Communist Encounter: Personal and International." Twenty-one persons from 10 countries met July 26-Aug. 19 in the seminar sponsored by the Brethren Service Commission in a cooperative program with the World Council of Churches.

The Rev. Mr. Doty was in East Berlin when the Communists erected a barbed wire blockade to keep refugees from flowing into West Berlin.

"When our party entered East Berlin about 10 a.m. on Aug. 13,' said the Rev. Mr. Doty, "we had no indication of what was to happen.

"I had been in East Berlin before and it was like a ghost town. But as we were on our way back to West Berlin we saw thousands of people flowing toward the Brandenburg Gate.

"When we got to the gate," he said, "the East German police and militia were lined up, shoulder to shoulder, holding the crowd back.

"There were soldiers on top of buildings, training guns down on the people. Russian tanks, manned by East Germans, rolled into the area.

"Some in the crowd jeered — some cheered," he said. "But for the most part it was a quiet crowd. It seemed as if they were just waiting for something to happen."

After showing passports — "about 20 times"—the Rev. Mr. Doty and his party were allowed to leave East Berlin.

In West Berlin, he said, "the people massed angrily near the Brandenburg Gate, shouting insults at the East Berlin soldiers and yelling about the 'workers paradise.'

"There is a feeling of frustration in West Berlin," he continued. "The people there feel they are completely dependent on the United States." He said one of the signs greeting Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson on his arrival read: "Washington is Closer Than Bonn."

"About 300,000 people stood in the rain an hour and a half waiting for Johnson," he said. "Many were crying after he spoke.

The Rev. Mr. Doty was in Russia before the seminar began and visited the Russian Baptist Church in Moscow.

"We need to recognize the tremendous effect that a purified and revitalized Christian church is having and can have on Communism behind the 'Iron Curtain,'" he said.

"Far from it being the end of the church in Eastern countries, the church there is like the church in ancient Rome. The church lives only in Jesus Christ and not in external supports or economic wealth.

"When the Marxist sees a Christian who is willing to sacrifice for his faith to the point of social ostricism, ridicule or even death, he must ask himself, 'Am I really right about the Church being dead, or is it still living?'

"The fact that there are so many dedicated Christians behind the 'Iron Curtain' who hold to this new theology in the hope that Marxist dogma will change is a sure sign that it will."

The Elsinore Valley Chamber of Commerce is arranging entertainment for the train's passengers, including parachute drops.

TERRY'S A TRAMP

Hitch-Hiking Pooch Problem to Mistress

DEL MAR (UPI)—"Let's face it," said Mrs. R. W. Gerber. "Terry is a tramp. He's always sneaking rides."

Terry is a 7-year-old Irish setter with a passion for hitch-hiking. His last trip was with a frightened clerk, Mrs. Mona Ormsby of San Diego.

Mrs. Ormsby told sheriff's deputies: "A large red dog jumped into my car while I was having dinner at the hotel.

"I told him to get out. He just wagged his tail. I tried to push him out but he was too big and obstinate"

Mrs. Ormsby said she gave him a ride, later calling Mrs. Gerber when she saw Terry's name on his collar.

Mrs. Gerber said it wasn't the first time Terry had snitched a ride.

"Once," Mrs. Gerber said, "he even stowed away in Victor Mature's car."

The actor didn't notice Terry until he arrived at his home in nearby Rancho Santa Fe.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Bishop Blows Whistle on Swim Pool Guests

By EARL WILSON

BEVERLY HILLS — Joey Bishop of the Bronx, Philadelphia and Englewood, N. J., lounged in the sun beside his pool here on Roxbury Dr. and endeavored to explain the character he's going to play when he begins his very own TV show Sept. 20 — a far from easy chore.

BISHOP

"His name is Joey Barnes," Joey said. "I wasn't about to throw away all my shirts with the initials J. B. on them."

"What does this guy do?" I asked. "I heard he was sort of a theatrical agent."

"He's a public relations man." Joey sipped some strawberry soda and stuck out his bare toes so they, too, could get sun-tanned.

"But I talked to Danny Thomas and he said you aren't a public relations man," I remarked.

* * * *

JOEY TOSSED me a look which could probably be described as quizzical. "Yeah?" he said. "What time did you talk to Danny?"

You can see that things change very rapidly on the TV scene here when they're building new shows. It turned out that Joey isn't a press agent . . . but is a public relations man. There's a difference. As they say in the business, there's about a $200-a-week difference.

"Joey plays like a coat-holder, a leg-man, for the Willoughby Public Relations Co. in New York," a friend explained. "When the visiting star needs a bra or a pair of stockings, Joey performs a personal service—he trots out and buys them—even tries them on for size . . ."

* * * *

DENNIS O'KEEFE plays the part of a swinging bachelor. Dennis says: "Marriage is a wonderful thing if you like pot roast for the next 30 or 40 years."

Getting into weekly TV on a big scale for the Danny Thomas enterprises means that Joey will be out of night clubs, where he made his big pitch for fame before going on the Jack Paar show.

Famous for his quiet ad libs, Joey realized that there was a danger in switching to a scripted show. Many have thought that Joey's greatest charm is his throw-away lines which nobody could have written for him.

And so, Joey says, he is tossing ad-libs into the filmed show, and hoping there will be enough of those to give the same flavor.

* * * *

JOEY'S BIGGEST effort in the filming to date was handling a Jack Paar spot concerning an African safari in which Joey, as the public relations man, had to "service" some chimpanzees which were doing a spot on the Paar show. Evidently nothing went right—when I visited their set at one of the Desilu studios, I heard Paar saying that if he was trained, then why weren't the chimps?

Paar appeared for $320 and expenses—the same as Joey and other stars get on the Paar show. They had been prepared to pay Paar many thousands for the spot.

* * * *

ONE OF THE luxuries that Joey, his son, and his $7 dog Winky, given him by Buddy Hackett, enjoy is the private swimming pool.

"When I was a kid in Philly," he says, "I went to a public pool, and somebody blew the whistle every hour that you had to get out of the pool.

"Now when anybody from Philadelphia comes to swim here, I blow the whistle every hour!"

* * * *

THE WEEKEND WINDUP . . . A famed H'wood producer ordered a screen test for the girl who threw the dice for him at Monte Carlo, helped him win $80,000. . . . A major film company told its staff not to talk to the star of its biggest film without first getting her husband's permission.

Maximillan Schell rejected Darryl Zanuck's request to play a Nazi officer in "The Longest Day"; he doesn't want to play German heavies any more. . . . "The Reprieve" will be Ben Gazzara's fifth film—but the first made in H'wood. (The others were done in N. Y.) . . . Mrs. Carl O'Sugrue, wife of the Irish Airlines liaison man in N. Y. to Irish societies, had her third baby to be born by natural childbirth on the same date—Aug. 27—odds of millions to one.

EARL'S PEARLS: By the time a man gets to greener pastures, he can't climb the fence.

Connors to Make Own TV Survey

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If a bonafide movie and TV star rings your doorbell anytime after Sept. 20, don't be startled—it's for real.

Chuck Connors, the one-time Brooklyn Dodgers first baseman, has just finished making the movie "Geronimo" in Mexico and is about ready to start on his 1961-62 season as TV's "The Rifleman."

"I don't go for all these polls so I'm going to conduct my own survey of what's wrong and what's needed in television."

On Sept. 20, Chuck will be in Minneapolis.

* * * *

"I'M JUST GOING to ring doorbells. I have a set of questions that can be answered 'yes' or 'no' on the doorstep but if folks want to invite me in for a spot of tea—or something stronger—I'm willing."

After Minneapolis, Connors will head for eight other cities.

They are Detroit, Sept. 21; Chicago, Sept. 22-24; St. Louis, Sept. 25; Cincinnati, Sept. 26; Cleveland, Sept. 27; Pittsburgh, Sept. 28; Washington, Sept. 29, and New York City Oct. 2-6.

"I'm going to cover all sorts of neighborhoods from high society down through other economic levels," says the lanky actor.

* * * *

"I HOPE PEOPLE will recognize me. If not, I'll produce credentials like the gas meter reader.

"I've read so many expert opinions on television and the movies that I figure the only way to find out what really gives is to ask the viewers themselves.

"I want to find out what people like in entertainment. I think in the informality of their own living rooms we can sit down and get the facts."

It's grass roots from Hollywood.

AFTER 16 YEARS

Alice Faye, 46, Back in Movies

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Alice Faye, America's singing sweetheart of the movies in the late 1930s and early 1940s, is returning to films after a 16-year layoff—"before I fall completely apart."

She's in no such danger. She's 46, still blonde and looked like a million at 20th Century-Fox Studios, where she's making her comeback as Pat Boone's mother in the musical picture "State Fair."

There was nostalgia in the air as waitresses, studio policemen and oldtime executives came over to greet her at her lunch table in a remote corner of 20th's commissary—but hardly a young star there recognized her or said hello.

* * * *

"I FEEL LIKE a tourist," she said, wistfully. "I guess if I could see Ty (the late Tyrone Power) or Don Ameche walk in, I'd feel better."

Almost as if reading her mind, 20th announced shortly afterward that oldtimer Ameche also had been signed for the movie—to play her husband.

Power and Ameche were two of her top leading men in the glorious Hollywood era when she starred in such period movies as "In Old Chicago," "Little Old New York," "Tin Pan Alley," "Lillian Russell," "Rose of Washington Square" and "Hello, Frisco, Hello."

* * * *

ACROSS THE NATION, her name was identified with such songs as "You'll Never Know," "Alexander's RagtimeBand" and "Rose of Washington Square." Song writers Cole Porter, George Gershwin and Irving Berlin said they'd rather have her introduce their tunes than anyone else.

But for most of the last 16 years, the New York-born star has been a housewife to her husband, ex-bandleader Phil Harris, and their two daughters in Palm Springs, Calif.

Why, then, is she returning?

* * * *

"IT SEEMED the right time," Miss Faye said in the same deep voice that put over her songs. "I never missed movies. But now Phil is quite a hunter, and he's in and out a lot. My oldest daughter is 19 and married, and the young one is at the University of Arizona. So there I was all alone for spells.

"Then Charlie Brackett, the producer, called. He was so persistent—he called three and four times a day for four days. I liked the script and told Phil, and he said I was crazy not to take it. So I said yes, and the next morning I woke up screaming, saying, 'What have I done?'" She laughed. "It's really thrilling, I must admit. Maybe my fans will like it. I've already got fan letters again. It's nice to be remembered.

"The money was nice too—and I guess I was flattered."

* * * *

THE WARM, witty, relaxed actress, who will sing again in "State aFir"—which also features Bobby Darin and Ann-Margaret—has been married to Harris for 20 years. And she admits she's surprised their marriage has lasted.

"So's everybody else," she smiled. "They didn't think we'd make it. But I'll tell you how we did—and most women will probably hit me over the head for this: I never say no when Phil wants to go hunting or fishing. I'll admit sometimes the trips are long, and my girl friends say I'm crazy. But I know guys like to be alone sometimes. They don't want their wives around.

"One woman can ruin fun for a bunch of guys. I tell my girl friends, 'do you want a guy hanging around with a long puss?' Phil fishes a lot with Bing Crosby, and I think privacy means much to him. I'll credit this attitude with 70 per cent of our marriage. Because I'm the same as Phil."

U. S. THEATER

No Broadway Monopoly

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Actress Nan Martin recently made a 9,000-mile trip for the Ford Foundation and found, she says, that the theater is no more a Broadway monopoly.

Nan says the Foundation is going to give some money to the theater and picked her, among others, to survey drama in the United States.

Nan, who left nearby Santa Monica to take a bus ride to New York and landed there with only $1.59, says that aspiring players can get breaks nearer home now.

She believes that before long the theater in the United States will be national.

2 Killed, 81 Hurt in Oil Blast

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (UPI)—A blistering explosion crumpled a 100-foot oil well Saturday, killing at least two men and injuring 81 roughnecks who were trying to cap it.

A hospital at nearby Monahans, Tex., said Hubert Whitfield of Monahans and Pat York of Fort Stockton were dead on arrival. The two victims were working directly under the oil well when it exploded.

Officials said the well was still burning more than eight hours after the blast.

At least 10 men were listed in critical condition. Fifteen were taken to a hospital at Monahans, 25 were taken to Pecos and 41 were admitted to a hospital at Fort Stockton.

* * * *

MOBIL OIL CO. owned the well. A spokesman said roughnecks struck a gas pocket Wednesday while drilling for oil. More than 40,000 sacks of cementing mud had been used prior to the blast in efforts to cap the gas flow.

The well blew with such force that it crumpled the large rig, lifted it off the ground and toppled it. The injured men were working directly around the well when it blew up.

Several storage tanks filled with salt water and brine near the oil well also blew up from the intense heat. An official at the scene said a 3,000-gallon butane tank also exploded.

L.B. PROFESSIONAL GROUP

Public Views New Medical Building

Today marks the grand opening of the newest medical facility in the Long Beach area, the Long Beach Professional Group Building at 3590 Elm Ave. A special invitation to the public to view the new facility has been extended for the hours of 12 to 5 p.m. today.

Financed and constructed by the Long Beach Professional Group, this new facility will serve as the headquarters for the local group. Receiving a charter from the State of California in 1937, the Long Beach Professional Group was organized for the purpose of developing an association of specialists who could provide the maximum in complete medical service to the public.

Originally consisting of 10 doctors, the Group opened offices in the top floor of the Times Building in downtown Long Beach. They remained at this location for 14 years and then expanded their services by acquiring facilities in the Prudential Building, 4320 Atlantic Ave. This location has served as their headquarters for the past 10 years.

* * * *

NOW ANOTHER milestone in the development of the Long Beach Professional Group has been reached with the opening of this new building. Consisting of 17 doctors, a new pharmacy (the Apothecary Shop), and a modern X-ray and clinical laboratory, the Long Beach Professional Group, will continue to provide in one central location, complete medical service for the community.

This modern medical facility, houses 12 medical suites with separate units for the new pharmacy, X-ray and clinical laboratory.

Specialty services available in the 15,000-square-foot, all-electric Medallion building include General Medicine; Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Surgery, Gynecology; Obstetrics, Heart Diseases; Surgery of the Eye; Anesthesia; Urology; Internal Medicine; Rectal Diseases; Psychiatry; and Clinical Psychology.

* * * *

CONSTRUCTED in a one-story modern design, the building features suspended ceilings with alternating projecting panels. The facade of the structure is of Norman brick with a stuccoed decorative screen wall protecting a semi-covered paved area which can be used for outdoor waiting.

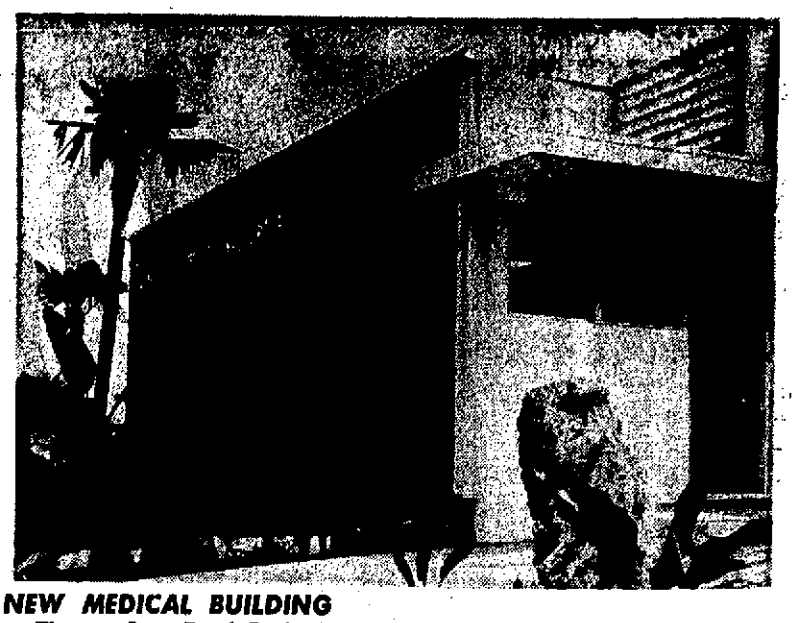

Although "L" shaped, it is actually four separate structures connected by a covered parapet with landscaping beneath. Centrally located, the building is easily accessible by all local transportation services. Free parking facilities adjoin individual doctor's suites and four separate entrances to the main structure are provided for patient's convenience. Restful harmony is primary in both the external and internal decor. The quality of the landscaping and interior furnishings creates an atmosphere of restfulness.

Exchange Club Sets Dance Exhibition

A varied dance program will be featured at the "Ladies Day" luncheon meeting of the Exchange Club Wednesday in the Lafayette Hotel.

An exhibition of dances will be presented by couples from Call's and Arthur Murray's Dance studios.

NEW MEDICAL BUILDING

The new Long Beach Professional Group Building at 3590 Elm Ave. opens today for public inspection. Open house tours have been set from noon through 5 p. m.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Machines Boost Child Injury Risk

(Prepared in collaboration with George X. Trimble, M.D., medical education director, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER

Increasing mechanization of the environment has boosted the risk of severe injury to children, notes a doctor reporting in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Dr. George T. Aitken, Grand Rapids, Mich., of the Michigan Crippled Children Commission, studied the records of 203 amputations among children in a Michigan clinic during the past 12 years. These amputations, he says, were due solely to injury and not to illness or birth defects

Average age of children undergoing amputations, from all injury causes, was 10 years. Youngest: one month. Oldest: 20 years. Of the 203 cases, 165 were boys.

He classes the amputations according to seven categories of injury.

1. Farm tools and power tools. Fifty-three cases. Power lawn mowers often were the equipment responsible for injury. Average age of these victims: 11 years.

2. Gunshots and explosions. Fifty cases. Explosives involved were dynamite caps, gun shells, firecrackers, homemade bombs, home chemistry sets, homemade rocket fuel. Average age of victims: 11.

3. Vehicular. Forty-one cases. Vehicles included automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles, horses. Pedestrian accidents included in this category. Average age of victims: 13.

4. Railroad. Twenty-eight cases. Only one of the victims was a girl, suggesting that boys are much more apt to play around trains than girls are. Average age: 10.

5. Household. Sixteen cases. Injuries included: 7, wringer; 2, falls through glass door panes; 3, meat grinder. Average age: 4.

6. Childhood recreation. Eight cases. Four of the injuries were from falls. Average age: 12.

7. Thermal. Seven cases. Burns from house fires, scalding water, high-voltage wires. Average age: 3.

ANIMAL HOSPITALS may be reservoirs for pus-forming staph germs that resist antibiotics.

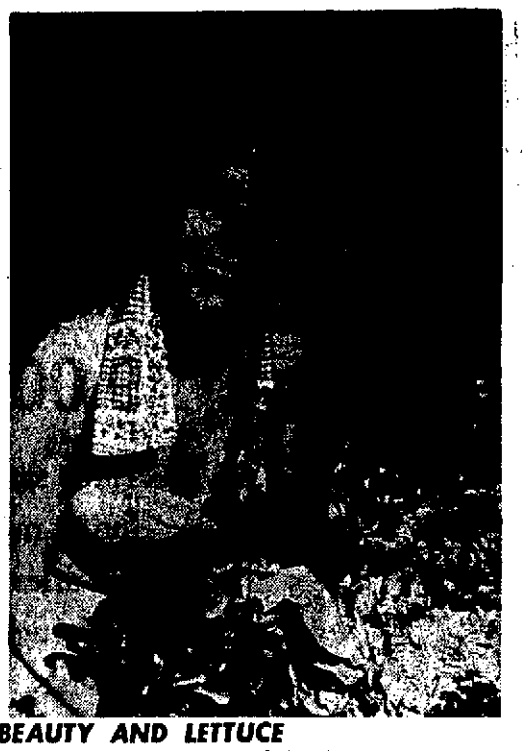

In a recent school year at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, a high percentage of senior students suffered from skin infections caused by staphylococcus bacteria.

A survey showed that 50 per cent of these seniors were carriers of a strain of staph that wouldn't respond to drugs.

Many hospitalized animals also were found to carry the staph germ, says the report in the Journal of Infectious Diseases.

CAPSULES: More than $1 million has been earmarked by the National Institutes of Health for a seven-year epilepsy research program, to be conducted at the University of Wisconsin. . . . A long-term study into the effects of phenylketonuria, a disease that can lead to mental retardation, is planned by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. . . . University of California researchers have developed a double-jointed ankle brace which permits foot rotation, thus simplifying walking on steps, grades and in and out of automobiles. First large clinical trial of brace to begin this month.

BEAUTY AND LETTUCE

Bronze Beauty Lettuce, being featured by Los Angeles County Fairette Barbara Miller, is one of nine varieties grown in the area, and is being featured at the agricultural display at the Pomona exposition Sept. 15-Oct. 1. Agricultural prize money offered fair exhibitors this year totals $55,287.

New Frontier Club Will Elect Tuesday

The New Frontier Democratic Club will set plans for the Dollars for Democrats drive and elect delegates to the assembly district convention at a meeting at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Linden Hall.

County Road Center Lines to Be Yellow

Double center lines on county roads will be repainted from white to yellow within the next year, according to Supervisor Burton W. Chace, chairman of the Board of Supervisor's road committee.

The repainting will be done to conform with a standard recently adopted by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads in the interest of uniformity.

Chace said county roads will be repainted gradually as the existing white stripes require it.

The repainting will be confined to double stripes over which it is illegal to pass, Chace said. White will remain the color of single stripes dividing lanes of travel in the same direction.

GOVERNOR REMEMBERS

Note Lifts Boy's Morale

Last August 17, Rawland J. Freear, 3708 Maine Ave., wrote Gov. Edmund Brown asking the state's chief executive officer if he could keep up the morale of his 13-year-old son by sending him a get-well message.

The boy, John, broke his leg August 10 while at the beach.

"As you can see," Freear wrote Gov. Brown, "this would be hard for any 13-year-old boy. When he is released, he will have to spend another several months in a body cast."

* * * *

JOHN WAS RELEASED from Memorial Hospital last Tuesday.

And Gov. Brown wrote him:

"I know it is tough for a 13-year-old to be tied down that way, particularly with school starting and the good autumn weekends coming up . . .

"I would like to suggest just one silver lining that may turn up in your temporary cloud: It sounds like a great chance to do a lot of reading.

"Let me tell you that you will not get many such opportunities when you have grown up and moved out into the busy world of today—particularly if you ever decide to run for governor.

". . . Best wishes for a speedy recovery."

Anaheim Talk On Shelters

Slit trenches and underground bunkers saved many troops in past wars—and can save many civilians in any future holocaust, a Marine Corps League speaker told an audience here.

H. W. (Russ) Ruskin of Anaheim, public information officer for the California department of the Marine Corps League, advised householders to "improvise to survive" if they can't afford expensive fallout shelters.

* * * *

HIS TALK by that title was at Chrysler Auditorium to a near-capacity crowd. The meeting was arranged after a prior session brought a standing-room-only crowd to hear about survival shortcuts.

Mayor A. J. Schutte of Anaheim, opening the session, warned against panic. He conceded that fallout shelters are expensive, beyond the reach of most people financially. In any shooting war and, in the confusion which would follow, many might not reach their own shelters, he said.

Ruskin's message stressed ways to improvise.

* * * *

A HASTILY-DUG SLIT trench can save a life in a blast, and so can more-elaborate underground bunkers, Ruskin contended. Neither is expensive except in labor.

Such protection can easily be provided in anyone's back yard, Ruskin said.

He advised using the crawl hole under houses for more certain protection, after a minimum of labor to wall up a small room where foods and water could be stored. Such a project, he said, would substitute for backyard fallout shelters costing into the thousands of dollars.

Maris Breathes Hotter Toward Goal With 56th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Roger Maris slammed his 56th home run, which enabled him and Mickey Mantle to break a Babe Ruth-Lou Gehrig homer record, and then the Yankees staged a four-run rally in the ninth inning Saturday to beat Cleveland, 8-7, for their 10th victory in a row.

Maris' homer, a 400-foot drive into the right-centerfield bleachers with the bases empty in the seventh, was the 108th he and Mantle have hit together this year, surpassing the Ruth-Gehrig total of 107 in 1927 which was the record for homers by two teammates in one season.

John Blanchard hit his 19th homer and Elston Howard his 17th for the Yankees, but the big runs were the four scored in the ninth inning, with the winning tally crossing the plate on Bill Skowron's sacrifice fly.

Neal Goat Again as FIVE Errors Hand Giants Win

By GEORGE LEDERER
(U. P. T Staff Writer)

SAN FRANCISCO — Saturday was a holiday in the state of California and in the city of Cincinnati. California observed the 111th anniversary of its admission to the Union and Cincinnati, only slightly prematurely, celebrated Admission Day to the World Series.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, the San Francisco Giants had a picnic and the Dodgers were left holding the basket.

To be more precise, the Dodgers were basket cases. They committed five errors, three in the eighth inning handing the Giants a 9-6 victory and the Reds a three-game lead.

If the Dodgers are not dead, they are much in need of a resuscitator squad. With 20 games remaining for the Dodgers and only 14 for Cincinnati, the Reds' magic number has been reduced to 15. And if the Dodgers are to find the magic now, they will have to find Aladdin's Lamp.

True, the Reds and Dodgers still are even in the loss column. Cincinnati, however, has won six more games that the Dodgers have yet to play. It means simply that the Dodgers must win six games while the Reds are idle and must match them win-for-win after that in order to tie.

The Dodger order is a large one, comparable to requesting Flaming Duck and Baked Alaska at Ron Fairly's Dugout.

The story of Saturday's Dodger defeat is the third tragic chapter added to the biography of Charlie Neal during the last three weeks.

With the Dodgers leading 5-4, manager Walter Alston summoned Neal for defensive purposes at second base to start the seventh inning. Jim Gilliam moved to third base and Daryl Spencer moved to the clubhouse.

A two-run homer by Willie Mays and a solo by Wally Moon created a 6-6 tie when Neal chased his first chance with one out in the eighth inning. Felipe Alou's grounder was like most grounders, routine. But Neal booted the ball and his act proved to be contagious.

Before the inning was over, Maury Wills was guilty of two errors and the deciding runs off reliever Ron Perranoski were unearned.

Rookie Ernie Bowman tripled after Neal's error, the windblown ball barely eluding the outstretched glove of center fielder Duke Snider. Bowman scored as Wills muffed winner Dick Lemay's double play grounder and Lemay was given a second life when Wills dropped Neal's peg to second on a grounder by Joe Amalfitano.

* * * *

THROUGH NO fault of his, Perranoski was dismissed and Mays added a coup de grace single off Dick Farrell.

Neal, who only two seasons back was regarded the best second baseman in the league, also erred in the final innings and cost the Dodgers two games at St. Louis and Cincinnati during the last and disastrous trip.

Before the Dodgers staged their juggling act, Giants first baseman Willie McCovey had put the visitors back in the game with a three-base and three-run error in the sixth inning.

McCovey, who couldn't play first base in the Long Beach Municipal Band, let Ron

AFTER ANOTHER BIG WIN . . .

Reds Set to Wave Flag

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds moved into a three-game lead in the National League Saturday as Frank Robinson singled home the winning run in the 12th inning for a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Robinson, who had two hits in Friday night's Cincinnati victory over St. Louis, had batted only .185 in eight games before that. His game-winning blow Saturday was his only hit in five official times at bat.

The single came after reliever Al Cicotte had yielded a double to Leo Cardenas and then walked Vada Pinson after fanning Bill Henry and Eddie Kasko.

The pitching credit went to reliever Bill Henry (2-1).

The 3 hour and 47 minute game saw Reds' manager Fred Hutchinson use every player on his roster, except some of the pitchers. Ken Johnson was the starter.

Johnson might have had the game won in the regulation nine innings except for shoddy Redleg play in the seventh. The Cards, aided by a pop fly double that never even reached the pitching mound, moved into a 3-2 lead.

The Reds had tied it in their half on two walks and a sacrifice fly by Kasko.

In sweeping the bench clean, Hutchinson even called on sore-armed catcher Darrell Johnson after the starting receiver, John Edwards, pulled an achilles tendon and Jerry Zimmerman, who relieved him, went out for a pinch runner.

The Reds got their first two runs in the fourth with Johnson doing the honors with a single to center. It came after two walks and a single had filled the bases.

Except for Carl Sawatski's home run in the fifth, the Cards didn't threaten Johnson seriously until the seventh.

T'NT Boys Club Chisox, 6-2, After Rigney Signs for '62

By ROSS NEWHAN

Bill Rigney, manager of that group of castoffs who would be lucky to even finish in the American League race, was re-hired for the 1962 season Saturday.

When he signed the one-year contract estimated at $30,000, Rigney's team was still in the American League race. In fact, they resided in seventh place, ahead of two long-established teams and their expansionist cousins, the Washington Senators.

General manager Fred Haney was high in praise as he announced the signing. "Bill has handled a most difficult task very well," said Haney. "All of the credit for the development of our youngsters and the club's fine showing this season is a tribute to his leadership."

Rigney, who said he preferred the one-year pact, was elated. "Naturally, I am very happy to be back. My association with Fred and the owners has been wonderful. I hope that we are able to do as much next year as we've accomplished this season."

Rigney agreed that Haney's bartering for such promising future stars as Lee Thomas and George Thomas was the key development of the year and would make the Angels a pennant contender long before anticipated.

* * * *

IN FACT, it was the T'NT duo which powered the Angels past the Chicago White Sox Saturday night, snapping a four-game losing streak and handing the Pale Hose only their fourth defeat in their last 18 games, 6-2.

Lee Thomas jolted a solo homer, his 21st, in the fourth inning, and George Thomas crashed a mighty grand slam, his 11th homer and first slam, in the fifth to keep intact the Angels' one-game seventh place advantage over Minnesota.

Following this afternoon's game when Jack Spring (1-0) will attempt to halt Juan Pizarro's (13-5) bid for his seventh straight win, the Angels will be off to Minnesota where they open a key four-game series with the Twins Monday night.

While T 'N T were supplying the explosives, Eli Grba (9-11) was pitching his fourth straight win and seventh complete game. The ex-Yankee retired 10 straight men before the Sox got their first hit in the fourth and did not allow a run until the sixth when two infield hits and a walk loaded the bases and the run crossed on an error and double play. Unperturbed, Grba retired 11 of the final 12 batters in order.

Rookie Joe Horlen (1-1) opened for Chicago and had allowed only one hit until Lee Thomas, who is 12 for 19 in the Angels' last four games, broke the scoreless deadlock with his smash over the right-field wall.

Singles by Rocky Bridges and Joe Koppe sandwiched around a walk made it 2-0 in

FULLBACK SIGNED BY RAMS

ST. PAUL, Minn. — The Rams Saturday announced the signing of Frank Williams, a 6-1, 220-pound fullback.

Williams was released recently from Chino State Institute, where he served three years for "breaking and entering." He played at Pepperdine College in 1954 and in the Army for four years as well as on the Chino team. He worked out with the Rams' last week and was very impressive.

The signing of Williams, 28, had the complete backing of the Ram owners, general manager Elroy Hirsch and coach Bob Waterfield. He will play today against the Minnesota Vikings.

FINAL EXHIBITION

Rams Favored by 13 Over Vikings

By JERRY WYNN
(U. P. T Staff Writer)

ST. PAUL, Minn.—This is a momentous day in Minnesota. Professional football is returning to the land of the once-storied pro Duluth Eskimos, the home of the immortal Bronko Nagurski and the spawning grounds of a host of mighty University of Minnesota teams.

Into this treasure-camp of football lore today enter the new Minnesota Vikings for their first appearance at home, the sprawling twin cities of St. Paul-Minneapolis. And into this historic scene—for today only—come the villians, those hotshots from Hollywood, the Rams.

* * * *

A NEAR-CAPACITY crowd of 35,000 is expected at Metropolitan Stadium to watch the Vikings battle the Rams and welcome wildly its infant National Football League offspring. The game is the last pre-season encounter for both teams.

The Rams are rated 13-point favorites, a somewhat surprising edge in view of their shoddy play the last two weeks and Minnesota coach Norm Van Brocklin's repeated statements this week of his desire to whip his old teammates. And to listen to the Dutchman, Viking general manager Bert Rose and the quarterbacks on the streets, this pampered baby of theirs really is expected to tear down its crib at an early age.

As one cab driver told me, "the people here have been brought up on winning Minnesota football teams. They expect them. They expect the Vikings to be a winner quickly."

The populace of the Twin Cities (nearly one million) and fans throughout the state have supported the franchise splendidly. There have been 27,474 season tickets sold. Compare that with the 5,000 season tickets reported by the Dallas Cowboys in their first year in 1960 or the 10,000 figure the Chargers say they've sold in San Diego or even the 28,468 total of the Rams.

There are "On Vikings" signs throughout the cities, and the newspapers have put out special Viking editions today. Van Brocklin is said to have made more speeches

SILVESTER CRASHES RECORD

Army Lt. Jay Silvester unleashed the longest record discus throw of all-time—210 feet, 2½ inches—Saturday to better the world record by almost 14 feet.

Silvester has pending a bid for a world record based on his throw of 199 feet, 2½ inches made in Brussels, Belgium, on Aug. 21. But the recognized mark remains a throw of 196 feet, 6½ inches set in 1959 by Edmund Piatkowski of Poland and equaled last year by Rink Babka, the former SC star.

Babka was second with a throw of 196-9½, also bettering the recognized mark, with Bob Humphreys of Long Beach third at 192 feet.

Silvester, who is stationed at Fort Ord, had a brilliant series. His throws, in order, were 197-7, 193-6½, 210-2½, 187-6½, 197-9½ and 199-8.

The meet was held at East Los Angeles JC.

Meet officials said the throw by the 21-year-old Army officer from Tremonton, Utah, would be submitted for international recognition. However, a survey of the discus area must be made.

The record throw was made with a discus presented to Silvester after the United States-Soviet track meet in Moscow this summer.

"Naturally, I'm very happy," Silvester said. "I didn't expect to throw that far at this time, although I have always felt that 210 feet was possible."

Only two other men have surpassed 200 feet, but the throws were illegal on each occasion.

Babka once threw 202 feet, but the discus landed in a ditch and could not be measured properly, while Olympic champion Al Oerter threw 205 in a near-cyclone.

AAWU Future: Expansion Or Breakup?

Expansion OR breakup of the AAWU, ironically, was the most significant point gained by writers who spent the last five days touring campuses of the five conference members.

"Ironically" is a most suitable word since the AAWU staged the junket in order to better acquaint newsmen with its universities. It was the first move by college football on the West Coast to combat the pros.

However, smack in the middle of the tour — at Stanford — the writers suddenly were bombed with the knowledge that the AAWU was engulfed with a family squabble that dwarfed the heralded skirmishes between the five Ram owners.

The conference is divided 3-2 right now on the matter of expansion. If the expansion problem is not resolved, this writer is certain the AAWU will explode into little pieces.

The 3-2 division is most interesting. Apparently SC, Stanford and Washington are united in favor of expansion to eight teams (Washington State, Oregon and Oregon State would be the additions). Cal and UCLA—undoubtedly still remembering the bitter days when the old PCC busted up—are strongly opposed to bringing in the three Northwest schools.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

One of Stanford's highest officials told the touring writers that "we'll pull Stanford out of the AAWU tomorrow if the league doesn't stop its fighting and settle the problem of expansion."

The official also said a five-team circuit was a "disgrace" and the AAWU actually could have been an eight-club conference from its inception "if one or two state universities had been big enough to overlook past petty grievances."

Stanford's surprising hatred of Cal and UCLA showed up all over the Palo Alto campus. School authorities, almost to a man, spat out the word "California" as if it was a dirty word.

Only solution to the AAWU problem is for the five university presidents to sit down and calmly try to reach an agreement. If expansion was agreed upon, it could not be effective until 1968 because some schedules are completed until that year.

I'M IN FAVOR OF EXPANSION because an eight-team league certainly is more exciting than one of five clubs. The argument that the three Northwest outsiders are too weak to compete with present AAWU teams holds no water because all three now seem stronger than Cal and Stanford, and equal to the Trojans.

The tour, headed by conference boss Tom Hamilton, was a dandy and something that the colleges should have done years ago to reacquaint sports writers with the schools. The pros took such a strong grip on the public that sports editors were forced to give more space to the Rams, Dodgers and Angels.

If the AAWU continues its realistic approach to one problem (the pros) and calmly resolves its other (expansion), it can't miss being the greatest college football league in the nation. (And I offer no apologies to the Big 10. For reference, please check the past two Rose Bowl scores.)

WILLIE BROWN DAY was staged at SC Friday — and it could not have come at a more opportune time. Whether he knew it or not, the Poly High graduate was being showcased for curious Seattle and San Francisco newsmen.

Willie had been a topic of discussion throughout our stops at Seattle, Berkeley and Palo Alto. Southern Californians had been too close to the SC picture to realize that the youngster from Long Beach had received sensational publicity up-and-down the coast.

Visiting writers were impressed with Willie during an interview period ("he sure showed me something with his poise and sharpness in the question-and-answer session," said one writer) and during a scrimmage (he ran 56 yards to score the first time he touched the ball).

The writers agreed Brown was the most exciting player they had seen on the tour, second honors going to Washington's Charlie Mitchell.

For a youngster yet to play in a varsity game, Willie Brown has done a magnificent job lassoing newspaper space usually reserved for Jon Arnett or two-year varsity letter-winners.

JIM OWENS' FOOTBALL DORM at Washington has caused considerable comment within other Big 5 institutions.

The other four schools are against Owens' practice of herding together his team for the entire football season because "this togetherness attitude is bad for a boy who should be mixing with fraternity mates, and girls, and engaging in other aspects of college life."

Yet, I didn't encounter one Husky who objected to this football regimentation. In fact, I think the players appreciate the lack of confusion which they'd encounter during usual campus life.

Owens' "togetherness" program boasts another item on the merit side: It produces winning football teams!

Darlene Meets Haydon in National Net Finals

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI)—Defending champion Darlene Hard, the belting blonde from Long Beach, Calif., and Aussie Roy Emerson reached the finals of the U. S. Amateur Tennis Championships Saturday while Gardnar Mulloy of Miami copped his third seniors crown.

The 25-year-old Miss Hard stormed the net to oust fifth-seeded Margaret Smith, two-time Australian champion, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Emerson, 24-year-old Australian champion, set up the fifth all-Aussie men's final in the last six years by beating unranked Rafael Osuna of Mexico in a 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 5-7, 9-7 marathon.

And Mulloy, the 48-year-old veteran who was a ranking player for 16 years, successfully defended the senior title with a 7-5, 6-1 triumph over Chauncey Steele, Jr., Cambridge, Mass., hotel owner.

Top-seeded Rod Laver, the southpaw Wimbledon champion, completed the all Australian men's final while England's seventh. Seeded Ann Haydon sprang an upset for the right to meet Miss Hard in today's women's windup. Laver took a service duel from England's fourth-ranked Mike Sangster, 13-11, 7-5, 6-4, while Miss Haydon knocked off her countrywoman, second seeded Wimbledon champion, Angela Mortimer, in a base line battle, 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Hard experienced difficulty with her fifth-seeded Australian rival. The 19-year-old Miss Smith, a tall, statuesque brunette who also is a part-time weightlifter, lost the opener on her own errors and took the second set by keeping Miss Hard away from the net. But in the deciding set, Miss Hard stepped up the pace and fought her way to the net for victory.

The final set was a weird one, with seven of the games going against service. Darlene three times lost her delivery without getting a point but she managed to hold twice. That was the determining factor.

The rangy, dark-haired Emerson found his task eased in the early stages by the fact that Osuna, the unseeded Mexican giant killer, beat himself in the first two sets with constantly-netted volleys.

The fourth set was a tense affair in which the 22-year-old Osuna, who has been tutored by pro king Pancho Gonzales, beat off three match points in the 10th game on Emerson's over-eager netted volleys. Fired by this break, the swarthy Osuna broke Emerson's service, again on the Aussie's netted volleys, and then held his own service to square the match at two sets each.

Osuna made a gallant try of it in the final set. He lost his opening service on a netted volley and a double fault but then broke back in the fifth game with two passing shots. They fought even until the 16th game when, with Emerson leading, 8-7, the Aussie finally cracked through with three blinding placements that gave him a love-40 lead. Osuna then netted a volley and it was all over.

EAGLES SELL REICHOW TO WASHINGTON

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles sold end-quarterback Jerry Reichow to the Washington Redskins Saturday.

The 'Skins are expected to use him in a trade with the Minnesota Vikings.

Reichow and the Eagles have been at odds over whether he should play end or quarterback, where he starred for the University of Iowa. Reichow, 27 years old and 6-2, 215 pounds, had the same problem with the Detroit Lions, resulting in his being traded to the Eagles last year. Both clubs used him at end.

Bobble by Face Nips Bucs

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — An error by reliefer Elroy Face and Joe Torre's single allowed the Milwaukee Braves to push two runs across in the eighth for a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

Trailing 3-2, Hank Aaron opened the inning with a double. He went to third on Frank Thomas' sacrifice bunt, which Face bobbled, permitting Thomas to go to second and Aaron to score. Torre then punched the ball into right field, scoring Thomas.

Don Nottebart, second Milwaukee pitcher, got the victory—his sixth of the year. Face, third Pittsburgh pitchern, was charged with his eighth loss.

Pittsburgh had gone ahead 3-1 in the sixth on Dick Stuart's 26th homer of the season with the bases empty. The Braves narrowed this to 3-2 in the seventh when starter Earl Francis walked Felix Mantilla, and Roy McMillan followed with a single.

Little Bobby Schantz came in to pitch and pinch batter Al Spangler singled to load the bases. Lee Maye forced Mantilla at home, but Eddie Mathews' sacrifice fly scored McMillan.

DAVIS CUP HOPES GROW DIMMER

Extend Ralston's Suspension

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI) — The U. S. Lawn Tennis Assn., claiming "50-1" popular support for the action, extended young Dennis Ralston's suspension for the rest of the year Saturday, dealing U. S. Davis Cup hopes a heavy blow.

Ralston, 19, of Bakersfield, Calif., is co-holder of the national doubles championship and had been counted on for doubles play in future Davis Cup series this year.

But the U. S. L. T. A. announced Saturday that its executive committee, in a meeting that ended "last midnight," decided to maintain for the rest of 1961 the suspension handed Ralston on Aug. 29 for profanity and racquet-banging in the U. S.-Mexico Davis Cup series in Cleveland.

George Barnes, president of the U.S. L.T.A., said the decision was "virtually unanimous" with "only two" members of the executive committee dissenting.

In Bakersfield, Ralston said he will keep practicing and will "return to play after the suspension." He added, "I've still got hopes of a big win for a springboard into the pro ranks."

Barnes said the U.S.L.T.A. had received "hundreds" of letters from private citizens on the Ralston case and that "public reaction was 50 to 1 against Ralston."

"He sent us a very nice letter of apology, promising never to be a bad boy again," said Barnes. "But it was the same kind of letter we received when he was placed on probation last February."

Barnes was referring to a probation imposed on Ralston because of his behavior during the U. S.-Australian Davis challenge round last December in Australia.

Saturday's action was seen in some quarters as the final, perhaps fatal, blow to a U. S. Davis Cup team already rated by non-playing captain Dave Freed as "our worst in many years."

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Bud Zipfel drove in four runs with two triples to help the Washington Senators snap a 10-game losing streak by defeating the Baltimore Orioles, 6-2, Saturday night.

The Senators' victory, only their second in their last 26 games, also halted the Orioles' winning streak at seven.

Bennie Daniels went all the way for his ninth win against 10 losses, scattering seven hits.

BENNIE DANIELS
Picks Up Ninth Win

Eight-Game Tiger Streak Halted, 3-1

BOSTON (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers snapped an eight-game losing streak Saturday by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 3-1, at Fenway Park.

Although Detroit led most of the way it took a sterling relief performance by Terry Fox, who came in for Ron Kline in the eighth, and a diving catch by rookie shortstop Dick McAuliffe to save the game for the fading Tigers.

Kline, who had retired 14 men in a row, was replaced when he allowed a walk and a single in the eighth. Fox managed to pitch his way out of that jam.

But in the ninth, Carl Yastrzemski opened with a double for the Red Sox and Frank Malzone smashed a liner between shortstop McAuliffe and second base. The rookie lunged and made a fine catch to erase Yastrzemski. Jackie Jensen then walked, Pete Runnels flied to center but Pumpsie Green grounded to second to end the game.

Losing pitcher was Ike Delock, who hasn't been able to win since Aug. 2. The Tigers drove Delock out of the box in the fourth and Bill Muffett replaced him.

Demeter's Three-Run Poke Paces Phil Win

CHICAGO (AP)—Don Demeter's three-run homer in the sixth inning helped power the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs and freshman left-hander Jackie Curtis Saturday.

DEMETER

It was Demeter's 17th homer of the season and fifth off Chicago pitching. Curtis, a 10-game winner who suffered his 11th loss, has served three of these home run pitches.

Jim Owens turned his 14th start into a fourth victory as he went nine innings for the second time this season. He limited the Cubs to five hits. Owens has lost nine.

After two singles and catcher Clay Dalrymple's sacrifice fly triggered the first Philly run in the fifth, Ken Walters stroked a leadoff double and took third on Charlie Smith's single ahead of Demeter's drive into the left field bleachers.

OLD PCC CLUBS ON SC GRID SCHEDULE

The University of Southern California announced Saturday it will play Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State in seven football games between 1965 and 1968.

The announcement immediately triggered speculation about whether the old Pacific Coast Conference might make a comeback. But Trojan officials said the scheduling merely indicates they are again on friendly terms with these schools.

The Trojans' 1967 schedule will include games with every member of the old PCC except Idaho — which SC did not play even within the PCC.

Games were booked with Oregon State each year from 1965 to 1968. Oregon was booked for 1967 and 1968, and Washington State for 1967.

Though SC decried the small attendance these teams attracted when they used to play in Los Angeles, four of the seven games were booked for the Coliseum.

Trojan athletic director Jess Hill also announced a 1966 and 1968 home-and-home series with Miami of Florida.

Once Over Lightly

UCLA Early Choice, but Beware of Huskies

The nation's college football teams are poised for the opening of what most observers feel will be the most interesting and eventful season in many years.

Even the professionals are enthused about the '61 season because it promises to be a vintage year for talent . . . finest, in fact, in the past five or six years.

While the main action will not get under way until Sept 23, the season is ushered in Saturday with a lively TV offering featuring Miami University and Pittsburgh.

DAVE LEWIS
Four Losses for Troy

The season will be capped by eight major bowl games and, as usual, the bulk of these berths will be filled by teams from the Southeastern and Southwest Conferences. They captured seven of the 16 bids last season and could even better that figure this trip.

Following is a brief rundown of the various races as drawn from a consensus of pre-season picks published by magazines, wire services, etc., plus the early Minneapolis line, which is issued by the group which figures the weekly odds you see throughout the season:

AAWU (Big Five)—Consensus pick is UCLA, with SC next. Minneapolis line, though, warns that Washington will be tougher than generally rated. Minneapolis expects the Bruins to go through the conference schedule unbeaten, lose at least two outside games to spoil chances for national title; sees at least four losses for Trojans.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST—Their meeting in Nov. 25 finale will decide whether Oregon or Oregon State is the best in that area. Both have good chances for bid to one of secondary bowls. Oregon made it last year, losing to Penn State in the Liberty Bowl. Oregon State opens against Syracuse, then has smoother sailing. Oregon's big stumbling blocks are Ohio State and Minnesota.

BIG TEN—Iowa is consensus pick, with Minnesota a compromise second followed by Ohio State and Michigan State. Minneapolis line, however, figures Iowa-Ohio State game on Nov. 4 will decide title . . . and favors Ohio in that one. Although Michigan rated fifth behind above four, Illinois is listed as darkhorse.

EAST—Penn State and Syracuse picked 1-2 in this sector. Their game on Oct. 21 should decide Eastern supremacy. Pitt has solid team, but another "killer" schedule. Minneapolis warns this could be rough year for both Army and Navy. Concedes slight edge to Navy in their annual classic. Holy Cross figures to be best among the big independent Catholic colleges in East.

IVY LEAGUE—Yale slight favorite over Cornell and Princeton in consensus, but Minneapolis likes Princeton with Penn as the darkhorse.

BIG EIGHT—Kansas is slight consensus pick over Missouri with Oklahoma and Colorado just a notch back. Minneapolis sees strong comeback by Oklahoma.

SOUTHEASTERN — This powerful 12-team conference enters season with no less than seven contenders for bowl bids. Foremost of these are Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana State, which also should vie for national crown. Alabama is the early favorite. Other possibilities are Auburn, Florida, Tennessee and Georgia Tech. It figures to be a dog-eat-dog race.

ATLANTIC COAST—Consensus predicts free-for-all among North Carolina State, Duke, Clemson and Maryland, with NSC slight choice. Minneapolis, though, favors Duke . . . and also warns that the University of North Carolina could be the surprise team.

SOUTHWEST—Consensus pick is Texas . . . but observers are quick to point out that only five consensus choices in 27 years have gone on to win. Only one game separated the top four teams last year, and another dingdong battle is seen with Rice, Baylor and Arkansas challenging Texas. Any of the four could win it. Minneapolis, meanwhile, likes Texas to go through unbeaten and make strong bid for national title.

SKYLINE—Wyoming and Utah expected to fight it out with Wyoming slight favorite. Utah State tabbed for third.

INDEPENDENTS—Top two clubs in this category will be Miami and Notre Dame. Miami could easily qualify for bowl if can handle a schedule that includes Pitt, Penn State, Florida, Navy, Colorado, Northwestern, North Carolina. Marked improvement seen for Notre Dame. Winning season of 6-4, peerhaps even better, expected for Irish as their young talent matures!

BARNES' SQUAD LOOKS LOADED IN DRILL

Tab Bruins for Rose Bowl...Again

By JEROME HALL

Ballots are in and counted, and UCLA has been elected—again — the team most likely to go to the Rose Bowl.

The Bruins Saturday took their turn at scrimmage before the prying eyes of newsmen touring the Big Five practice camps and put on a show that left all in agreement that the know-it-alls were right in labeling UCLA the favorite in early polls.

For an hour and a half Saturday the Bruins traded wallops and smashes in the fifth and final display on the training-camp tour.

Whether the Uclans have one of the best teams in the country will be left to a 10-week muscle debate, but it is virtually certain that UCLA has the best third-string players in the country.

Head coach Bill Barnes poured an awesome quantity of quality into the drill and tailbacks Bobby Smith and Ezell Singleton along with wingback Kermit Alexander and fullback Almose Thompson were the standouts.

Smith scored two touchdowns (75-yard and 7-yard runs) and guided the first-stringers on three of the four touchdown drives.

The 30-man contingent of reporters from up and down the coast agreed UCLA put on the most impressive show. Barnes ran his first-stringers against the best competition on the squad, not scrubs as is so often the case.

"I didn't think we looked so good," Barnes commented. "We were pretty ragged. Our lack of speed was evident." Though the Bruin mentor said the team is far from ready to play its first game (Sept. 23 vs. Air Force Academy), he admitted the squad is not in need of more scrimmages and will not do any more heavy contact work.

No injuries were reported, though Barnes called a premature halt to the workout when several of the linemen got overenthusiastic and "started to hurt each other. We were running out of strong-side tackles," commented the coach who has six tackles who could make the starting unit on almost any team in the country.

The trouble spot with the Uclans this year is supposed to be passing, but the two best runners—tailbacks Bobby Smith and Singleton —, had perfect completion averages. Smith hit three-for-three, good for 31-yards, and Singleton completed two for 34 yards.

Thus, the sportswriters concluded a tour that discovered Cal's team is improved, Stanford probably is better and Washington is green but frightening. The verdict on SC is being withheld, though there is general agreement the Trojans are better.

All they have to do now is play the season.

Cowboys No Match for 49ers

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The San Francisco 49ers, mixing rookies with veterans and getting the most out of both, stunned the Dallas Cowboys 24-7 Saturday night in the final exhibition game for both National Football League clubs.

Veteran quarterback John Brodie and another old hand, fullback J. D. Smith, sparked the 49ers to two second-period touchdowns and a 14-0 halftime lead. In the third period, with rookie quarterback Bill Kilmer, ex-UCLA, at the helm, the San Francisco club tallied 10 more points—one touchdown coming on a 51-yard "Alley Oop" aerial from Kilmer to R. C. Owens.

Kilmer also brought the crowd of 22,130 at Hughes Stadium to its feet with a quick kick that traveled 73 yards and rolled dead on the Cowboys' 10-yard line.

The 49er victory gave the San Francisco club a 3-2 record for its exhibition slate while Dallas wound up its pre-league season at 2-3.

TEXANS HOST CHARGERS IN TV OPENER

DALLAS (AP) — The San Diego Chargers try to take a long stride toward repeating as Western Division champions of the American Football League today when they battle the Dallas Texans here.

The Texans, crippled and with an inferiority complex, must upset the Chargers or fall behind the eight-ball in their first league game. The Chargers beat Dallas, 31-10, in last Sunday's final exhibition game.

A crowd of 35,000 or more is expected in the Cotton Bowl. The game will be televised over KABC (7) at 12:30 p.m.

Lions Roll to 35-17 Triumph

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Detroit Lions exploded for 28 points in the third quarter on a pair of 60-yard pass interception returns, a recovered fumble and a nine-yard pass to defeat the Cleveland Browns 35-17 Saturday night.

With a 7-3 halftime lead built on a two-yard plunge by fullback Nick Pietrosante in the second quarter, the Lions began to roll in the first three minutes of the second half.

Veteran defensive back Gary Lowe made a one-handed pitchoff of a Milt Plum pass intended for Ray Renfro and scampered 60 yards to score. Five minutes later Dick LeBeau snatched another Plum aerial and also darted 60 yards to make it 20-3.

The Browns bounced back to cut the deficit to 21-10 when rookie halfback Tom Watkins rammed over from the five.

Earl Morrall passed 45 yards to Gail Cogdill to set up the first Lions touchdown and in the final seconds of the third quarter Wayne Walker picked up a Lennie Dawson fumble and rambled 30 yards for the Lions' final tally.

Plum hit rookie Crespino with a 23-yard score to end the scoring in the final quarter.

Stanford Regulars Wallop Subs, 21-0

PALO ALTO (AP)—The Stanford Blues, made up of first and second team members, defeated the Whites, a reserve outfit, 21-0 Saturday in a two-hour scrimmage game.

Quarterback Rod Sears completed three passes in four attempts and Jim Smith three out of five.

Unbeaten Eagles Rip Cards, 27-0

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen passed for a pair of touchdowns to halfback Tommy McDonald Saturday night as the Philadelphia Eagles walloped the St. Louis Cardinals, 27-0, and wrapped up an unbeaten National Football League exhibition season.

Jurgensen connected with McDonald on 22 and 16-yard scores after Ted Dean gave the Eagles a 6-0 second-period lead on a 54-yard scoring punt return.

Thereon Sapp plunged a yard for Philadelphia's final score, set up on a pass interception by Chuck Weber, a defensive linebacker.

The NFL champion Eagles, in winning their fifth pre-season game, demonstrated their usual stout defense, containing the Cards' running game and almost completely bottling up St. Louis passers Charlie Johnson and Sam Etcheverry. The Cards' deepest penetration to Philadelphia's 33 wound up with a pass interception.

Jurgensen directed the Eagles in the first half with second string quarterback King Hill taking over midway through the third period. Bobby Walston kicked three conversions.

Oilers Trample Oakland, 55-0

HOUSTON (UPI)—Old pro George Blanda threw three touchdown passes, kicked two field goals and six extra points Saturday night as the explosive Houston Oilers buried the Oakland Raiders, 55-0, in the American Football League season opener for both teams.

A disappointing crowd of 16,231, possibly held down because of the threat of Hurricane Carla, saw the Oilers smash the league scoring record as they tallied in every quarter.

Bennett Sparkles in 49er Grid Tilt

By AL LARSON

Curtis Bennett, who's going to give enemy defenses a severe case of the jitters before his career is over, stole the show in Long Beach State's full-dress intrasquad football game Saturday on the 49er field.

The brilliant 5-9 sophomore injected new life in the 49ers' attack with his running and passing exploits as he engineered the "Browns" to a whopping 14-12 upset over the first-team "Whites".

Trailing 6-0 in the second period, Bennett maneuvered the second club 55 yards, capping the drive with a ten-yard touchdown pass to Rex Burrell. Tom Turrill kicked the first of his two all-important conversions and the "Browns" led 7-6 at halftime.

Bennett sparked the underdog "Browns" to their payoff touchdown at the outset of the third quarter. After reeling off 20 yards on his favorite option play, Bennett turned the running over to Turrill, Don Briscoe and Jim White. The latter cracked the final six yards.

The "Whites" surged back to narrow the count when Dallas Moon shot 14 yards to figure in his second score of the day. Moon connected with Bob Heberer for the day's first tally from eight yards out. Both extra-point attempts failed.

Added experience for lettermen and better overall team speed were big factors in the happy state of affairs on the 49er campus. LBSC opens its season next Saturday at Stockton against University of Pacific.

TITANS GRAB OPENER, 21-20

BOSTON (AP)—New York quarterback Al Dorow engineered three lightning drives, passing for two touchdowns and scoring the other, as the Titans defeated Boston 21-20 Saturday night in an American Football League inaugural.

Dorow's 43-yard scoring aerial to Don Maynard at the start of the fourth period brought the New Yorkers from behind. But the decision was not secure until Boston's Gino Cappelletti missed a 32-yard field goal try three minutes before the finish.

Green Bay Air Attack Ruins Skins

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers, led by a dazzling aerial and ball-handling performance by quarterback Bart Starr, jumped off to a big lead, then coasted to a 31-24 exhibition victory Saturday night over the Washington Redskins.

Starr threw two touchdown passes and handed off for a third before retiring from the game midway in the third period with his team ahead, 31-7.

The Redskins, led by rookie quarterback Norman Snead who played last year at Wake Forest, made the score presentable with some fourth period heroics.

Halfback Tom Moore, former Vanderbilt star, ran back the second half kickoff 83 yards for the night's most exciting play.

The fourth period was all Washington as John Aveni, who kicked three conversions, booted a 37-yard field goal and then Snead hit halfback Dick James and end Tom Osborne for long touchdown pass plays.

Who's the Best? Iowa and Ohio State, Agree AP Experts; West Blanked

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iowa's Hawkeyes, lightning fast afoot, have been picked to succeed Minnesota as the 1961 national college football champion in the Associated Press annual pre-season poll of its board of regional experts.

But if the Hawkeyes should stumble, then the choice goes to Ohio State, whom the Hawks must meet Nov. 4.

Iowa and Ohio State were in a class all by themselves in the voting while Minnesota's Golden Gophers hardly drew a nod. The 1960 champions got only one vote for fourth, fifth and 10th places.

Coach Bear Bryant's Alabama team is considered to be third best, but only by the margin of two points over Texas' Southwest Conference Longhorns, with defensively-tough Louisiana State another point behind Texas.

The points were figured on the basis of 10 for first, 9 for second etc, on down to a single point for 10th place.

Iowa collected 400 points and Ohio State 360. The Hawkeyes received 22 votes for first place and Ohio State 15, One selector picked the Buc's as low as 10th, while Iowa was accorded nothing lower than No. 8.

Iowa has a new coach in Jerry Burns, who succeeded his boss, Forest Evashevski, when Evvy retired to the comforts of athletic director at Iowa.

* * * *

BURNS inherited the backfield of quarterback Wilburn Hollis, halfbacks Larry Ferguson and Sammie Harris and fullback Joe Williams that helped Iowa finish sixth in rushing offense last year with an average of 253.8 yards per game. He has 20 lettermen, including eight starters from last year's squad.

Woody Hayes also presents a top backfield to Ohio State. He has probably the country's best college fullback in Bob Ferguson, plus the usual hefty line.

Alabama is expected to fight it out with LSU and Ole Miss for the SEC title. Alabama doesn't play either team, but LSU and Miss have a date on Nov. 4.

Penn State and Syracuse are considered best in the East and try to prove it against each other Oct. 21. Ernie Davis, considered the best offensive football player in the country, leads the Orange, while Penn State is bolstered by a solid corps of returning veterans.

Kansas, with quarterback John Hadl who does everything but keep score, is rated the best in the Big Eight, while many figure sophomore-dominated Texas will have battle a solid Rice team in the Southwest.

* * * *

NOT A TEAM from the Pacific Coast cracked the top ten, although UCLA and Washington were close.

Here is how the board, representing each of the eight NCAA regions picked this year's top teams (first place votes in parentheses):

Iowa (22)	400
Ohio State (15)	360
Alabama (3)	209
Texas (1)	196
Louisiana State	195
Michigan State	168
Penn State (1)	164
Kansas (1)	163
Mississippi (2)	155
Syracuse	118

Other receiving votes included: Rice, Arkansas, UCLA, Washington, Baylor, Tennessee, Oregon State, Duke, Southern California, North Carolina State, Auburn, Purdue, Colorado, Minnesota, Maryland, Army, Notre Dame, Navy, Oregon, Missouri, Wisconsin, Clemson and Florida.

'TOO MANY FUMBLES'

LBCC Scrimmage Ragged

By BOB SHIBLEY

Although looking ragged around the edges, Long Beach City College's freshmen-laden gridiron gladiators held their own Saturday in a scrimmage against Glendale at Viking Field.

Both defending national champion Long Beach and the Vaqueros crossed the goal line once in the two-hour struggle, highlighted by rugged defensive play.

"At this point, I would have to rate our defensive unit as being farther advanced than the offense," commented Viking coach Jim Stangeland after the scrimmage. "The fumbles were too frequent by our backs, and that puzzles me somewhat."

No statistics were kept on the scrimmage, but it's a fact that Viking ballcarriers had the ball stolen from them on two successive plays. Once it even happened to Dee Andrews, who went over left tackle without the pigskin.

The Viking score came when Gary West and Terry Frank collaborated on a 25-yard pass play. Frank was a non-letter member of the Junior Rose Bowl team a year ago.

Stangeland was pleased with "the team as a whole. Rankin (Bud) and Garrison (Gary) looked good in the backfield. Several of the linemen turned in good jobs. I think we'll be pleased when we look at the films."

Andrews and Lonzo Irvin —the runners who will undoubtedly carry the major portion of the Vikes' ground game — were used only sparingly. "We know what they can do," said one of the Long Beach coaches.

Green Ticket Hits Jackpot

(Compiled from Wire Services)

Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Green Ticket, as unlucky a horse as any which has raced this year, finally scored his first stakes victory Saturday with a nose victory in the $141,635 World's Playground Stakes at Atlantic City.

The large field of 20 juvenile starters made this the richest race ever run at the seashore track.

Endymion, a supplementary entry, was second over the seven furlongs and Sunrise County, winner of the Seashore his last time out, was third.

Green Ticket, a bay son of Traffic Judge, had won three of his previous eight starts but had run into trouble when the big money was at stake. He was second to Sir Gaylord in the Great American, second to Ridan in the Arlington Futurity, second to Sunrise County in the Seashore and third in both the National Stallion and Sapling.

Green Ticket was clocked in 1:22 2/5 for the seven furlongs and returned $31.00, $13.60 and $9.20. Endymion paid $26.20 and $14.80 and Sunrise County paid $6.20.

* * * *

CHRISTOPHER T. Chenery's Cicada continued her belated drive for this year's juvenile filly honors by scoring her third straight stakes victory in the $98,390 Matron Stakes at Belmont Park.

Cicada, the favorite in the crowd of 33,407, ran as she pleased in the field of nine 2-year-olds, hitting the wire by three and one-half lengths over Jazz Queen. Pontivy was third.

Willie Shoemaker enjoyed a good ride aboard Cicada, and urged his mount over the six furlongs in 1:10 3/5. Cicada returned $4.70, $3.30 and $2.40. Jazz Queen, who has won just one of nine starts, paid $9.10 and $4.40, and Pontivy paid $3.10 to show.

* * * *

JUAN D'Agostino's Baal II, a hard-luck performer all year, regained his winning form to capture the $7,500 Hartford Handicap at Lincoln Downs.

Heavily-backed although he had won only one of 13 previous starts, Baal II negotiated the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:44 4/5 and returned $4.60, $3.20 and $2.40.

Francisco II finished second behind the popular Baal II, paying $7.80 and $3.80, and Rich Talk, an easy victor in his last three starts, could do no better than third, paying $2.60.

* * * *

AURELIUS, a 3-year-old owned by Mrs. Vera Lilley, with champion jockey Lester Piggott in the saddle, scored a thrilling three-quarter length victory in the St. Leger Stakes, the fifth and final of the season's classic horse races in England.

The colt beat Bounteous, owned by Mrs. Helen Leggett and ridden by Joe Sime. Third, another three-quarters of a length farther back, was the hot French favorite, Mrs. Suzy Volterra's Dicta Drake with Max Garcia in the saddle.

Jackpot to Uncertain Starter

By MAC McGUIRE

DEL MAR—Weldy, who nearly became a scratch in the morning, was the $87.20 winner of Del Mar's richest Futurity for 2-year-olds before a cheering crowd of 14,991 Saturday afternoon.

Because Weldy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner of Texas, had drawn the outside post position in the 15-horse field, trainer Frank Childs was on the verge of declaring the Pappa Fourway colt when he learned that Lujan had been withdrawn.

Thus Weldy became a starter, and with Ray York gunning him to the front at the break the Turner colorbearer was a length and one-half winner in the $105,890 Futurity, topping the record $90,090 in 1958 when Tomy Lee, also owned by Turner and trained by Childs, was victorious.

* * * *

SNAPPY KING was second in the six-furlong special, and another length and one-half behind him was the 6-5 favorite, Donut King. Indian Blood was fourth. The winner's time was 1:09 1/5.

The outcome of the fourteenth running of the Futurity will go into the record books as a real training feat by Childs, a 71-year-old veteran of the turf. Until Saturday Weldy had won only one race in his life, a maiden sprint at Del Mar. He was fourth to Rattle Dancer in the $100,000-added Hollywood Juvenile Championship, second to Donut King in the C.T.B.A. Sales Stakes and third to Bold Corporal in the Graduation Stakes here.

But Saturday Weldy was the kingpin of Del Mar's great juvenile classic, winning fame and glory for Childs and a $62,390 dividend for his owner.

* * * *

BECAUSE of five supplementals in the race at $5,000 per horse the pot was enriched by $25,000, which was divided between the first four horses over the line. Thus the second horse earned $16,250, third $13,750 and fourth $11,250. Nominators of the first, second and third horses also received awards of $1,000, $750 and $500, respectively.

Donut King was always in a challenging position, but he was unable to gain in the stretch run, and Snappy King held him safe.

The big payoff on Weldy broke the all-time return on a Futurity winner. The place and show prices were $27.20 and $9.20, respectively. Snappy King paid $9.20 and $5.00. Donut King $3.00.

'HERE'S HOW I DID IT'

Cleveland Crowned New City Junior Golf Champ

By BOB SHIBLEY

"When Kemp missed that putt on the 17th, I knew I had it won."

Speaking was 17-year-old Roger Cleveland, part-time Poly High quarterback, who had just defeated Kemp Richardson, 1-up, for the Long Beach Junior Golf championship at Recreation Park Saturday.

Cleveland was referring to the two-and-one-half foot putt that would have tied the match had Richardson holed it. As it turned out, however, both settled for par fours and Roger held his lead. Both golfers felt that this was the turning point.

"I was really worried when he (Richardson) was lining up," recalled Cleveland. "But when he missed the putt, I didn' feel any pressure at all."

* * * *

EVEN WHEN Richardson, son of California amateur champion John Richardson, hit his tee shot on the 143-yard 18th and final hole to within 15 feet of the pin, Cleveland retaliated with a poke that landed about 20 feet away. Roger's putt was within three feet of the pin, which meant Kemp had to sink his for a tie. He failed, overshooting by about four feet.

Richardson took his only lead of the day on the first hole, when he took a birdie three and Cleveland had a par. A bogey by Richardson and another Cleveland par tied the match. The two battled on even terms until the 10th when Cleveland took his 10th straight par and Kemp had a double bogey six. Richardson cut the score to the final margin when he won the 15th hole.

The champion shot a 36-38—74 on the par 72 course, including a string of 16 pars and two bogies. Richardson shot a 37-39—76, including four bogies, one birdie and 13 pars.

In the consolation bracket, Dick Mortenson defeated Jim Belikoff, 3-1, for the trophy.

For the victory, Cleveland received a year's free play at any Long Beach golf course and a $20 golf merchandise certificate. Richardson and Mortenson each won $15 certificates, while Belikoff and Alan Butt, winer of the medalists tournament Wednesday, were awarded $10 certificates.

G. Thomas' Slam Paces Angels Win the fifth and brought on Frank Baumann, the AL's ERA king last year.

* * * *

AFTER walking Lee Thomas to load the bases, Baumann struck out Earl Averill for the second out. But Thomas then tagged a fast ball far over the left centerfield wall to slam the door on Chicago's bid for its second straight win over the Angels.

It was the fourth slam by the Angels — three having been hit by the TNT duo, but the first at Wrigley. There have now been 216 four-baggers belted at homer haven, three short of the major league record.

ANGEL ANGLES: Bobby Rodgers made his first major league start Saturday night . . . he singled in the second inning after grounding out as a pinch-hitter Friday.

Del Rice will not make the road trip . . . he'll remain in Daniel Freeman Hospital for treatment of an inflamation of the stomach lining . . . Billy Moran will also remain at home.

With two more scoreless innings Friday night, Tom Morgan has lowered his ERA since June 20 to 1.28 . . . over a 24-game span, he's recorded four saves, and allowed just 31 hits and seven earned runs in 49⅓ innings.

Dean Chance, who joined the Angels Friday, made his last start at Dallas-Fort Worth a spectacular one . . . The 20-year old right-hander shut out Omaha, 6-0,

Fishin' Around

Either Row, Row —or Know

(Outdoors editor Donnell Culpepper is recovering from surgery. He will resume writing Fishin' Around on Thursday.)

By JEROME HALL

If you have a lot of desire to become a boatsman and a little bit of money for a downpayment, your best course might be to set sail for some boat-learning.

It takes some knowledge of the waterway whether your ambition is to buy a cruiser and head for the fishing grounds off Catalina or just cruise through the bay.

Never will you get a better offer of boating instructions than the one being extended by the U. S. Power Squadron right now.

Beginning Sept. 18 is a course of instruction in boating that can prepare you for—as the advertisements put it—"a new way of life."

The USPS every year holds boating classes throughout Southern California. This year they are to be conducted at 40 locations. Nine of these are in the Long Beach area.

"ANY ONE WHO is thinking about acquiring a boat should go to these instruction classes," said a spokesman for the USPS, "not to mention, of course, those boat owners who are not up on the rules of the water. It is amazing and alarming, contends the man from the power squadron, how many boat operators do not know the rules.

"Just drive around Alamitos Bay any Saturday or Sunday," he continued "to see why it's necessary that all boat operators know what they're doing." With boats multiplying faster than the world's troubles, it's the contention of those who know the problem that we're going to have an oversupply of caved-in hulls if a lot of people don't learn something about what they're doing in a hurry.

THE CLASSES in piloting, seamanship and general boating are held one night a week for a period of 13 weeks. They start at 7:30 and are without charge. The starting dates and sites for the Long Beach area:

Wilson High School, Sept. 18; Millikan High, Sept. 21. Anaheim—Chrysler Auditorium, 1111 No. Brookhurst, Tuesday; Newport Beach—Newport Harbor Y. C., Monday; Buena Park—Buena Park High School, Wednesday; Compton—Whaley Jr. High, Sept. 18; Downey—Warren High School, Tuesday; Redondo Beach—Redondo High, Tuesday; Torrance—South High School, Monday.

THOSE WHO thought the dry spell would flush the deer out into lower elevations making this a banner season were only half right. The current early coastal season is passing its halfway point and the "take" reported by the Dept. of Fish and Game is almost identical with last year. Total for the first five weeks was 15,202. The season closes Sept. 24.

The inland season opens Sept. 23 (until Nov. 5) with reports to the DFG indicating there is plenty of game.

JOTS AND DASHES—If you want to aid the California Wildlife Federation coffers get your tickets for Conservation Night at the Coliseum (Dodgers vs. Phillies Monday) before noon on Monday. Most of the larger sporting goods stores have them. Only tickets bought at the stores will aid the conservation cause. . . . Corbina fishing is at a high point right at our own back door. Try the Alamitos Bay peninsula—usually uncrowded. Seal Beach and Huntington Beach also good right now.

LATEST FRESH WATER fishing report: BIG BEAR LAKE—Still good trout fishing. Arrowhead, Gregory, Green Valley and Big Bear lakes recently stocked with catchable-size trout.

LAKE CACHUMA—All species reported fair to good, depending on angler's skill. Blue gill, in deeper water, reported hard to locate.

LAKE ISABELLA—Little if any trouble even for average angler to take catfish in evening hours. Red worms, blood or cut bait all work well. Blue gill large and plentiful. Bass are deep.

RAILROAD CANYON—Blue gill along shoreline, bass are deep, being taken on slow-action lures. LAKE MEAD—Bass and catfish reported good. LAKE MOJAVE—Large bass being taken. PALO VERDE—Catfish rated excellent. LAKE CASITAS—Bass and catfish are being taken by patient anglers.

STEELHEAD ARE beginning to hit at the mouth of the Klamath and on the river in the Wietchpec area. Conditions still mostly poor to fair throughout Redwood Empire. CLEAR LAKE—Good on catfish, crappie and bass, according to latest report from the Outing Bureau, Automobile Club of Southern California.

Jittery Dodgers Lose, 9-6

Fairly's bouncer through his leg, enabling the Dodgers to go into a 5-4 lead. Singles by Gilliam and Snider and a walk to Moon preceded McCovey's miscue and a sacrifice fly by Frank Howard brought home the lead run.

McCovey, unintentional as it was, also gave the Dodgers an earlier chance to reduce a 4-1 San Francisco edge.

Juan Marichal had contained the Dodgers to three hits, including John Roseboro's 17th homer, when McCovey's clumsy play forced Marichal out of the game and to the hospital.

McCOVEY picked up Snider's fourth-inning grounder behind first, lobbed a high throw to Marichal, who had to cross in front of Snider and was spiked on the left heel. Six stitches were required to close the wound, which may keep Marichal out of action for the remainder of the season.

Billy O'Dell rescued the wounded Marichal and was effective until McCovey converted Fairly's double play ball into three unearned runs.

McCovey did, however, contribute to the Giants' second straight victory with a 475-foot solo homer off Don Drysdale in the second inning. It was his 17th of the year, his third against Drysdale and the longest hit to right field at Candlestick Park, according to the press-box natives.

DRYSDALE, though he yielded nine of the Giants' 11 hits, remained on the scene, and in front, until Mays hit a two-run homer in the seventh. It was No. 36 for Mays, who also singled three times.

Moon's homer, giving the Dodgers a temporary reprieve in the eighth, was No. 16, his first since July 20 and only his third on the road.

The week-long series, which the Dodgers clinched by winning four straight at home, ends this afternoon with Sandy Koufax (12-10) or Stan Williams (15-10) facing Jack Sanford (10-8).

Ferraris Dominate Trial Runs

MONZA, Italy (AP) — Four powerful Ferrari racing cars—paced by Germany's Wolfgang Von Trips — Saturday swept the final official trial runs for today's Grand Prix of Italy formula one automobile race.

Von Trips, leading the world championship standings, won the pole position as he turned in a time of two minutes, 46.3 seconds around the 6.2-mile circuit. His speed at an average of 134.21 miles an hour, was the fastest in the two days of official trials.

A 19-year-old Mexican, Ricardo Rodriguez, was the big surprise of the trial runs, getting the second best time, 2:46.4, also in a Ferrari.

* * * *

TWO OTHER Ferrari drivers, both from the United States, followed — Richie Ginther of Los Angeles had a time of 2:46.8. Phil Hill of Santa Monica did one lap in 2:47.2.

Hill is second in the world championship standings. Von Trips now has 33 points. Hill has 29. Britain's Stirling Moss follows with 21.

Moss could do no better than 11th position in the time trials, with a time of 2:52.8. He is driving a Lotus.

The Italian Grand Prix is the next to last race counting for the world championships.

Ginther turned in his best time of 2:46.8 in Friday's trial.

Hill won the Monza race last year with an average speed of 131.77 miles an hour.

LUCERO HAS SAVVY, PUNCH

Fields Facing Toughest Test

By FRANK HARVEY

Jimmy Fields, considered the most promising young lightweight on the Pacific Coast, makes his second Long Beach appearance within a month when he faces Fidel Lucero, hard-hitting hombre from Torreon, Mexico at Municipal Auditorium Wednesday.

In his initial appearance here last month, Fields scored an impressive knockout over Andres Garcia in the seventh round of a free swinging battle.

Prior to the Garcia win Jimmy turned in an upset at the Olympic Auditorium when he outpointed highly-regarded Al Grant.

However, he is taking on the most experienced opponent of his career when he tackles Lucero.

* * * *

FIDEL HAS met most of the top 135 pounders below the border while engaging in 61 pro arguments, while Fields has been to the post only 19 times since entering the punch-for-pay business.

Lucero proved a willing puncher a few weeks ago at the Olympic Auditorium when he knocked out Al Noriega in the final TV main event staged at the Grand Avenue club.

The record shows that Lucero can be hit. A few months ago he was halted by Benny (The Bandit) Medina in Fresno in the eighth round of what has been decribed as a Pier 6 brawl.

In any event if figures as a rough test for Fields, who probably will enter the ring a 10-9 favorite.

* * * *

PROMOTER MAX Provisor is presenting four 4-round bouts on the supporting card, which features some of the Southland's most promising young fighters.

Mel Maomi, a Japanese flyweight from Hawaii, makes his debut here against Johnny Torrez from New Mexico.

Adrian (Tiger) Iberra, Gordon Shaw's lightweight from Torrance who has turned in two winning efforts at the Aud., takes on Johnny Quintela of Gardena.

Chauncey Williams and Ronnie Redelsperger, a pair of welterweight punchers, will step four rounds or less while Tommy Hutchins, a newcomer from Texas, collides with Lorenzo Thomas, Los Angeles middleweight.

Most of the fighters appearing on the card will drill at Sammy Aaronson's Morgan Hall gym starting at 1 p.m. today. The workouts are open to the public, with no admission charge.

Lifeguards Compete in Taplin Race

Long Beach lifeguards will demonstrate agility in the water in the second annual Taplin race at 5 p.m. today in front of the Pacific Coast Club at the foot of Alamitos Avenue.

Eight teams consisting of four men each will compete in the Taplin race: swimmers, paddleboard men and boat-crew members race as teams in relays over a 1,000-yard course.

Awards will be presented winners by Pat Keller McCormick, former Olympic diving champion, and Dean O'Hare, president of the Long Beach Century Club.

The PCC and Los Angeles Athletic Club co-sponsor the event.

Hoover Accuses Russ of Lying About U.S. Relief

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

HERBERT HOOVER

NEW YORK—Former President Herbert Hoover accuses today's Soviet leaders of cynical lying about the massive U. S. effort hailed by the Kremlin 38 years ago as the salvation of 20 million Russians from death by starvation.

The Soviet Union, said Kremlin leaders in 1923, "will never forget" the work of Hoover's American Relief Administration in saving "millions of people of all ages" from one of history's most terrible famines.

* * * *

TODAY'S Soviet leaders not only choose to forget, but have so distorted events of the time that they depict the man who saved those millions as a conniving capitalist—even a murderer.

Hoover's dramatic story of how American generosity saved millions in the Soviet Union, and how U. S. efforts saved other millions in devastated countries around the globe after World War I, is told in Volume III of "An American Epic," (Henry Regnery Co., Chicago, $6.50) which appears in bookstores Monday.

This is the detailed history of the battle against starvation undertaken by the American people at the end of World War I.

* * * *

HOOVER was in the thick of it all, first under President Wilson, then under President Harding. He accuses present-day Soviet leaders, including Premier Khrushchev's right-hand man Frol R. Kozlov, of deliberate lying.

Hoover, now 87, has set down a parade of staggering statistics which leap to life with dramatic force as he tells of the struggle against starvation in 45 nations four decades ago. His account of what went on in hungry, strife-wracked Russia is a study in American persistence and Communist cynicism.

He became head of the ARA, which successfully battled famine in nation after nation. But in Russia, in the grip of civil war after the Soviet Communist seizure of power, death and pestilence stalked the land.

"The conscience of myself and my loyal colleagues in the Relief Administration told us that we had to do the best we could where 20 million people were about to die," he writes.

* * * *

"OUR BEST estimate was that relief was given to about 14 million adults," Hoover writes. "Adding the children, the total number of individuals who at one time or another were furnished the necessary margins to preserve life was estimated at more than 20 million."

Despite the massive effort, ARA was harassed by Kremlin agents, who interfered with relief work to such an extent that the Americans threatened to call it all off. Even in the United States there was harassment from Communists.

But the job was done. By June, 1923, a good Russian crop had come in. The Soviet government was effusive in its public praise of Hoover and his organization.

The communist leaders echoed the theme over and over. But, writes Hoover, "The Communists soon began to realize that an expression of gratitude to a free nation was a violation of the primary tenets of Communism."

Hoover quotes a U. S. observer as describing an article in the official 1956 Soviet Encyclopedia as one which "converts Hoover into the murderer of millions of Russians instead of the savior of millions from starvation."

Homeowners Seen Biased on Race Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Negro in California has a tough time trying to find housing in white areas due to prejudiced homeowners, supported by "a considerable number of leaders in the real estate industry," said a survey report released Saturday.

Orientals and Mexicans have less trouble, it added.

* * * *

BUT THE REPORT, by a California advisory committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, also found "surprising unwillingness of many Negro families to move away from all-Negro neighborhoods on those infrequent occasions when they have the opportunity to do so."

The findings, obtained by two subcommittees headed by prominent church ministers, listed as other basic reasons for the situation:

"The apparent unwillingness of many Caucasian homeowners and tenants to live in proximity to Negro families:

"The definite and marked unwillingness of real estate brokers to negotiate the sale of homes located in non-Negro neighborhoods to Negro families.

* * * *

"THE PATTERN of reluctance in builders to sell new subdivision homes to Negroes.

"The hesitancy of savings and loans groups, as well as other lending organizations, to finance Negro homes purchased outside segregated areas.

"The pronounced unwillingness of Caucasian owners to rent to Negro families."

The report said most of California's more than 880,000 Negroes live in "great urban ghettos" near the biggest cities. In Los Angeles and San Francisco, some Negroes in middle-income brackets do have houses "comparable to other groups of similar status" but such housing still is "somewhat segregated in its scope and location."

* * * *

THE SURVEY mentioned that hearings in Los Angeles and San Diego determined no Negro members were on realty boards there. It said charges even were voiced that Negroes were excluded "solely on the basis of their race."

The subcommittee which conducted hearings in Northern California was headed by the Right Rev. James A. Pike, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California.

Oakland Auto Men Walk Out

OAKLAND (AP) — Charging a speedup and harsh disciplinary measures, 150 members of Local 1031, United Auto Workers, walked off the job at the Chevrolet assembly plant Saturday.

A union spokesman said the walkout was unauthorized.

The union has set a 10 a.m. Monday strike deadline in Detroit negotiations for workers in 129 General Motors plants in the nation.

* * * *

THERE WAS no picketing or demonstrations at the plant here. The Fisher Body plant, adjacent to the assembly plant, was not affected.

The walkout here apparently was in protest against long overtime hours and disciplinary action against those failing to appear on the job, the union spokesman said. The plant has been working at top capacity on 1962 models to ready as many as possible before the Monday strike deadline.

Meanwhile bargaining continues at the local level on working conditions. The body and assembly plants employ 1,450 workers but most of them ordinarily are off on week ends.

JFK's Start Likened to FDR's

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg said Saturday the Kennedy administration's record of legislation for the "welfare of the people" is one which "compares favorably to the first 100 days of the Roosevelt administration."

Goldberg, in a speech at the Lucas County Democratic ox roast, said all the measures of the Kennedy administration have a common purpose.

"They are not anti-labor, they are not anti-business. They are in the interest of the people as a whole," he said.

"Since January the Democratic administration has made the greatest record of constructive achievement and enlightened legislation in our recent history," he said. The record "is in keeping with the progressive tradition" of President Roosevelt's first 100 days in office, he added.

Goldberg said President Kennedy planned to continue his fight for "a United States that is stronger and more prosperous and more humane in its economic and social life."

He said the fight to pass federal aid to education is over for this session of congress, but the administration will revive it next session.

"Medical care for the aged is another major legislative proposal we will ask Congress to consider again next session," he said.

All New Army Vehicles to Get Anti-Smog Devices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will require all vehicles it buys commercially to be equipped with devices to control crankcase fumes, Sen. Maurine B. Neuberger said Saturday.

She said she was advised of the decision in a letter from A. Tyler Port, acting assistant secretary of the Army.

Mrs. Neuberger called the decision "a real victory for all of us who wish to curb air pollution." The devices are designed to control fumes released into the amosphere.

She had asked Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to require the devices as standard equipment on all gas-propelled department of defense vehicles.

The Army's decision will affect passenger cars, station wagons and light trucks, among other vehicles. Vehicles of which the Army controls the design have been equipped with such devices for some time, Port said.

The General Services Administration recently adopted a similar policy of requiring exhaust control devices on the approximately 10,000 vehicles it procures for government agencies, Mrs. Neuberger said.

Real Estate and BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Sears Store to Roll Out Red Carpet for 75th Anniversary

By KEN CHILCOTE
I-P-T Business Editor

Celebrating 75 years of continued growth of the company, the Long Beach store of Sears, Roebuck and Co., will roll out the red carpet Wednesday to welcome visitors. The special red carpet will run from the entrance across the sidewalk and will remain there the rest of the month, during the anniversary celebration.

Progress of the company, from the time that Richard Sears, a telegrapher and station agent in North Redwood Falls, Minn., started selling watches by mail to other railroad men, through the present day has been sparked by leaders who looked well ahead, planned for the future and made retail selling history.

* * * *

IN THAT SAME SPIRIT of progress, Charles W. Teed, manager of the big Long Beach store at Fifth and Long Beach Blvd., announced several store improvements are under way and a major development is planned for the near future. The September 75th anniversary of Sears has a double celebration here for the Long Beach store is 33 years old this month.

Among new projects to be launched at once is moving of the service station from Fifth and Elm Ave., to Long Beach Blvd. A huge new super service station with frontage on Long Beach Blvd. of three-fourths of a block, will be completed by next June, Teed said. Meanwhile, the old station is being removed and will operate temporarily from the former Severins Motors building at 630 Long Beach Blvd. With the removal of the station parking for 50 more cars will be made available in the lot east of the store.

Considerable redecorating has been done inside the store and more work is planned.

* * * *

CHARLES H. KELLSTADT, dynamic former president and

CHARLES W. TEED
Tells of Local Expansion

now chairman of the board of Sears is expected to visit the Long Beach store during the celebration, possibly next Wednesday, to review improvements made since his last visit and to check on further expansion.

Teed said that during the celebration all departments will offer special attractive bargains. Clerks and other store employes will be dressed in costume of the Gay 90's, he added.

Development and growth of Sears has been an outstanding chapter in retailing in the United States.

After young Dick Sears purchased an unwanted shipment of watches and began selling them to other station agents, he decided to form the R. W. Sears Watch Co., in 1886. But as business grew so did his problems. When some of the datches didn't work the customers wanted them repaired. He hired a young watchmaker, Alvah C. Roebuck and thus began their association.

They launched into mail order business to provide farmers with flour and other staples at a moderate cost. Use of post offices, rural free delivery and parcel post permitted Sears to offer the farmers an alternative to high-priced rural stores.

* * * *

IN THE 1890's Chicago was booming as a rail center so they moved the Sears operation to take advantage of superior transportation.

By 1895 the new firm had grown until it had a 500-page catalog that listed many items other than watches, which the first catalogs contained. By then they were offering shoes, women's garments, millinery, wagons, fishing tackle, stoves, furniture, firearms, buggies and glassware.

In 1893 sales topped $400,000 and they exceeded $750,000 in 1895. Business continued to gain so fast that in 1906 they opened a new Chicago building which was the largest business building in the world at that time. Today it still is one of the largest business buildings with well over three million square feet.

* * * *

AS THE MAIL ORDER business grew, Richard Sears was looking ahead and established a branch house in Dallas and when it opened in 1912 the firm head said 10 or more units probably would be needed to properly cover the United States. Today 11 such plants operate.

As cities grew Sears began looking toward establishing retail stores and by 1928 they had 192 stores, 324 in 1929 and when war broke out in 1941 more than 600 were in operation.

Robert E. Wood, who became Sears president in 1928 and board chairman in 1939 placed his faith in the retail stores and after the war began opening huge retail centers.

Today Sears is a vast organization that does business all over the United States and has many overseas outlets.

The company still does mail order business but the stores today account each year for about 77 per cent of the total sales of $4 billion dollars.

Over 33,000 Appliances Needed in Leisure World

Over 33,000 appliances and other heating and electrical devices will be used by Rossmoor Leisure World in building the nation's largest senior citizen housing project at nearby Seal Beach.

Signing a contract involving the electrical equipment were William C. Brangham, general sales manager for the Leisure World project, William C. Frogue, Southern California district manager for General Electric's major appliances, and Art Hansen, contract sales for GE.

* * * *

EACH ONE AND two bedroom apartment in the planned 6,750 unit project will have deluxe built-in range and oven, refrigerator, continuous feed dispusal, water heater, radiant ceiling heat, and wiring devices. Central laundry rooms for each section of apartments will have a washer and dryer for every 12 units.

Southern California Edison and General Electric companies contributed to electrical design aspects of the $150 million "senior citizen city." It will be the first community to include medical care and drugs, short of hospitalization, as part of monthly payments for the cooperative apartments. Electrical installation is being performed by Rossmoor Electric Co. under the direction of Jack Singler and Arch Prouty.

Remarks on Negro Home Loans May Block New Cabinet Post

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a man in a delicate position Housing Administrator Robert C. Weaver made some unusually direct remarks the other day.

Weaver is a Negro. As head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency he holds the highest position ever attained in federal service by a Negro. He is widely considered the odds-on favorite to be secretary of the proposed Department of Urban Affairs and Housing—if and when it comes into being. That would make him the first Negro cabinet member in the nation's history.

The possibility of his appointment as secretary does not sit well with some Southern members of Congress. (Nor did President Kennedy's appointment of Weaver to the administrator's job — although chiefly because it was seen as a harbinger of the cabinet nomination.) For this reason Congress may not pass legislation creating the department.

IT IS AGAINST this background that Weaver's remarks to the National Insurance Association, a Negro group, sounded unusually outspoken.

Weaver told the association, in convention here, that its members have a special responsibility to make home loans to Negroes "who want to buy property in predominantly white areas."

Such buyers, Weaver said, have difficulty getting financing from white lenders who would make it available for purchases in "all-Negro or bi-racial neighborhoods."

Weaver carefully confined his remarks to what the private insurance companies managed by Negroes could do to help colored people secure good housing. He did not go into what the government could or should do — a far more politically sensitive topic.

* * * *

THE $300 MILLION of assets controlled by members of the association, Weaver said, is small in comparison to the $120 billion of assets of all life insurance companies. "But it is of great strategic importance in exerting the economic influence of the Negro community," he asserted.

"Negro businessmen must meet competition on an economic basis," Weaver continued, "and have no right to claim special consideration from Negroes. At the same time, the strongest inducement they have to offer Negro customers is the willingness to give special consideration to their problems."

He then went on to say that the bulk of Negroes' demand for home loans must be satisfied "with the resources under the control of institutions in which both whites and Negroes have invested." Negro-controlled groups alone lack the capital to do the whole job, he said.

* * * *

BUT THE LATTER owe "special consideration" to "marginal cases" — the Negro buying in a white neighborhood — "where credit would not normally be available from other institutions," Weaver concluded.

The substance of his views itself was hardly surprising. Weaver is a former board chairman of the National Association of the Advancement for Colored People. In Senate confirmation hearings he made it plain that he believed in trying to advance the cause of equal opportunity for Negroes. He also said that as administrator he would be responsive to the policies of the President and Congress.

Outstanding Speakers Booked for State Realtor Convention

Plans are nearing completion for the 57th annual convention of the 34,500-member California Real Estate Association to be held in Los Angeles, with headquarters at the Biltmore Hotel, Oct. 1-5, according to Kenneth H. Smitten of San Francisco, president.

J. Roger Deas, an executive of the American Can Co. in New York City, will be the keynote speaker at the five-day meeting which will be attended by more than 5,000 members of the 169 real estate boards in the state. In traveling over a half-million miles and addressing over 2,000 audiences, Deas has met informally with government, business, farm and community leaders and will report their opinions and attitudes on today's events and tomorrow's prospects.

* * * *

A LARGE DELEGATION from the Long Beach-Lakewood area is planning to attend the convention, according to Gene Nebeker, Long Beach Board president. Reservations have already been received from 60 members of the Long Beach Board.

Edward M. Loftus of Los Angeles, general convention chairman, announced that the convention's general sessions will be held in the Philharmonic Auditorium to accommodate the large attendance. Other sessions will be held in the Biltmore and Statler Hilton Hotels.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown has accepted a speaking engagement at the convention according to Chairman Loftus.

Donald G. Crandall of Los Angeles, program chairman, announced that Clarence Manion of South Bend, Ind., will address a general session of the convention on the subject of "Americanism."

The senior vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Hall L. Hibbard, will speak on "Your Stake in Space," said Crandall.

* * * *

ANOTHER SPACE age subject to be discussed at the convention is "Communicating by Satellites" which will be discussed and illustrated with electronic equipment and multiple television sets by Frank C. Lord, general commercial manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Another speaker will be Maurice Stans, president of the Western Bancorporation, the holding company which has controlling interest in 24 banks located in 11 western states.

Convention Chairman Loftus said that one of the convention's most popular speakers each year, James C. Downs Jr., of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Real Estate Research Corporation, will again speak at a general session on "The Real Estate Outlook." The reason for Down's continued popularity at the convention is his uncanny, accurate predictions of future trends in the real estate business.

Another speaker scheduled to address the convention is Harold K. Kennedy, Los Angeles County Counsel, who will address the CREA Appraisal Luncheon on the subject, "Wake the Town and Tell the People."

Sol Vista Opens New Unit of Luxury Homes

Al Solomon, president of the Alco-Pacific Construction Co., developers of Sol Vista Luxury Series Homes, announced the grand opening of Unit 20, another new luxury subdivision in Huntington Beach.

The Sol Vista Luxury Series is one of the fastest selling developments in the Southland, and Solomon attributed this fact to the increase of the electronics industry in this area. Further, he continued, this is the type of area that is conducive to enjoyable living and a better life for children.

The homes are located near several golf courses, shopping areas, churches, elementary and high schools, and in particular the higher educational institutes which include Long Beach State College, Orange Coast College and Orange State College. They are also near the beaches, swimming, surfing and fishing.

* * * *

SOL VISTA features the Medallion "all electric kitchens." They include the Frigidaire range and oven, and the Frigidaire dishwasher. Also included is color coordinated range hood and light with electric fan, whirlaway disposals and ash cabinets which are easy to reach.

Another feature is the hardwood floors of oak with two-inch tongue and groove sub-flooring on "raised" foundations. Also included is rock wool insulation by Johns-Manville, acoustical ceilings, Armstrong Excelon tile, American Standard Plumbing and forced-air heating with thermostat control.

The living rooms feature dramatic floor-to-ceiling wood-burning fireplace of stone or brick with gas log lighter included. The bathrooms have convenient pullmans, colored fixtures and stall showers with safety glass doors in the master bedroom bath. Most plans include a beautiful dressing table with mirror.

* * * *

THE HOMES are priced from $17,800 with no money down on VA terms (except costs and impounds). FHA with minimum down payment, Cal-Vet and conventional loans are also available.

The model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and only until 6 p.m. Saturday. For convenience there is a hostess available in each model home to answer preliminary questions. The sale program is directed by C. "Faye" Stites, president of the C. LaFaye Co., Inc.

Sol Vista is located on Hwy. 39 (Beach Blvd.) 3 miles south of Garden Grove Blvd. From Long Beach, go out Carson or Garden Grove Blvd. to Hwy. 39 and turn right to models. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway to the Artesia turnoff, follow Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39) south to models.

High Type Construction Stressed in Bolsa Park

OFFERED IN BOLSA PARK
This is one of the models now shown in Bolsa Park. They are priced from $19,250.

Bolsa Park is one of the few subdivisions in Huntington Beach area offering genuine lath and plaster construction, said builder Roger C. Werbel. It is highly unusual to find this quality feature so near the ocean, Werbel said. Situated on Bolsa Chica Road at Bolsa Ave. in Huntington Beach, the new homes are within an easy three minutes' drive of Surfside.

Bolsa Park's unusual quality construction has helped raise sales volume to more than a half million dollars in the first few weeks of sales, Werbel said.

* * * *

OFFERED WITH three or four bedrooms, two full baths, and a family-dining room, the Bolsa Park homes are situated on pool-sized lots with ample room for outdoor living. Pricing is from $19,250, with VA no-down payment terms, 35-year FHA financing with 5¼% interest, and 6% conventional financing. Titles are insured by Title Insurance Co.

Four new Bolsa Park plans feature custom entry and loggia areas. These give access to all rooms, cutting wear-and-tear on living areas to a minimum.

Quality features of the house include: Shake, cedar shingle, or rock roofs; floor-to-ceiling fireplaces of brick or Palos Verdes stone; custom vinyl floors in entry; ceramic tile breakfast bar; ash kitchen cabinets with raised panels; O'Keefe & Merritt gas range and double-window oven with rotisserie; custom range hood with recessed light and fan, and dishwasher.

From Long Beach, the homes may be visited via 7th Street (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) east to Bolsa Chica, turning right and continuing south to models.

Hunsaker Sales Up

For more than two decades, S. V. Hunsaker & Sons have proved their formula for success is a sound one — simply to build better homes for less money and offer the buyer a good home with favorable financing arrangements.

Sunshine Homes are priced from $15,595 to $17,995 in various locations throughout Southern California and are now available in Camarillo, La Puente, San Fernando Valley, Santa Ana, Ventura and West Covina with terms as low as $195 down. Opening Is Today for Sunkist Plaza

Developers of Sunkist Plaza Homes will have the official grand opening today of their new "planned community" in Huntington Beach. The first phase of the proposed 2200-unit development consists of more than 100 contemporary designed homes.

According to Sy Bram, general manager: "Huntington Beach is the fastest growing area along the south coast. Our contribution to this growth is our offering value to the discriminating home buyer."

BRAM REPORTS that the community concept insures the buyer that every convenience and service is furnished. New shopping centers and schools, expanding local employment and recreational facilities are particularly suited to meet the needs of the growing family.

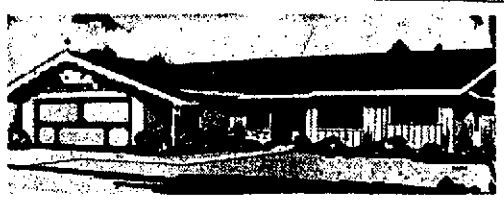

Sunkist Plaza Homes offer four floor plans with 25 exterior elevations. Combinations of three and four bedrooms plus family room and two baths provide flexibility of selection catering to individual taste.

SPECIAL FEATURES include gas range and oven, range hood and light with electric fan, disposal, forced air heat, slump stone or brick fireplaces, hidden TV antenna and other quality features.

Prices start at $17,450, with no down to veterans. Liberal FHA and Cal-Vet terms also are available. Monthly payments start at $96.28.

The development can be reached by driving the Santa Ana Freeway to Beach Boulevard, right on Beach to Smeltzer, right on Smeltzer to models.

Outstanding Speakers Booked for State Realtor Convention

Plans are nearing completion for the 57th annual convention of the 34,500-member California Real Estate Association to be held in Los Angeles, with headquarters at the Biltmore Hotel, Oct. 1-5, according to Kenneth H. Smitten of San Francisco, president.

J. Roger Deas, an executive of the American Can Co. in New York City, will be the keynote speaker at the five-day meeting which will be attended by more than 5,000 members of the 169 real estate boards in the state. In traveling over a half-million miles and addressing over 2,000 audiences, Deas has met informally with government, business, farm and community leaders and will report their opinions and attitudes on today's events and tomorrow's prospects.

* * * *

A LARGE DELEGATION from the Long Beach-Lakewood area is planning to attend the convention, according to Gene Nebeker, Long Beach Board president. Reservations have already been received from 60 members of the Long Beach Board.

Edward M. Loftus of Los Angeles, general convention chairman, announced that the convention's general sessions will be held in the Philharmonic Auditorium to accommodate the large attendance. Other sessions will be held in the Biltmore and Statler Hilton Hotels.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown has accepted a speaking engagement at the convention according to Chairman Loftus.

Donald G. Crandall of Los Angeles, program chairman, announced that Clarence Manion of South Bend, Ind., will address a general session of the convention on the subject of "Americanism."

The senior vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Hall L. Hibbard, will speak on "Your Stake in Space," said Crandall.

* * * *

ANOTHER SPACE age subject to be discussed at the convention is "Communicating by Satellites" which will be discussed and illustrated with electronic equipment and multiple television sets by Frank C. Lord, general commercial manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Another speaker will be Maurice Stans, president of the Western Bancorporation, the holding company which has controlling interest in 24 banks located in 11 western states.

Convention Chairman Loftus said that one of the convention's most popular speakers each year, James C. Downs Jr., of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Real Estate Research Corporation, will again speak at a general session on "The Real Estate Outlook." The reason for Down's continued popularity at the convention is his uncanny, accurate predictions of future trends in the real estate business.

Another speaker scheduled to address the convention is Harold K. Kennedy, Los Angeles County Counsel, who will address the CREA Appraisal Luncheon on the subject, "Wake the Town and Tell the People."

At a recent meeting of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, the annual "Home Town Speech" contest was conducted. The winner was Mrs. Winnie Cross, who is thoroughly convinced that Long Beach is "Paradise". Mrs. Cross will compete on a state level at the annual CREA convention.

Here is her speech:

"I shall give you only five of the innumerable reasons why so many of us like to live in my home town — Long Beach. Sit with me at my window pane, and let's look and listen.

* * * *

NO. 1 IS CLIMATE — a combination of the three S's (sun, surf and sand). This is the formula for the delightful playground of the Pacific in glorious sunswept Long Beach.

Long Beach is a summer and winter resort, this millions of tourists will agree. Since the climate is semi-tropical and the temperature varies approximately 30 degrees between summer and winter, the same type of clothing can be worn throughout the year.

* * * *

NO. 2 IS HEALTH — the cool, clean smell of the ocean gives one a sense of well-being . . . I like to look through my windowpane and see the rosy cheeks of the young and old as they romp in the sun and sand. Doctors need a side line to live in my Home Town.

* * * *

NO. 3 IS WEALTH — the payroll of the Navy shipyards is two million a month. A year's pay is literally a stream of gold. Can't you see what this monetary value is to a city?

Our harbor, one of America's most modern ports, is debt free, and the most accessible in the nation. Foreign boats to any country may reach the open sea in 15 minutes. Our enterprising people dug deep in the rich earth bringing forth a black liquid gold which picks up the tab for many of our finest improvements.

* * * *

NO. 4 IS ENTERTAINMENT. Are you still looking through my windowpane, and have you made the drive around beautiful Rainbow Pier with its colored lights playing on the water for a reflection on you? It's positively hypnotizing . . . Encircled in this pier is our new six million dollar Auditorium Annex. It is so constructed as to house anything from ice hockey to an indoor circus.

The setting is a perfect background for the world's most spectacular parade — "International Beauty Congress." This year 52 foreign countries sent 52 beauties to promote peace and good will.

Few cities have the facilities for handling such an ambitious undertaking, but Long Beach hosts 150 conventions a year and is accustomed to welcoming large crowds.

Do not overlook our amusement zone, better known as NuPike. Through this colorful zone is a broad thoroughfare, bizarre with its gaity and thrill-packed rides. It is a riot of color and sounds.

* * * *

NO. 5 IS PEOPLE. And above all, this is more important than our climate, health, wealth and entertainment. People are the greatest resource on earth and ours are among the very best.

One of the largest transactions of its kind ever to be consummated in the U. S. was when nine and one-half million dollars was paid for land on which to build homes for our people . . . all homes were filled long ago.

A great city gifted by nature, combined with all the advantages of a modern city with resort attractions, isn't this a grand and glorious old world to live in, when your windowpane reflects life as ours in my Home Town — Long Beach?

Won't you join me in this "Paradise"?

CLEVER PAMPHLET
Asks Firms to Consider Site in L. B.

A clever pamphlet advertising Long Beach as a business center is being mailed to out-of-town firms by Long Beach retail stores, Vito N. Romans, executive secretary of Downtown Long Beach Associates announced. The firms are mailing the pamphlets when they place orders or make remittances and a total of 45,000 will be in the mail in a few days, Romans said.

"We like being your customer. That's why we make this suggestion," reads the cover of the pamphlet.

* * * *

INSIDE in letter form it reads: "Are you considering a move? As a customer with sincere interest in your future, we suggest that you examine the marvelous business climate enjoyed in Long Beach.

"Consider market potential, labor and wage rates. Transportation and centralized location. Banking and service facilities. Consider the business and industry already here. Most important, consider the very finest climate, homes and recreation.

* * * *

"CONSIDER EVERYTHING, and you'll discover the big "plus factor" that makes our Long Beach area the very best location in the nation . . . for your business, your employes, your family."

The letter is headed . . . "before you expand or relocate consider Long Beach."

The pamphlets are the work of the DLBA industrial and economic committee headed by Charles Teed, Sears manager. Interested parties are invited to write the Economic Development Committee at the City Hall.

Welfare Load Claimed Cause of Many Moving From Cities

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Why the drift from the cities to the suburbs?

Middle and upper-income people are "fed up with subsidizing others while being shortchanged themselves," asserts Boyd T. Barnard, president of the Urban Land Institute.

Referring to the growth of welfare services in recent years, Barnard says "It is apparent that something must be done to take the welfare load off the city's back or even more people of means will move to the suburbs where the cost of housing is such as to automatically screen out the poor."

Barnard fails to say who should assume the welfare load from the cities. He does find, in an editorial in the institute's bulletin, that the nation's cities collect less in taxes than any of the states or the District of Columbia.

* * * *

THE INSTITUTE is a research organization with headquarters in Washington and nation-wide membership among architects, city planners, real estate men and others concerned with land use. Barnard is a Philadelphia real estate appraiser and property manager.

Increases in property taxes, Barnard warns, are self-defeating. "Every time the tax rate is raised the city further penalizes the very space and substance of its own existence . . . high property taxes encourage owners to neglect the appearance of their buildings in order to reduce appraised values."

* * * *

BARNARD ALSO said property taxes are responsible for the fact that builders are erecting "a strictly utilitarian structure" rather than one with "embellishments and architectural finesse." The latter "add nothing to function and increase assessed valuations," he noted.

What Barnard fails to add is that a handsome building commands higher rents than a drab one, thereby justifying —if only partially—a higher valuation for tax purposes.

Barnard describes the exodus to the suburbs this way:

"Most central cities are losing their better-salaried young adult taxpayers." Yet they retain and even attract "older and low-income taxpayers who may require welfare and other public services which greatly exceed in value their own contribution to the public treasury."

* * * *

IN CONTRAST to the days when the city was "the focus of business and culture" it has entered an "age of neglect." "Industry, commerce, entertainment and the better paid, better educated citizens are all migrating to some extent to the suburbs," he wrote.

Barnard commented further: "The sprawl and scatter patterns of most modern suburban growth create an inefficient transportation network that is expensive, to boot. This dispersion saps the central city of commercial and cultural vitality because it robs it of patrons and of its most ambitious and imaginative citizens."

To avoid a continuation of the trend, Barnard urges long-range, broad planning. Industrial expansion, suburban sprawl, transportation, downtown blight—all must be considered simultaneously, he said.

PORTRAIT OF JENNY

Worlds of Fashion

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Globe-trotting fashion artist Jennifer Davies may be from "Down Under," but she's likely to turn up almost anyplace in the world.

And has.

At only 26, this attractive mauve - toned blonde from Australia has made two trips to the United States, has plowed the seas from New York to London and from London to Australia.

She's worked in hometown Sydney, also in Vancouver, Chicago, Detroit, Stockholm and London; has toured Europe up, down and back again; has sailed through the Straits of Gibralter, the Mediterranean, the Suez Canal —even stopped off to make a few sketches in Ceylon.

All that in the span of a few short years—AND all on her own.

* * * *

CURRENTLY this global gadabout is hanging her hat at 1700 E. Ocean Blvd.

And when green - eyed Jenny isn't showing her fashion sketches to prospective employers, she's out on the beach adding to the "see-scope" in her Australian-made bikini.

"Goodness, I don't know why all these comments about my swimming costume," says she, "Bikinis are very common in Australia—Europe, too."

Nonetheless, Jenny adopts a "when-in-Rome" attitude, and if members of the local Girl Watcher's Society grow too numerous, she covers up with a muu muu.

But, much to her surprise, the muu muu, picked up in Hawaii during her trip over on the SS Canberra, comes in for some second glances, too. (For reasons, see picture.)

* * * *

ENERGETIC JENNY, 5-foot-6 and a one-time model, currently a fashion illustrator with the Sydney (Australia) Daily Mirror, came here, after landing in Vancouver, to cheer on her Australian buddies during the recent World Water Ski Championships.

An avid water enthusiast (she's done exhibition swimming and water skiing), Jennie has fallen in love with the Long Beach waterways, also other ways.

Says she: "I love the climate and the way of life. Also, I like American food, men and jazz."

* * * *

THIS isn't the first time Australian-born Jenny has been in a strange country on a shoe string. In fact, it's the story of her life.

After finishing boarding school and working her way through art school, she decided at an early age to give the world a whirl and promptly started saving money.

First stop: Vancouver. That was in 1957. In no time at all she landed a job as junior fashion artist for a department store there.

"We worked like crazy," she recalls, "but I'm thankful for that—because while there I became a faster, more competent artist."

* * * *

BUT ANXIOUS to be on the move, she took a job with a German film company researching firms in Detroit, Chicago and New York. That mission accomplished, she sailed for London.

En route she teamed up with five American students and for six months toured Europe via auto, bicycle and what-have-you, staying first in a fashionable hotel or lodge, then a youth hostel, and (when money ran low) out in the fields.

"We each budgeted our expenses to $5 a day—that to cover petrol, food and accommodations," she recalls. "If we spent too much living it up one day, we'd economize the next.

"Once at the Casino in Monte Carlo, we lost a total of three nights lodging—so the next three nights our accommodations were sleeping bags in fields along the way (a practice not uncommon in Europe)."

* * * *

BUT JENNY'S European tour came to an abrupt halt in Stockholm when resources dwindled to $25. The second day there, she landed a job with an art studio.

Then, London. Another job with an art studio—this one in Oxford Circus. But the income was meager, so Jenny decided to head for home.

When she sailed for Australia, Jenny had only enough to cover the fare—no more.

She recalls: "My first greeting to father (a lumberman) was: 'Dad, can you spare a dime'."

Back on old stomping grounds, Jenny took her current fashion illustrator job with the Sydney paper and again started saving.

"It was a toss up whether I'd buy a new MG or come to America," says she. "But dad decided for me. I was planning to try my hand at sports car racing, but he turned thumbs down.

"So, here I am — racing around Long Beach instead."

GIRL FROM "Down Under," Jenny Davies, adds to local scenery in her Australian - designed bikini.

TAKE-OFF ON MUU MUU is worn by Australian-born, globe-trotting Jennifer Davies, a fashion illustrator for Sydney Daily Mirror, who arrived in town for recent World Water Ski Championships. Hawaiians, she reports, are upset about sudden "sex appeal" approach to original Mother Hubbard, designed to hide glamorous figures of South Pacific girls. And where did Jenny buy her muu muu? In Hawaii, of course. Says she: "It's a tourist version."

Pre-School Bells to Ring Monday

School days start young in Long Beach.

Pint-size dynamos from two years and nine months to kindergarten age will be among those hurrying to class when the bells ring Monday.

They'll attend the 19 different Parent Participation Nursery Schools (formerly called Co-ops) here.

And when kindergarten rolls around next year, they will be ready for school routine. In the meantime, they will all have a full program of pre-school activities.

Parent Participation Nurseries were originated by Dr. Katherine Whiteside Taylor during her tenure as coordinator of daily education at Long Beach City College.

* * * *

EACH SCHOOL is directed by trained personnel with the assistance of the mothers. Since the first nursery opened here 13 years ago, thousands of mothers and fathers have worked to maintain them. This year more than 450 children will participate in the program.

The nurseries are licensed by the State Department of Social Welfare and are nonprofit and non-sectarian.

Fifteen nurseries meet under the auspices of the Long Beach Recreation Department which has been instrumental in obtaining playground facilities. The other four meet at churches and youth centers.

The nurseries are coordinated and aided by Long Beach Council of Parent Nursery Schools Inc., which is headed by Mrs. Gerald Meyer.

The council will have its first meeting this year Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. in Los Altos Methodist Church. Mrs. Meyer will be assisted by Lorella Koran, co-chairman; Nancy Simpson, recording secretary; Avis Jarrett, corresponding secretary; and Shelby Williams, treasurer.

* * * *

SCHOOLS of Long Beach Council of Parent Nursery Schools are located at the following addresses.

North Long Beach: Coolidge Park, Coolidge Park, 400 E. Coolidge St.; North Long Beach, Houghton Park, Atlantic Ave. and Harding St.; and Ramona Park, Ramona Park, 65th St. and Obispo Ave.

The home of Mrs. Loreen Buffum Robinson, 2205 E. First St., is the hub of much lively activity these days due to the visit of her daughter, Mrs. David W. Colbert Jr., and grandchildren, David III, Karen Loreen and Deborah.

The Colberts arrived by jet at International Airport last week from their home in Oberammergau in the Bavarian Alps where they have lived for the past three years. They will visit for several weeks while Dr. Colbert is beginning a four-year residency at Ochsner Hospital in New Orleans.

MRS. ROBINSON visited the Colberts last year in Oberammergau, and while there entertained Long Beach friends who were attending the famed Passion Play in that village. The Colberts and Mrs. Robinson traveled together through the Scandinavian countries.

The Robinson family enjoyed a family reunion last week when Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Larson, Mrs. Robinson's son-in-law and daughter, with their children, Cynthia and Tim, of Palm Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson and Robyn of Costa Mesa, were all assembled to greet the Colberts.

The Wild Waves Say . .

By IOLA MASTERSON
I, P-T Women's Editor

EARLY THESE mornings you can tell autumn is here. The air has that unmistakable aroma of fall. It smells, if you know what I mean, like school! Later today, like every day last week, the hours will do that sweet, lingering scent of summer. All strictly fake. The true odor will be strong first thing tomorrow. "Phew" the kids will say; "Whee!" will answer their parents.

"But Why ME?"

To each — "Phew-ers" or "Whee-ers" — happy memories of summer and strength be with you to withstand the jolts, or new-found freedoms, of Fall, 1961.

"HONORABLE presence requested" read the invitations. As far as I know, not a person didn't personally see to it that his presence was possible, johnny-on-the-spot, last night when next door neighbors, Connie and Phil Putnam and Barbara Fred Hesley, co-hosted an oriental themed party. Costumes were de riqueur, delightful or dafty. Following a saki hour at 7 p.m. guests dined on such things as sukiyaki and sunomono — the latter a shrimp and cucumber salad — plus many another Ah So dishe.

In the party swing, Connie and Phil will continue with another affair next Sunday, hosting a cocktail reception for Phil's brother, Chuck, and his new bride, Janice (nee Noonan) Putnam, formerly of Santa Rosa. The newlyweds are now residing here.

IN THE case of Lend-Lease between Europe and U.S.A.-ers, Geneva and Stan Weiss and sons, Paul and Allan, it leased them six wonderful weeks of scenery and vacation enjoyment, then turned around and loaned Geneva one heckuva cold to come home with. At this point, two weeks following return, she ruefully wonders if it might not be a permanent loan! Their jet flights netted them tours of eight countries the only new one, for them, being that old one Greece.

* * * *

At the height of the season they, like others from here have previously noted, found no trouble at all in getting finest accommodations without previous reservations. This year, Geneva said, it seems to be the Germans who are the mainstay of the tourist trade — with way fewer Americans traveling than in years past. Way fewer, in fact, of any type tourist.

Incidentally, now that Allan has "graduated" from Europe he goes on to further his education at Stanford, entering his freshman year this month.

PROBABLY YOU normally think of Mary Alice and Les Dahl as calm sophisticates. Well, you should have seen that facade break into a thousand grins last weekend as they described their first grandchild, a boy, born to daughter and son-in-law, Diana and Jim Loomis, Friday, July 1. Undoubtedly Elizabeth Loomis, paternal grandmother, was just as busy with smiles.

Diana and Gannon returned home from Community last Monday, of all modern medical things, when the young 'un was still a few hours shy of three days old.

* * * *

OLE! Louise and Jim Duncan now have a fistful of mananas — three weeks worth in which to play tomorrows away. No long vacation trips for them—just a variety of side trips to Mexico, Las Vegas and a jolly assortment of etcetera places. Says Big Jim, "Maybe even a daring assault on the L.A. County Fair grounds at Pomona."

THOROUGH TO the nth degree were housewarming party planners with their total surprise affair for Rose and Gene Bishop last weekend in their new College Park Estates home. Not only did the gang from the Bishops' former neighborhood bring the barbecue grill and everything to cook upon it, they even brought fly spray to keep off what should not be on that which was upon. Oh yes, and pink champagne to down as they watched for insect trouble.

"Total Surprise"

Spearheading the party were the Jack Kennedys (No, Mable, this Jack's first lady is Elsie). Assisting them prepare and bear party paraphernalia were "Ernie" and Dean Meils, Bonnie and Dick Marshall, Aileen and Harold Berg, Linnie and Lionel Gatley, Kit and Bob Poole, Ruth and Frank Carey, Louise and Vern Byer, Helen and Cliff Meyer, Mary Jane and Terry Kay and Alvina Noland.

* * * *

IT WAS fiesta, and in no mamby-pamby terms, last Saturday at Barbara and Tom Jordan's home when, with co-hosts Harriet and Reed Williams, they produced a real live-wire type South of the Border party. From costumed guests to Spanish food, music and decor it was all out. A few of the gay throng present were Georgiana and Pat Hamilton, Nadine and Leo VanderLans, Elaine and Tom Kimball, Jackie and George Herman, Maurie and Barney Bailey and Jean and Allan Beck.

INFORMAL swimming party without benefit of pool was given by Lucille and Conrad Lueke last hot, hot Sunday. Better than a pool is the canal and swimming dock they used right in front of their Naples home. After a cooling off period they heated things up again—this time the grill for a patio barbecue.

DECORATIVE TRIO
Flowers for party are given artistic arrangement by (left to right) Mmes. Terry Roberts, Don Callender and Paul Beddow, members of Sema Club. Decorations will be used at group's fifth annual dessert bridge Sept. 18 at 8 p. m. in Petroleum Club. Money from event will benefit Cystic Fybrosis Foundation. Mrs. Terry Roberts, 4327 Club House Drive, Lakewood, is responsible for reservations.—(Staff photo.)

Garrison - Johnson Vows

Elegant simplicity was keynote of the wedding uniting Diane Mae Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Johnson, Las Vegas, and Leland Michael Garrison, son of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Garrison, 5639 Corso di Napoli.

Mrs. L. M. Garrison

For the ceremony, solemnized in First Presbyterian Church, Las Vegas, the bride wore an original gown of white peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice of over-all embroidery and a bell-shaped skirt. A white Dior rose held her tiered veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of white orchids tied with white satin streamers.

* * * *

MISS LINDA JOHNSON attended her sister as maid of honor. All classmates of the bride at Stanford, bridesmaids were Nancy Lund, Las Vegas; Carol Griswold, Arcadia; and Nancy Viets, Long Beach.

Gerald Manerud, Palo Alto, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Seating the 100 guests were Kris Nelson, Palm Springs; Paul C. Merrill Jr., San Diego; and Charles F. Merrill of Long Beach.

Immediately following the ceremony, a champagne reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

* * * *

THE NEW Mrs. Garrison was graduated from Stanford University, Palo Alto, in June and will teach this year in Baltimore, Md., where her bridegroom, also a graduate of Stanford, will continue his medical studies at the University of Maryland.

An alumnus of Wilson High School, the bridegroom is a member of Kappa Alpha social fraternity and Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity.

Before leaving for their new home in Baltimore, the newlyweds honeymooned in Carmel, Monterey and San Francisco.

Richard McCollom Weds Ski Queen, Janice Gordon

Holy Innocents Catholic Church was setting for the recent nuptial mass uniting Long Beach water ski champion, Janice Elaine Gordon, and Richard Lawrence McCollom.

Mrs. Richard McCollom

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wells E. Gordon, 2684 Golden Ave., wore a gown of white slipper satin with bell skirt and bustle. She carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis and lilies of the valley.

A trophy-holding member of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club, the new Mrs. McCollom was the group's queen at its meet in Parker, Ariz., and was queen of the Annual Catalina Water Ski Race last September.

* * * *

HER ATTENDANTS at the wedding included Charlene Elsasser, maid of honor; Mrs. Linda Mehlbrech, matron of honor, and Sherry Jewett, Sharon Kay Morgan and Thais Roy, bridesmaids. Cynthia Lee Ward and Lisa Diane Ward were flower girls.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar C. Wolzeski, 2134 Golden Ave., chose Neal Ward as best man. Douglas McCollom was ring bearer and Wells S. Gordon Jr.; Samuel C. Alhadeff, Bill Licata and Edward Barbone were ushers.

Both the bride and bridegroom were graduated from Poly High School and attended Long Beach City College. She was a member of Lambda Phi and he of Comus.

Following a honeymoon trip to Monterey, Carmel, San Francisco and Las Vegas, the newlyweds will make their home in Long Beach.

Bird Watchers Joined by Watching Wardens

From all reports the gun reports were loud and steady around El Centro last weekend with the opening of dove season. In fact, that loud and steady stuff had the game wardens out in about the same numbers as the doves. Which was plenty of same.

"Dove's disguised"

Hear tell that the lawmen were so zealous they even checked hotels and motels in search of over-limit bags. One man (not local) confirmed their suspicions. He was caught having the chef of one hotel preparing a feast of about three times what he had a right to have in the kettle. They fined him $10 a bird over his limit—and confiscated every one too many to boot, gravy and all. "Honest officer, I thought they were chickens."

Localities who got their limits (and not one bird over, cross my heart and hope to die—wups, there goes another of those sharp pains over my heart) were "Gap" Powell and George Powell (George took wife, Barbara, and daughter, Jody, along to keep count), Art and Bill Macrate, Bud Adams, Carter Boswell, Harrison Moore, Walt Hoffman, Al Beach, Bert Paul, John Craig, Charlie Swanton, Mary Ellestad and son, Steve.

* * * *

THE BRIDAL entourage included Patricia Grant, maid of honor, Noel Smartt, Sharon McMahan and Mrs. Robert Jackson, bridesmaids.

Joel Donnelly served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers, all classmates of the bridegroom at Caltech, were William Farrell, Robert Gilman, Douglas Fenwick, Tom Gordon, Eli Chernow and Bill Hazzenzahl.

DEAR ABBY

By All Means, Call Them

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are having a disagreement that needs settling. We know a couple who have been married about a year. We attended their wedding and gave them a nice gift. I see this man at work every day. He keeps saying, "My wife and I are very put out with you and your wife because you haven't paid us a visit in our new apartment yet." When I tell my wife this, she says, "If they want us over, his wife should call me and invite us."

ABBY

I can't tell this to the man, can I? Is it our place to call them up and invite ourselves over? Or should we wait until they call us? What is proper?—PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: It is considered quite proper to phone friends who are newly married and ask them if you may call on them.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going steady with a young man for three months now. He has a good personality, a good job, and my parents like him. You might think I have no problem, but I have. When he kisses me I just don't get that wonderful tingle. No matter how hard I try, I can't seem to feel anything for him. It is like kissing my brother. I know he thinks a lot of me, because he has been talking about marriage. I am 22 and have felt more for other men I've dated than this one, so I know it's not me. Should I keep going with him? If I break up, what excuse could I use? I hate to hurt his feeling.—FEELS NOTHING

DEAR FEELS: You will hurt him less if you are honest with him now. It is obvious that you are not "in love" with this man, so tell him, like a sister, that he would make a wonderful brother.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: After being begged for a year, we let our 18-year-old daughter get married. She has been married for 8 months, and has never spent one day in her own apartment. She and her hubby have eaten every meal with me, and they spend most of their nights here. I love my daughter, and her husband is a nice enough boy, but I am getting sick of keeping house for them. Should I tell them to move in with me, and give me the price of the apartment? —MRS. WORKHORSE

DEAR MRS.: Instead of keeping house for your daughter, teach her to keep house herself. Then send her home and tell her to stay there and be a good wife to her husband.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GETS CARRIED AWAY": Carry him back.

Always a New, Easier Way

By MARY NETH

The Biblical statement, "There is no new thing under the sun," can't be denied in a sense.

But when it comes to new ways of designing familiar products for the home, there is most certainly something new everyday.

The following items are just a few "new-looks" seen in local stores this week.

Under $1

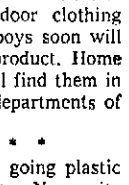

Handy for the housewife in a hurry. Pack of tacks, nails, bolts, brads and screws, makes quick repair of household goods easy. No need to put off till tomorrow a job that needs only a minute to complete. Pack includes different size nails etc. in small plastic bottles. Good for every home or garage.

* * * *

No trips, no bumps. New door-stop stops door up high. A hinge pin type that's up to 100 percent adjustable, it eliminates floor type bumps and stays out of the way of children. Takes no drilling or tapping to install and won't mar wall.

* * * *

A dab in time saves nine. New liquid mender in tube is great for back-to-school-set to tuck into book-bag or locker. Using latex based liquid much in way he would apply paste to paper, a youngster can mend tears in trousers, canvas sneakers, and leather book bags in seconds. He also can attach his own name tapes and labels to gym clothes or rain boots. Liquid dries in 60 seconds, will withstand washing, boiling and ironing.

* * * *

Dress zipper-uppers aren't needed anymore. New invisible zipper solves problem. Zipper eliminates need for designers to place zipper opening at the side or back —out-of-view, but hard to reach. New zipper is concealed within a seam and is integrated into contour of garment. It is rustproof and color fast and has been tested by the U.S. Testing Laboratory. Dresses and sportswear for women and girls and outdoor clothing for men and boys soon will feature new product. Home seamstress will find them in most sewing departments of local stores.

* * * *

Everything's going plastic and inflatable. Now, its clothes hangers. Terrific for travel, these soft plastic closet musts collapse to 4 by 5 fold-up size and come in their own plastic envelope. College girls rate them high for hanging drip-drys in the dorm. Available in rose print on white background.

Under $2

A rose is a rose, is a rose . . . but this one is more. Large long stemmed beauty, looks lovely on Milady's dresser. When turned over rose disapears and there's a mirror. A rosy way to see that the back of that hair-do is in petal perfect shape. Metal frame is covered with taffeta for decorative elegance. Available in rose yellow, blue, green or beige. (Priced to $3.50.)

Under $3

Under the bed storage is sign of good housekeeping these days. Modern opaque plastic storage chest makes it practical and neat. A wonderful way to store blankets and sheets, chest has cardboard, assemble-yourself frame, and plastic covering with zipper. Available in 48 by 18 by 6 inch size.

Under $4

It won't wear out or rust. That's the beauty of new all rubber brush for bathroom cleaning. Brush comes in plastic, compact container and has long, long handle. Available in rose, white and lavender.

Dr. and Mrs. John Warnock to Celebrate Anniversary

Dr. John C. Warnock, a dentist for 52 years, will celebrate his 65th wedding anniversary with his wife today.

The elderweds, who reside at the Willmore Hotel, were married Sept. 10, 1896, in Cambridge, Ill. They will be guests of honor at a dinner given them by their children.

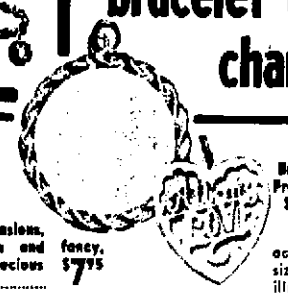

Dr. Warnock began practicing dentistry in Kewanee, Ill., in 1899. He retired in 1951 and the couple moved to Kansas City, Kan., where they lived for a year before moving to Long Beach.

Four Exhibits Open Today

By BETTY WENTWORTH

Opening today with a reception from 5 to 9 p.m. at La Poule Rouge Gallery, 109 Main St., Seal Beach, is a new group show. Works featured are by Lin Carr, Marvin Saltzman, Marcus White and Harriet Wolpin.

A graduate of the Art Students League in New York, where she studied with Kuniyoshi, Miss Carr will show woodcuts. She has previously exhibited nationally, including shows at Maryland Institute of Fine Arts and National Print Show in Los Angeles.

Marvin Saltzman, Long Beach artist and former student of Misch Kohn, is remembered for his recent one-man show at the Jewish Community Center. His paintings and prints have also been shown at the Ramon Lopez Gallery and the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts.

Marcus White, a professional musician who turned to graphic arts in 1951, has exhibited his welded sculpture at Long Beach Museum of Art and Los Angeles County Museum.

Recent winner of the $250 award at Los Angeles County and Vicinity Show, Miss Wolpin is a ceramicist whose training took place at Art Students League in New York and at Otis Institute where she earned her M.A. She has also exhibited in the National Ceramics Show and San Diego Art Guild Show.

* * * *

A PREVIEW - reception will be held today at the Pacific Coast Club from 2 to 5 p.m. honoring Maxine and Doug Miles and Mrs. Miles' mother, Carrie McMullen. An exhibit of their mosaics and ceramics will be on display.

This is the second exhibit at the PCC for this husband and wife team. They teach two classes a week at Westside Girls Club and also have classes at Northside Girls Club; these clubs are sponsored by the Assistance League and Rick Rackers.

They also teach at Navy Base Hobby Shop, Terminal Island.

Mrs. McMullen shows some of her first attempts at ceramics, and is a good example of the fact that age is no barrier to useful and interesting hobbies.

FIRST ONE-MAN show for Robert Brandts, as well as a first public show of any of his work (barring one painting in Long Beach Art Museum Show this past year) will go on exhibit in the Veltman Gallery beginning today and continuing through Sept. 30. There will be a champagne reception at 8 p.m. at the gallery, 5604 E. Second St.

Brandts is a city lifeguard, his station being on Alamitos Bay near 72nd Place. He is married and has two children. He terms himself essentially self-taught and has had very little academic training.

His work suggests a kinship with the early French expressionist painters, especially Van Gogh in regard to color. He has also been compared with the German expressionist, Edward Munch. Both his drawings and paintings reveal his interest in the human face and figure, in the realistic rather than abstract sense.

OPENING the fall season as "artists of the month" at the Unitarian Church, 5460 Atherton St., will be a young couple, Jean and Philip Freeman. Their exhibit opens today and continues through the month.

The Freemans studied together at the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts, Wayne University, U. of Michigan and Orange Coast College. They have exhibited widely in Michigan and at Carnegie Institute, Wichita Gallery, All-California Show in Laguna, Long Beach Museum of Art and the Newport Annual. Among Philip's highest achievements is a place in the permanent collection of the Detroit Art Museum, won with ceramic dinnerware.

They have just built a studio at Dana Point and are teaching pottery, painting and drawing. They are also busy lecturing, demonstrating for art groups and designing and executing commissions. They have two children.

Show at Center

More than 50 artists of Southern California who have never before exhibited at the Westside Jewish Community Center, 5870 W. Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles, will have their work showcased in the Center's first fall art show. It opens with a reception Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. and continues through Oct. 12.

Name Gard Music Director at LBCC

Of wide interest to local music lovers is news of appointment of Wayne B. Gard as new director of choral music at Long Beach City College. This position includes directing the popular Schola Cantorum, the college choir, madrigal singers and small ensembles such as quartets and trios. He fills the post vacated by Royal Stanton.

Gard, a native of Iowa, was graduated from Iowa State Teachers College and received his master's in music at the U. of Michigan. He took special work at the American Conservatory, Chicago, and has studied under such noted choral directors as Roger Wagner, Peter Wilhouski of New York and Maynard Klein at the U. of Michigan.

He taught in Iowa High School and for the past six years at Bakersfield High School. There he organized a madrigal singer group, and his boys' glee club received superior ratings at many music festivals. It was chosen to represent all high school boys' glee clubs at the Cal-Western Music Educators national conference in Santa Monica early this summer.

* * * *

HE SERVED as both musical and drama director for such musical productions as "The King and I," South Pacific," "Brigadoon" and "Oklahoma." His a cappella choir of about 110 voices performed such major choral works as Brahms "Requiem." He is now looking forward to working with the Schola Cantorum here.

Future plans for the Schola include a holiday program with the Schola and college chorus, "The Feast of Lights," which includes great Christmas music from the baroque, Renaissance and romantic periods of music.

In early March a pops evening in a lighter vein is planned to include excerpts from musicals and possibly a one-act or short opera. Gard hopes to have the Schola do some major vocal work from one of the masters next May.

Wayne B. Gard

The Schola is open to anyone interested in singing. Students are welcome to attend rehearsal Monday night in Studio C in the Music Building on LBCC campus at 7 p.m., after which there will be private auditions. Classes are under the adult education evening division. If unable to make the audition tomorrow night there will be further auditions on the next two Mondays.

* * * *

THE NEW director is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Symphonia, honorary music fraternity; past president of Kern County Music Educators, treasurer of Central Section of California Music Educatnrs Association, and Southern California Vocal Association.

The Gard family has just moved into a home at 4600 Village Road. His wife, Mary Jane, is an accomplished singer with operatic and concert experience. She sang the lead in a recent Bakersfield Civic Light Opera production of "The Mikado" and has been a "Messiah" soloist for several years.

Gard hopes to take part in similar activities here. He played with the Kern Philharmonic and will be playing tympani with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra.

The Gards have three children, Richard, 6; Stephen, 4; and Charles, 1½.

Rose Works at Firefly Art Gallery

Tom Rose, originator and charter member of Firefly Artists, will present a one-man show opening today at the Firefly Gallery at Stanton Plaza, Highway 39, Stanton, with a reception from 4 to 6 p.m. Theme of his show is "Play Time in Orange County." It runs through Oct. 6.

Rose is art and sculpture instructor at Bolsa Grande High School, Garden Grove, and is currently studying under John Morden at Long Beach State College. He is a member of Westminster Art Association.

His work has shown at San Francisco Fair where he won a Gold Medal award, at Santa Cruz annual, Elgin Academy, Elgin, Ill., winning the purchase prize; Oakland and Stanford Museums and St. Mary's College.

* * * *

WINNERS of this month's "painting of the month" contest at the gallery were: Phil Gilkerson, Fullerton; D. McGrath, Fullerton; Alyce Sanders, Compton; Jeff Lee, Brea; and Ruby Hoiland, Garden Grove. Their paintings will be on view during the Rose show.

Garland at Bowl

Singing star Judy Garland will make one of her infrequent appearances on the West Coast when she stars in "Stereo at the Bowl" next Saturday night at the Hollywood Bowl.

Judy will present a one-woman show, backed up by her own 40-piece recording orchestra. Only a few seats are left for this performance.

Yamamoto's Painting Calligraphic, Subtle

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Noriko Yamamoto, American-born Japanese, combines the swift broad strokes of a Soulages with the splash and drip of a Pollock over areas of wax-resist, and all in her own color harmonics. A particular flavor of large-scale Oriental calligraphy characterizes most of her painting. Her works are on exhibit until Sept. 24 in the Long Beach Museum of Art with a formal opening today.

These paintings are truly "way out," and require careful consideration to appreciate their subtleties. Miss Yamamoto is a winner in the Whitney Museum annual competition for Americans; this institution has so recognized almost every American artist who has gone on to the major leagues internationally. It is adjacent to and shares the courtyard of the famed Museum of Modern Art.

Yamamoto's work has the airy casualness which comes from complete knowledge and control. Several of the paintings seem to explode from a large central form (No. 6, apparently, by means of smashing a sponge loaded with water and turpentine onto wet paint). No. 11 is a complex of transparent white layers over brown.

* * * *

A LAYER of tissue makes the amoebic forms in No. 4 which is in blue and black. No. 3 has a large purple center, edged with wax-resist, surrounded by areas of orange, purple and gray.

While these are "action paintings" (i. e., those which reveal the physical movements of the artist), Miss Yamamoto uses many layers of thin paint rather than the thick impasto characteristic of this "school." Her work conveys a sense of mystery, and is, perhaps, an indication of "more to follow."

Light Opera to Audition

Auditions for singing and acting roles in the November production of "Oklahoma" to be given by the Civic Light Opera will take place Sept. 17 at 2 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall. It will be open to all interested and talented non-Equity performers.

On Tuesday night a general meeting of the Civic Light Opera Association will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Dance Drama Center, 518 E. Fourth St. Those who expect to audition are invited to attend. They will be given the opportunity to meet the directors and learn about the parts available as well as other pertinent information about the forthcoming production. For information call Dance Drama Center.

Southern France Evacuating Art

A mass evacuation of art works is underway in the robbery-ridden south of France, The Insider's Newsletter has reported.

Tourists shopping for canvases on the Riviera are now being shown photographs of valuable paintings which have been crated for shipment to Paris vaults. Potential customers will get to see the original only if the dealer is convinced they're ready to buy.

In another move to minimize the wave of thefts, the Louvre Museum is removing all its masterpieces from its walls to install new mounting devices. When remounted, the paintings will have frames attached to the walls with time locks. Mountings of the Louvre's paintings have not been changed since World War II when they were specially hung for easy, speedy removal in case of emergency.

Show Will Be First in West

"American Business and the Arts," a collection of paintings owned by U. S. corporations, will be the featured exhibition at San Francisco Museum of Art from Sept. 14 to Oct. 15.

Among painters represented are Burchfield, Ernst, Gottlieb, Graves, Gris, Hartley, Hofmann, Kandinsky, Klee, Kline, Leger, Marin, Miro, O'Keefe, Picasso, Rothko, Sheeler, Tamayo and Weber.

New Discs at Library

Among additions to the record section of the public library are: "Songs of the North and South," "Burl Ives Sings," "College Memories" with the Fred Waring Choir, and "The Best of the Weavers."

Opera selections include "Arias" with Anna Moffo, "A Mario Lanza Program," "Leontyne Price Sings Arias," "The Beloved Bjoerling," "Cesare Siepi in Romanze Italiane," and "Highlights From Die Walkure" with Helen Traubel and Lauritz Melchior.

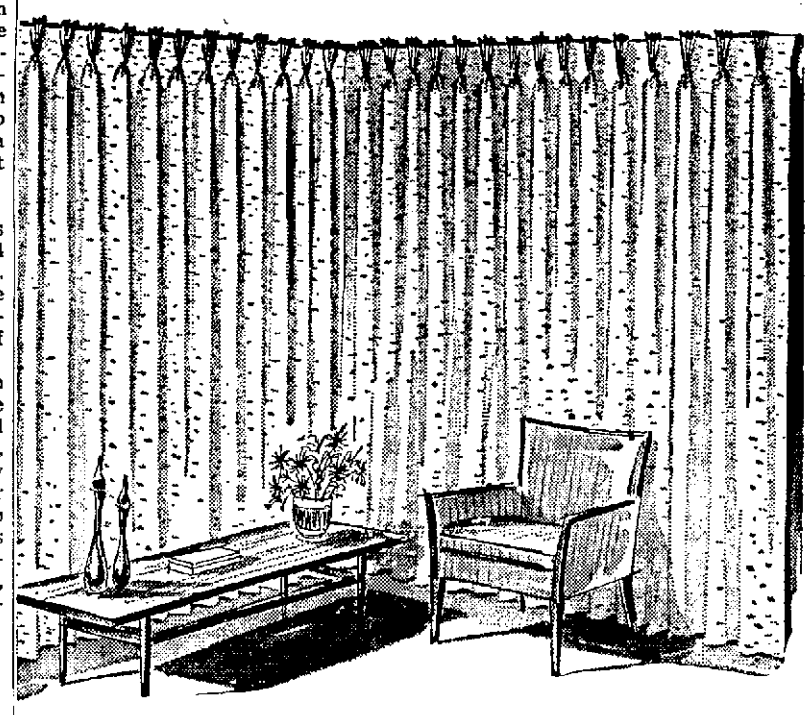

Songs from many lands are represented in "Los Bandidos at El Toro," "Memories of Norway," "Florentine Carnival Songs," "Roamin' in the Gloamin'," "Irish Tenors," and "La Tour du Monde des Petits Chanteurs a la Croix de Bois."

Phonograph records may be borrowed for a two week period. A rental charge is made.

OPEN TONIGHT Open Mon., Wed., Thurs. and Fri. 9:30 A.M. to 9:15 P.M.

N.Y. STADIUM CONCERT HISTORY RECOUNTED

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

Last week I quoted from an article by Minnie S. Guggenheimer, who founded the summer concerts at the New York City Lewisohn Stadium 43 years ago and who still runs them. Her story continues:—

"When I married a promising young lawyer named Charles S. Guggenheimer and was taken as a timid bride to live in the formidable Guggenheimer mansion at Seventy-third Street and Fifth Avenue, presided over by my rather austere and imposing mother-in-law, a new world of music was opened for me. For Eliza Guggenheimer was a "salonniere" in the grand manner and each Sunday afternoon at 1:30 some 20 to 30 carefully selected guests would sit down to a stuffed-squab luncheon and then file in stately procession up to the second floor music room.

Among them would invariably be a plump, young Neapolitan tenor named Enrico Caruso; a tall, gaunt Russian who spoke mostly in grunts and never smiled, whose name was Sergei Rachmaninoff; a promising young Austrian violinist named Fritz Kreisler; the suave and debonair Antonio Scotti, Josef Hofmann, Marcella Sembrich, Jacques Thibaud and a fellow with close, cropped blond hair and a silver-rimmed pince-nez who was particularly partial to the music of Prokofieff. He had to be. He wrote it!

ALL AFTERNOON they would sing and play and talk about music, and it was wonderful to be accepted into their gay and stimulating company. Caruso and I hit it off particularly well and one Sunday, when his accompanist couldn't come along, he asked me to play for him. I was young and foolish and rushed in where angels feared to tread. I sight-read my way through "La donna e mobile" and fancied the applause at the end was all for me!

Actually the Stadium concerts, which were to bring comfort to so many other troubled hearts through the years, were a source of personal consolation to me in a particularly dark hour of my own life. For I had just lost a lovely, little seven year old daughter when the conductor, Arnold Volpe, and his wife came to me for the first time with their blueprint for a series of outdoor concerts and asked my help in securing Adolph Lewisohn's permission for the concerts to be given in the Stadium bearing his name. My subsequent efforts, in collaboration with Mrs. Volpe, to raise the $10,000 needed for the initial two-week session, helped immeasurably to get me through a period of deep grief and despondency.

I OFTEN THINK back to a memorable night in 1942 when Jascha Heifetz was the Stadium soloist. The night before, a violent electrical storm had completely wrecked the orchestra shell and Heifetz had graciously agreed to play on an improvised platform without any overhead covering. He was in the midst of the Brahms violin concerto when the rains came again. When he reached the end of the first movement, he made as if to walk off the stage. But no one in the audience made the slightest move. They just sat there, completely unmindful of the weather, enraptured by the marvelous music.

Heifetz stared incredulously out at his audience. Then he picked up his precious "Strad" and announced: "If you can take it, I can." He played the concerto through to its conclusion, and it was one of the most glorious performances I have ever heard. At the end they gave him a deafening ovation, and he played encore after encore

Music has proven itself for me and for a legion of stadium goers to be indeed the international language; the means of bringing people from many different walks of life and many different national, religious and socio-economic backgrounds into one common fellowship."

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Shock the Ingrates

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What would you do with a 15-year-old son who absolutely refuses to do any chores around the house? And with a husband who simply will not reprimand him?

This is my situation. And I'm almost going out of my mind. For it means that I'm worn out at the end of the day from doing the chores myself and from the constant wrangling with my son and losing my temper with my husband.

Help, please, a frantic, head - against - the - wall — MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER:

Write a letter to both of them. Leave it on the dining-room table. Then buy a ticket to some pleasant place not too far away. And in the letter tell them you've left and that you won't return until they both sign an agreement to carry out their responsibilities like decent members of the family.

A day or two of opening tin cans for themselves, tending to the laundry, etc., should bring them both around. But by that time perhaps you'll be enjoying yourself so much that you'll take a week or two longer. I sure would.—M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I have recently learned to play bridge, and, fortunately, here in the neighborhood are two other couples who are beginners, too.

But the trouble is they always want to play as a husband - and - wife team, while my husband and I have a knock-down drag-out every time we play together.

He has absolutely no card sense and leads his partner completely astray in the bidding, as he WON'T abide by rules. He thinks he knows more than Mr. Goren, or else he plays some other method, I don't know.

We could have such fun if he weren't so obstinate. What to do?—HENRIETTA B.

DEAR HENRIETTA B.:

I know lots of husbands and wives who wrangle over bridge. Either don't play together — or don't play. I honestly don't know any other way out.—M. M.

Luck, Skill Assure Bid

North and South held enough strength between them to justify a four-spade bid, but the fact that the king of clubs was opposite a singleton in dummy represented duplication of values, and South needed a good deal of luck to bring home his contract.

East won the opening club lead and shifted to the three of trumps. South wanted to ruff two clubs in dummy, but he saw that the defense was anticipating his idea and that he would not be able to achieve that objective. Another line of play was necessary. South counted three trump tricks and the king of clubs in his own hand, plus three heart tricks and one club ruff in dummy for a total of eight. Two diamond tricks were necessary also and he decided that he would have to get rid of the opponents' trumps before going after them.

ACCORDINGLY, South let the spade go around to dummy's jack and led the spade back. East rose with the ace and played a third spade which South won in his own hand.

Now he led a diamond. West played low and South put in the jack. When it held everything was "hunky-dory." South cashed three hearts, discarding a club, ruffed a heart back to his hand, discarded one of dummy's diamonds on the king of clubs and led another diamond.

Arts of India in L.A. Display

Architecture and art in India is being featured in a special exhibition that opened last week at the Building Exhibit Center, 7933 W. Third St., Los Angeles.

Presented by Air-India, the display includes examples of old and new architecture, paintings by contemporary Indian artists, architectural sculpture, old textiles and brass pieces. Most of the material was collected by Mr. and Mrs. Jermeja Singh Hundal on a recent trip to India and flown to New York by Air India for this special showing.

The exhibition will continue through Friday.

Arthur E. Mann to Give Speech

Arthur E. Mann, member of AIA and partner in the firm of Raniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, will be guest speaker before the Women's Architectural League Monday.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard O. Prior, 6281 Marita Ave., at 8 p.m.

Kleinholtz Exhibition Will Open

Twenty-four paintings by Frank Kleinholz will be featured in a one-man show at the Gallerie de Ville, Beverly Hills, for a month starting Monday.

While many celebrities, such as the Alfred Hitchcocks, Sol Lessers, Jose Ferrers and Paddy Chayefsky have Kleinholz paintings in their collections, this marks the first time that a full exhibition of his works will be on display in Southern California.

He is represented in permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, Phillips Memorial Gallery of Washington, D. C., and Museum of Modern Art in Tel Aviv.

* * * *

KLEINHOLZ didn't become an artist until he was 36, when he forsook an established law practice for the rather insecure life of a painter. In 1941 a painting was chosen for a Carnegie Institute of Fine Arts Exhibition, and since then he has had over 20 one-man shows in the U.S. and Europe.

Many of his canvases are of New York scenes, painted in a low-keyed but rich palette.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

An Eye for a City-to-Be

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.P-T Food Editor

He passed a corner way back in the "forties," and he never forgot that corner. It was the corner of Lakewood Boulevard and Carson Street. He returned in December 1945 and Chef of the Week Gene Nebeker today is president and owner of the Gene Nebeker Realty Co., 2735 E. Carson St.

He was born in Salt Lake City. Life for him was rather nomadic, and by the time he joined the Air Force in 1941, he had been in practically every state of the Union. Nebeker was a combat training instructor, which included judo and all-'round physical training. His main theaters of operation were Italy, Africa, Egypt and the Persian Gulf.

It was while he was escorting a troop train to our area that he, in a staff car, spotted the Lakewood area, and realized its potential.

STRANGE to say, however, his first point-of-landing was not Lakewood. It was—and we quote: "A 'six-bit' a night hotel on East Anaheim." The "six-bits" were earned cooking in the corner restaurant. In fact, he tended a service station and sold shoes, almost in-the-same-breath.

After his second breath he was a lease agent for a sign board company, sold office supplies, and set up his own restaurant. It was in '52, after he had served his "internship" with another real estate company, that he started his own.

That Nebeker has never lost his first dream of Lakewood is evidenced by the fact that he was instrumental in forming the Lakewood Junior Chamber of Commerce, and served as its charter president. On the board of managers for the Lakewood YMCA, he's also on the advisory council of Boy Scouts and a member of their 100 Club.

A member of the Lakewood Greater Chamber of Commerce, Nebeker has been on their "board" and a past "prexy." He has worked diligently on all civic and charity drives.

* * * *

ONE OF the initial organizers and a past president of the Lakewood Pan American Festival, he has served seven years on the board and as past president of the Long Beach Junior Football League. President this year of the district, Long Beach Board of Realtors, he's also a member of the legislative council, California Real Estate Association.

Otherwise . . . our "chef" finds time to include his wife and 11-year-old daughter in a swimming or tennis bout, ping pong or water skiing. He's an avid fisherman and golfer.

Nebecker says he "loves life," and that eating is his favorite pastime. His recipe is for Beef Burgundy a la Nebeker.

BEEF AND BURGUNDY A LA NEBEKER

- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 1 lb. pearl onions
- 1 lb. button mushrooms

Saute these ingredients in Dutch oven for 5 minutes and then remove onions and mushrooms.

Combine and add to the juice in the Dutch oven:

- 1 tsp. meat extract
- 1 tblsp. tomato paste
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 2 bay leaves
- ½ tsp. thyme
- ½ tsp. Marjoram
- ½ tsp. parsley flakes
- 4 lbs. cubed beef dredged in flour

Braise the beef and while braising add 1 tablespoon soy sauce which seals in the meat juices and hastens braising. Remove meat from the Dutch oven and pour off excess fat. Then to meat, add 3 cups burgundy wine and cook beef cubes until tender or about 10 minutes. Combine all ingredients and simmer for few minutes.

Serve with baked cheese-stuffed potato browned in oven.

Her attendants were Mrs. Charlotte Eriksen, matron of honor, and Gay Ward, Sandra Hunt and Mrs. Judith Sowers, bridesmaids.

OUR COVER

Tomorrow is the big day so Donald William Hambly, having reached the mature age of 5, puts aside Dodger cap and baseball glove and, understandably sober, carefully grooms himself for what is probably the greatest challenge in his life to date—the first day in kindergarten at David Burcham Elementary School. Puzzled about his seriousness, and possibly more than a little perturbed, is his cocker, Pancho. In case you're wondering about the reverse lettering on the calendar, this altogether appealing photograph was taken by Frank Lindgren, shooting into a large mirror. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Hambly Jr., 22 Via Di Roma Walk.

NEXT WEEK

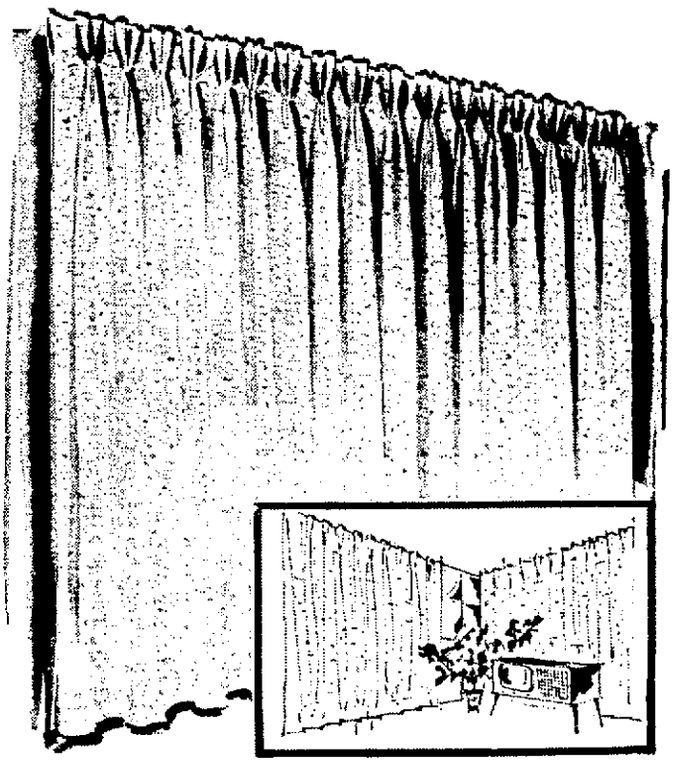

The largest county fair in the world—the Los Angeles County Fair—opens next Friday in Pomona. This year's presentation offers some spectacular innovations—in addition to what we have learned to expect from this typically-American event—giving it promise of setting new records for magnitude, diversity and enjoyment. Next Sunday, as the exposition goes into its third day, Southland tells you the whole story of why this year's event is a real dilly.

They Say 'Velkommen' in Solvang

Atterdag College was built in 1914, is now a tourist and guest center featured in Solvang's "Danish Days."

By Ryn H. Roberts

AS THE beginning of any settlement must come from the vision of pioneers, so the township of Solvang was born out of the dream of Rev. J. M. Gregersen, Rev. B. Nordentoft, and Peter P. Hornsyld. They believed a community might be established where old Danish customs could be kept alive.

They set out to prove it, by searching diligently for the ideal location, finally settling for 9,000 acres of the Rancho Carlos de Jonata, approximately midway between Santa Barbara and Santa Maria. In the fall of 1911 the first building was erected.

These pioneers saw at once the magic and beauty in a valley where one could look to snow-softened peaks, while standing in warm sunshine and lush fields. They decided to name the town "Solvang," meaning "sunny fields" or "sunny valley."

ATTERDAG College was built in 1914, named for the ancient Danish monarch, King Atterdag. Only Danish culture was taught students from almost every state. No textbooks were used, there were no examinations, nor diplomas, for this unusual folk school taught by spoken word only.

The Bethania Lutheran Church took longer to build. Seventeen years of labor went into this edifice, and Danes from all over the world contributed material, and furnishings. A wooden shoe maker in Wisconsin handcarved the altar, font and pulpit. Rare altar cloths were furnished by Danes in China, and hymn books came from Illinois. The bell in the church was once a part of an old ammunition factory.

During World War II Solvang received many refugees from Nazi invaded Denmark.

Atterdag College, now a tourist and guest center, has become the property of the Bethania Church. Solvang today has five elementary schools and a completely staffed high school.

Mission Santa Ynez, founded in 1804, is but a few steps from the center of Solvang. The Chumash Indians were schooled there.

The valley surrounding Solvang has become famous for its Aberdeen, Angus and Shorthorn beef. It is now the dairy center for Santa Barbara County, and helps supply cattle needs of Los Angeles as well.

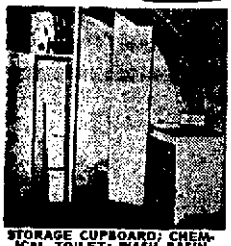

"DANISH DAYS," usually held once a year in Solvang, brings many tourists who visit colorful fronted shops, or drop in the famous Danish bakery to have their fill of coffee and cream-filled pastries. Cries of "Velkommen"

"Velkommen!" will ring in the streets of Solvang next month, as it does year around in this Danish bakery where tourists enjoy coffee and cream-filled pastry.

Song Born of Crisis

SO CLOSELY is the National Anthem associated with Independence Day that many Americans fail to realize the song was not written until long after the end of the war that made the United States a nation. Francis Scott Key was only 3 years old when the peace treaty of the Revolutionary War was signed Sept. 3, 1783, in Paris. Another 31 years were to elapse before he wrote the anthem, on Sept. 13, 1814.

Autumn, 1814, was a critical period in U. S. history. In August, the British had burned the Capitol, the White House and several other government buildings. Enemy ships stood in Chesapeake Bay.

A Dr. William Beanes had thrown three British refugees into jail. For this act he was arrested and taken on board a warship in Chesapeake Bay. John S. Skinner and Francis Key, an attorney, were granted permission to go out to the ship to intervene for Dr. Beanes.

THEY REACHED the ship and obtained the release for Dr. Beanes, but were not allowed to go ashore because preparations were under way for the bombardment of Fort McHenry. The English would not take a chance that their plans might be made known to the Americans. All that night Key watched desperately to see if the flag of 15 stars and 15 stripes was still flying. A flag which still can be seen in the Smithsonian Institute. Out of Key's desperation came the idea for "The Star Spangled Banner."

Key was too torn with anguish and despair to do more than stride the deck that night. But in the morning when the sun cut through the smoke and haze and he saw the flag still streaming, his gratitude rushed out in the immortal words of the anthem. He wrote part of the lyrics right there on the back of a letter he had been writing. He finished it in a Baltimore hotel after he had been released.

THE TUNE to which the words of this anthem were set came from England. It was composed by John Stafford Smithe and called "Anecreon in Heaven." It came to America about 1795 and became a favorite at banquets and social functions.

It is strange that with all its popularity the Star Spangled Banner had to wait more than 100 years before it became official. Herbert Hoover signed a bill making it the official National Anthem on March 3, 1936. Up to that time it had been recognized only by executive orders, and thus could have been cast aside at the whim of any President.

The anthem contains four stanzas but generally only the first is sung; occasionally the fourth. The middle stanzas are virtually unknown. The stanzas are long and the initial one is complete in itself except that it ends on a question. But we know the answer which is given in the last stanza anyway.

Corridor of fleecy curtains delighted Diana Paschall on visit to big store.

"Two Dianas!" said Diana, fascinated with reflection in the large mirrors.

"Like a merry-go-round," said Diana as she whirled with a bouffant petticoat.

Little Girl in a Big Girl's World

Photographs by Florence M. Harrison

Text by Fitz Bolton

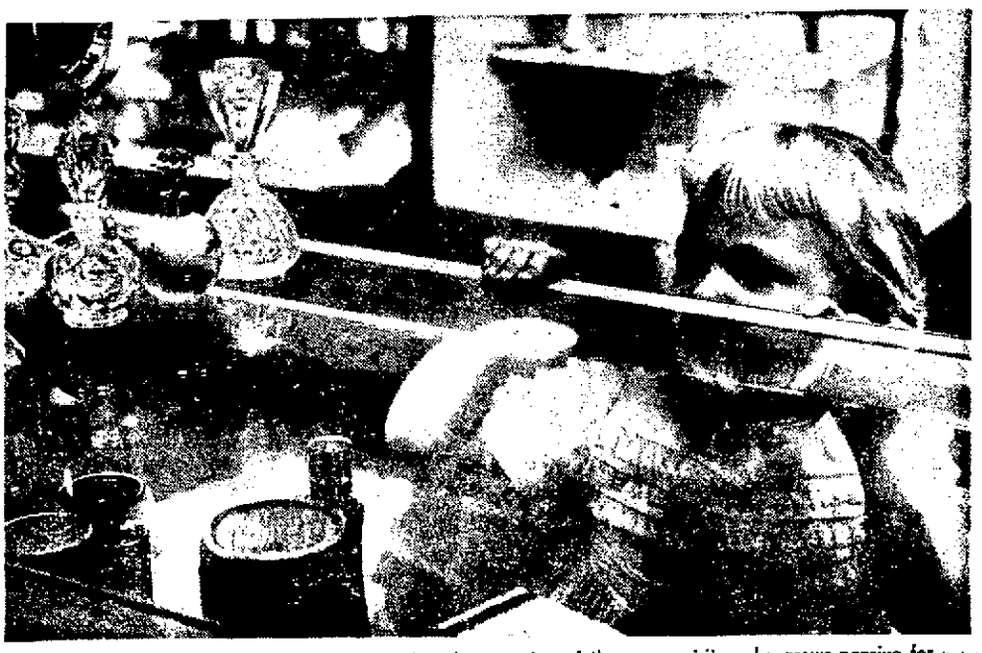

DIANA PASCHALL, the 3½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Paschall of Torrance, recently made her first visit to a big department store.

To Diana the store was a vast playhouse, a playhouse for big girls, and she found the big girls' world a wonderful and exciting place. Diana visited almost all of the departments, but, woman-like, she was most interested in clothes and perfume. If Diana is like most women, this world will always retain much of the enchantment it now holds for her.

The last department Diana visited was the toy department, and here Diana lost all of her awe, dropping immediately back into her own little girls' world of dolls and slides. But it will be only a few years before Diana will enter the big girls' world as a big girl herself.

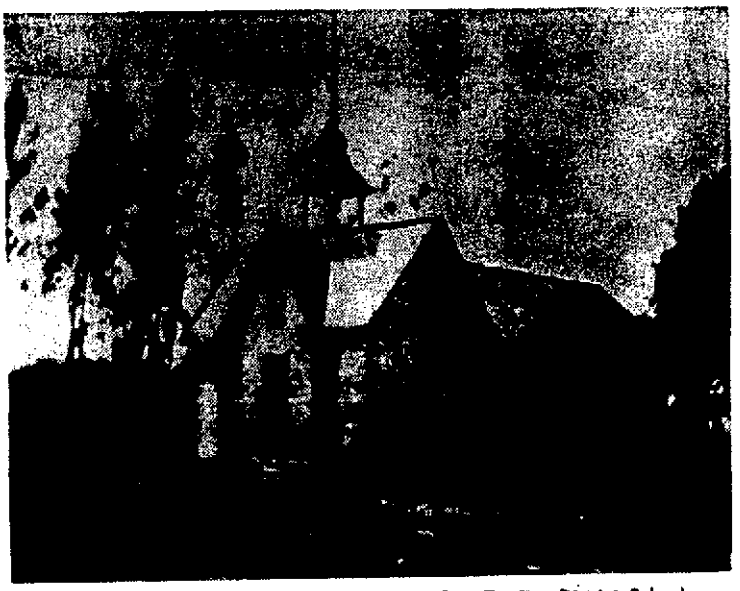

Diana lifts herself to the table top to get a better look at things to be found in the big girls' world.

Sparkling beauty of the perfume counter seizes the attention of the young visitor who grows pensive, for a few seconds in eye-level pose, then she's away to seek other wonders in this big realm of grandeur.

Tired of adult things, Diana returned to kids' world and toy section slide.

First public school in Long Beach area was Los Cerritos District School, located at what is now 1415 W. Willow St. and constructed in early 1880s.

One-room building well remembered by a pupil, Katherine R. Bushong

Long Beach's First Public School

By Maymie R. Krythe

LONG BEACH has a charming pioneer resident who attended the first public school in this area—the Los Cerritos District School on W. Willow Street. She is Mrs. Charles T. (Katherine Robinson) Bushong, 1026 E. 5th St.

In 1882 she came by wagon with her parents, the R. B. Robinsons, from Modesto to Southern California.. At first the family went to "Forster City," near San Juan Capistrano. Because they could not get title to lands there, they were attracted to "Willmore City," at that time only recently surveyed by a Capt. Healey. That was the real beginning of Long Beach and the promoter, W. E. Willmore, was advertising for settlers.

Mrs. Bushong's father bought 20 acres at State Street and Perris Road (now Santa Fe Avenue), where they lived for five years. This farming district, near the present Silverado Park, was known as Cerritos Colony. Soon the various families (among them the Kincades, Wilhoits, Teels, Williamses, Tolles, Lewises, Saunderses, Prosises and others) realized the need for a school for their children.

In 1880, L. T. Hayes, of Wilmington, had bought 40 acres of the colony from Jotham Bixby and, on July 7, 1881, he deeded a site 270x290 feet, approximately an acre, for a school. This was rather "wild" country, with thickets of willow trees frequented by wildcats. Mrs. Bushong says that the boys used to throw stones up into the trees to make the "cats" hiss at them. One settler also declared that horse thieves had been hanged in this neighborhood.

SOME WILLOW TREES were cleared from the school grounds, and a plain, one-room frame building was erected. Some time afterwards, this was moved back on the lot and a larger room built in front of it. There was a well, with an old-fashioned pump on the grounds.

Robinson, Saunders and Lewis were the first trustees of this school district, which was bounded by the ocean, the Los Angeles River, the Dominguez School District and Alamitos Avenue. This pioneer Los Cerritos District School served nearby residents for several years as a center of activities, such as Sunday school and church services, evening entertainments, and socials.

Mrs. Bushong well remembers the teachers who taught there: Walter Cummings, Mrs. Zumwalt, the Misses Fitzmier, Remington and McLean. It was Walter Bailey who especially encouraged tree planting and used to give his pupils young trees as rewards of merit. Under his guidance, Mrs. Bushong planted the first eucalyptus on the grounds. Later, this tree and others were cut down when the street was widened. (Bailey afterwards taught the first high school classes in a building on Locust Avenue near Fourth Street before the first Long Beach high school was built at Eighth Street and American Avenue, now Long Beach Boulevard.

AT THE CLOSE of one school year, Mrs. Bushong received from her teacher, Carrie L. Remington, an autograph album, which she still has and treasures, as first prize for the highest standing and for perfect school attendance. In this old album her schoolmates wrote such sentiments as these:

"Of all the earthly music which reaches farthest (sic) into heaven is the beating of a loving heart."

"The truest music is found in making others happy."

"True friends are like diamonds, precious but rare;

"False ones, like autumn leaves found everywhere."

Mrs. Bushong recalls walking each day from her farm home about a quarter of a mile west and a mile north to school. En route she passed the home of the James Teel family.

A day she has never forgotten was Nov. 4, 1884, when Courtney Teel (an attorney in Los Angeles, and a brother of Ethel Teel Van Houton of this city) arrived at his parents' ranch home. He was the first boy born in the environs of Long Beach.

MRS. ROBINSON recalls that she and her friend, Callie Teel, were on their way home from school. Callie decided to stop at the Teel home to see her mother, who was staying with Mrs. Lulu Teel. Soon, Callie, quite excited, rushed out and told Katherine, "Lulu's got a baby! I'll go back and ask if we can see it." Soon the two little girls were in a very warm room, and saw just part of the swaddled baby's face. Outside again, they agreed that he wasn't too pretty!

The old school on W. Willow had had several names. When in the 1920s it was annexed to the Long Beach School District, it was "South Los Cerritos School," with grades 1 to 8. Later it became the "James A. Garfield," and finally the "Columbia," a special school for boys.

In May 1953, a $250 bond, the oldest outstanding bond of the city school district, was retired. It had been issued in 1913 by the old Cerritos School District. County Supervisor Burton Chace applied the match that destroyed the bond which had been drawing 5 per cent interest for 40 years.

THE BUILDING was to be abandoned as a school at the end of the term in 1948, and 11 men and women who had attended school there held a reunion. The former pupils sat in the modern seats, did sums, and drew a cartoon of the teacher on the board, making this "their goodby to the first public institution in Long Beach."

In 1959, the building was sold for a church building. Today the Willow Street Church of God occupies the site at 1455 W. Willow, a spot that deserves recognition in Long Beach history.

Descendant tells of life of famed frontier marshal

The Real Wyatt Earp

By Retta E. Ewers

Many views are taken of the career of Wyatt Earp and the kind of man he was, but he was a solemn type, seldom smiled, and was a rugged lawman.

WYATT EARP spent the early years of his life in Colton, Calif., in the home of his parents. His latter days were lived in the Colorado Desert, near Blythe. He was not the romantic adventurer portrayed on today's TV. Many who knew the marshal of Tombstone Territory thought he was a ruthless killer who hid behind the badge he wore.

On TV he is featured as a confirmed bachelor. In real life he was married twice, and his children and grandchildren live in the Southland today.

Morgan Earp, almost as famous as his brother, Wyatt, also left descendants, from one of whom we secured much of the information in this story. He lives in Riverside.

Before gaining fame as a lawman Wyatt had married. On his first job as marshal he took his wife with him to Tucson. He had two children, a boy and a girl. After the birth of the second child his wife died, leaving Wyatt with two small infants. Finding no one in Tucson to care for them he brought them to Santa Ana, and gave some friends $5,000 to care for them.

THIS FAMILY reared them as their own, even to changing their name. Today the woman lives in San Bernardino where she owns a dress shop. The son lives in Phoenix and operates a garage.

After the death of his wife, Wyatt apparently cared little for his own life and safety. He courted death in a hundred different ways and enforced the laws of his office perhaps more strictly than was necessary.

Later, Wyatt remarried, but had no more children so far as could be learned.

In 1875 he was appointed United States marshal of Tombstone Territory. He was joined by his two brothers, Morgan and Virgil, who became his deputies.

Simultaneously with the arrival of the Earps at Tombstone came Doc Holliday and Bat Masterson. The raw mining town now boasted of five of the fastest gunmen in all the West. They apparently had no desire to test their marksmanship against each other, and became known for the friendship that existed between them.

THE LAWLESS element strove against them, and many a battle was fought and men were killed, but the lawmen escaped with few injuries. The Clantons and the McLaurys, who operated nearby ranches, had long used their spreads to run stolen cattle across the Mexican border. They would push a herd across the line, rebrand them, bring them back into Arizona and perhaps sell them to the very men from whom they had been stolen.

It was this scheme that led to friction between the lawmen and the rustlers, and which culminated in the famous O. K. Corral fight which, in turn, brought the term "murderers" upon the heads of the lawmen.

After the Earps took office a new ruling became effective and mandatory. All men wearing guns had to remove them upon entering town and leave them in the saloon or at the hotel.

In trying to "relieve" Curly Bill Broceus of his weapons, Marshal White was accidentally killed. Virgil witnessed the shooting. Afterward he was appointed to fill White's post. At this time Tombstone boasted 65,000 population—reckless men out to find a quick fortune, either in the gold and silver mines, or via the saloons and gambling tables.

ONE DAY Doc Holliday rented a horse from the livery stable and rode off without telling anyone where he was going. The following morning the incoming stage was held up, robbed and the driver killed. One passenger swore he saw Doc Holliday in the group of robbers. When Doc arrived that evening he was arrested and placed behind bars.

Doc would not say where he had been, but denied any part in the holdup. "You should know me better than that, Wyatt," he said, hurt because of the mistrust of his friends.

"I don't believe you did, Doc," Wyatt replied. "That's why, I'm going bail for you to the tune of $5,000. But why won't you tell us where you were?"

"Well—I suppose you'll learn sooner or later. I went to Tucson. Played poker all night. So—how could I have held up the stage when I was just leavin' Tucson?"

One day two Clanton boys and two McLaurys came riding into town. They had just dismounted at the O. K. Corral when the Earps and Doc Holliday approached them. Morgan and Doc carried shotguns. Wyatt had his Buntline Special, and Virgil had his six-gun.

THE FEUD between the lawmen and the cattlemen had been brewing for a long while.

"You been wantin' a fight," Wyatt called out. "Now you can have it."

"We got no guns 'ceptin' the rifles on the saddle," a McLaury spoke. "We ain't hankerin' for a fight."

"Get your hands up," Wyatt ordered, with guns trained on the rustlers.

An unwise movement was made by a Clanton and the firing began. One of the Clanton boys got away by dodging into the doorway of the pool hall. Wyatt shot Frank McLaury as Doc's gun blasted Tom McLaury. Morgan shot Billy Clanton. Later searching proved that they had lied about not being armed since hidden guns were found on all three of the dead men.

It was from Morgan's grandson we secured the account of Wyatt's early life. Morgan was shot from ambush, through an open window, while playing pool in the room through which the Clanton boy escaped.

Threats had been made by a Frank Stillwell to kill Morgan, and this was the type of shooting he would resort to. With him were two renegade Indians. All promptly fled the vicinity.

A posse was quickly formed and started after them. One Indian was found acting as chore boy at a camp. He was disposed of without much ado. The other Indian, with Frank Stillwell, was found near Tucson, out of Wyatt's district. A fight ensued in which both the Indian and Stillwell were killed.

THE SHERIFF of Tucson, who had no love for the Earps, promptly

Bat Masterson was another Tombstone "fast gun" of Earp's time.

Hugh O'Brian is familiar to TV fans for his portrayals of Earp.

Dr. Leroy Hardy's job of masterminding enrollment at LBSC is like

Riding a Tiger Bareback

By Dr. Robert S. Lorch
Assistant Professor Long Beach State College

ONE WHO thinks college professors are cold-blooded when it comes to flunking students should see how stony-hearted students can be when it comes to detecting the faults of teachers.

Like the Finch jury, each class ominously sizes up its professor as the course wears on hour by hour. Students have sensitive antennae for doing this, and they are stingier with an A (for accolade) grade than any professor ever thought of being. As for Fs, students think nothing of marching a quarter of the faculty into the gas chamber of failure.

A professor with eight years of professional training and all the academic degrees may be condemned after eight minutes on the platform by savvy students.

On the other hand, there are a few greats on every campus whom students worship, teachers who make the long grind tolerable and exciting.

DR. LEROY C. HARDY appears to be among the worshiped at Long Beach State College. Recently he was voted the most popular professor at LBSC by officers of the senior class (ruthless judges after four years of harassment), who awarded him a cup inscribed "for outstanding service." Sensitive antennae have been picking up the message from Dr. Hardy since he arrived on the campus eight years ago. "He's tops!" is the verdict.

At 33, the senior political scientist at the college in point of service, Dr. Hardy cannot be dismissed as a scheduled scholar. A scholar, yes, and admittedly he has secluded hours, for he is the author of many articles on political subjects, and has a very secluded private library with more than 1,000 books stacked from floor to ceiling. But there is evidence that he comes out into broad daylight from time to time. Last year he made more than 100 speeches to clubs and groups of every description all over the metropolitan area. Furthermore, his reputation for telling jokes and singing songs at the Sigma Pi fraternity (he's the adviser) is no longer secret.

More than 10,000 students attend LBSC. By the most complex process known to man, this throng is enrolled each semester at "registration time" into nearly 2,000 classes. Registration week (Sept. 14-16) is the most critical, harried and maddening time in the life of the college. Mastermind and boss of this whole complicated affair is Dr. Hardy, whom Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, LBSC president, has appointed coordinator of registration. The job is like riding a tiger bareback. Hardy stays on top without unduly aggravating the great beast, a supreme test for administrative talent. Students no less than faculty are obliged for humane guidance through this time of misery.

LBSC senior class trophy for outstanding service is received by Dr. Leroy C. Hardy, associate professor of political science, from Patsy Funck of the class.

DR. HARDY played a key role this year in carving the face of California into 80 assembly districts. This job took

Dr. Hardy masterminds the incredibly complex job of enrolling 10,000 students in 2,000 classes, and the critical week of registration is almost at hand once more.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

It's the Individual Touch Does It

Filigreed wooden shutters placed above the stove close off the family room from the Harold Natheson home from the work area. Low chairs serve a bar along panelled wall.

By Stella George

WHEN is a tract home not a tract home? When it has the small individual touches that tailor it to the owners' needs, it truly becomes a custom-built house, regardless of size. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Natheson, 13341 Danvers St., Westminster, is such a home.

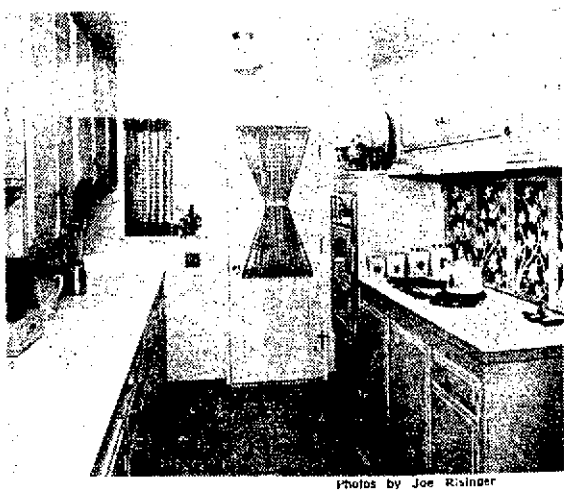

During the time the house was being built, the new owners made certain changes that would customize it to their particular preferences. For example, washer and dryer were supposed to stand beside the sink. The Natheson desired to have these appliances in the garage, and used the resulting space for additional sink and work area.

Another cabinet in the kitchen was made larger to accommodate the stove which now looks more like an attractive accessory than a very necessary appliance. Further changes in the original plan include a front door of stained glass and natural wood, a shutter door between the living room and hall, and extensive and highly decorative stone work in the front and side of the home.

A MINOR, but very important change was the conversion of an intended broom closet between the kitchen and family room into a compact pantry with horse-shoe shaped shelves. Everything inside can be seen and obtained easily.

The entry, although small, has touches of luxury. Apart from the stained glass door, there is fine marble on the floor, and a tall artificial willow tree stands in one corner, its trunk and branches of particular interest to visitors because, through a strange quirk of fate, there is evidence that it has tried to grow again. Flowers are, of course, completely artificial.

The living room is done in French Provincial with a touch of the Orient. Twin chairs flank the fireplace. They are large, comfortable and quilted, featuring an orchid flowered print. The couch is orange, with touches of orange elsewhere in the room in the form of pillows and flowers. An heirloom needlepoint chair is near a marble-topped fruitwood table. Like the family room adjoining, glass doors open onto the patio in the rear.

Photos by Joe Risinger

Large working area at left was made possible by removing the washer and dryer from original plan to garage.

Although small, the entry hall at left rear is made attractive by stained glass, marble and tree in urn.

THE FAMILY ROOM has a couch and TV, and low chairs serve a bar which faces the kitchen. Filigreed wood shutters, extremely decorative, can be drawn above the bar to afford privacy in the kitchen. They are just above the stove itself. The pantry mentioned before adds to the convenience of the kitchen area.

Accessories add interesting touches to the family room. For example, the coffee table is hammered brass. A rattan server holds an heirloom samovar of gleaming copper.

The boys' room has typical necessities and many extras. The headboard above one bed is actually a storage place for treasures — with pegboard doors performing their function well.

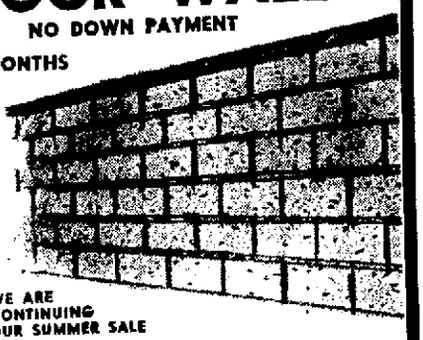

A roof covers the wide patio area beyond the living room and den. The cement slab is practical for outside entertaining. Beyond the slab is a wide garden.

The entire home represents careful attention to detail.

Stone trim in front and on the side adds an individual touch to exterior of otherwise regular design home.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Ten-Rooms-Plus on a Budget

Rental apartment upstairs is one of the special features of the narrow-lot, one-and-a-half-story home. It has six rooms and 1,514 square feet of space on the first floor.

By David L. Bowen

THIS HOUSE was designed for a man with a problem common to the vast majority of home-seeking Americans: limited financial resources and a growing family.

It was built at 143-08 Oak Ave. in the Flushing section of New York City by John Bartone, who could do something more than dream about the kind of home he would like to build. He is a member of the staff of Samuel Paul, House of the Week architect, who produces dozens of residential designs each year.

The home has 10 rooms on its first and second floors. Bartone had the home put up and both of these levels finished for $23,175.

"BECAUSE of Mr. Bartone's experience and the fact his work is connected with the building trade, savings were possible in his case which could not be duplicated by the average person," Paul explained. "However, I would estimate this saving at about 10 per cent — which would bring the price for the average man to about $25,500. If only the main level was finished, the figure would drop considerably."

The problem of design started with land. In the metropolitan New York area, building lots are hard to come by and their cost skyrockets with size. The Bartones purchased a 40 by 100-foot site. The house had to fit it.

THE GENERAL specifications were three bedrooms, large kitchen, dining room, living room, two baths and garage. Although space was to be provided for a game room and a study, these could be left unfinished originally. An additional requirement was space for expansion should there be an increase in the size of the family.

B-49 in the House of the Week series is the solution to this list of demands. It is a narrow-lot story and one-half, with basement raised high enough to make basement rooms completely comfortable. The attic floor is available for family use at some time in the future, but as an especially welcome bonus can be developed immediately as an income-producing apartment. Thus while the owner's family is small and rental income desirable, the house can be made to help pay for itself. As the owner's requirement for space increases and his need for extra income decreases, he can take over the second floor.

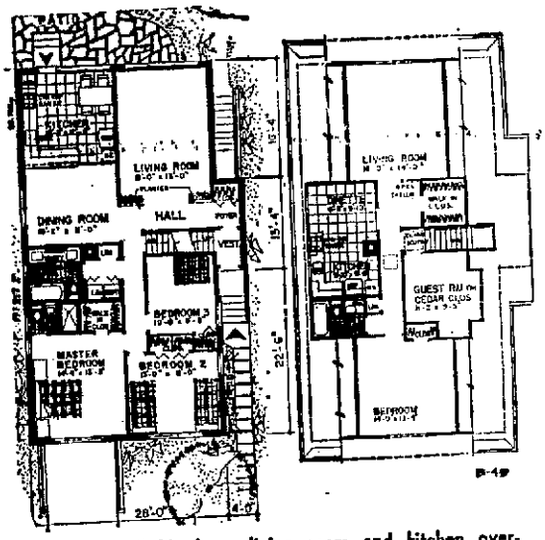

The over-all dimensions are 32 feet in width by 52 feet, 2 inches in depth. There are six rooms on the first floor, another four on the roomy attic level, and a large playroom and study or hobby room in the basement.

LIVING AREA on the first floor is 1,514 square feet with another 895 on the second floor.

The main entrance is at the side, about halfway back from the front. The entrance has an enclosed vestibule serving both the apartment stairs (for tenant's use) and

In her new kitchen, Mrs. John Bartone of New York City can oversee the homework of two sons. Her husband is on staff of House of the Week Architect Paul.

Bedrooms in this section have been placed towards the front of the house, permitting both kitchen and living room to overlook the rear yard.

The large master bedroom has its own bath complete with stall shower and deep walk-in closet. There are two other bedrooms for children served by the main bath. Just in front of the main bath, a laundry is concealed behind a folding partition to save the housewife steps down to the cellar.

ON THE SECOND floor, Bartone chose to make a one-bedroom apartment with a kitchen-dinette unit and a large living room. He reserved the small room opening on the stairs for use as a storage closet and expects to finish it at a later date as a guest room or additional bedroom.

The basement is accessible either through the main apartment or an outside entrance at the rear. It contains a large playroom, storage wall, a heater and laundry room, lavatory, study and one-car garage. The heater room is spacious enough to provide laundry space for the tenant, if he should desire it.

Soda stand helps assure happy play days at home.

TODAY'S PROJECT: A back yard soda stand for small children which can be stored during winter months.

WILLIAM MEYER-RIECKS, Huntington, N. Y., designer, explains:

One of childhood's sheer joys is setting up for business in your very own lemonade stand. And naturally, the more realistic the stand, the more fun it is to play grown-up.

The Junior Soda Stand shown in the illustration has important advantages in addition to its real-life atmosphere. The basic construction is tempered hardboard nailed and glued to simple 1x2 frames. These panels—front, sides and roof—are then bolted together at the four posts. The result is completely solid, yet it takes only a few minutes to remove the bolts and store the entire unit away in sections for the winter.

Gay colors and the scalloped hardboard fringe at top insure that the stand will be an attractive addition to any backyard. Scaled to little people, it is 4 feet wide and 3 feet deep. Headroom at the front is roughly 5 feet.

To order, specify Junior Soda Stand Plan S-20 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Build This Relaxing Chaise

COMFORTABLE outdoor chaise that will yield hours of ease will reward well the home workman who expends the small amount of energy necessary to build it.

Any inexperienced person can build the chaise, and be assured it's really comfortable. You will notice it has a contour-shaped seat to fit all postures. The back is adjustable, the wheels make it easy to move and the wood is stock lumber available everywhere. The pattern for building the chaise is full size.

To order, specify full-sized chaise pattern No. 125 and send name and address and 75 cents in coin to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Amanda Blake, better known as Kitty of CBS television series, "Gunsmoke," demonstrates easily built chaise.

Upton Sinclair, 83, at It Again!

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

AT THE AGE of 83, Upton Sinclair still is turning out books!

The Pulitzer prize-winning novelist, former Long Beach resident who for some years has lived in Monrovia, is the author of a new novel, not of muck-raking but of conventions, "AFFECTIONATELY, EVE" (Twayne, ($3.75.)

Helping a friend move, Sinclair found on a shelf an old tin box the size of a small crackerbox, wired and sealed with wax. It contained, explained the owner, a series of letters she wrote Georgia friends and relatives when as a girl she went to New York to commission a statue for the Daughters of the Confederacy and remained to pose for the artist—"not in the altogether," she explained hastily.

Sinclair laughed heartily over the naive letters and persuaded her to let him publish them. She protested there must be no clues to her identity "because what would Mama and Papa think?"

Sinclair assured her they probably already guessed the worst.

Eve's identity is concealed—and Sinclair asks readers of Affectionately, Eve, not to even try to guess who she is.

The letters, in chatty, breathless style recount the adventures of the "Georgia peach" in Greenwich Village, her struggles with snow, with artists, with swains. The book ends with a wedding, and Eve's Mama and Papa must have thought it was about time!

No one, perhaps even Upton Sinclair himself, knows how many books he has written, but it is established that he is America's most widely translated author. His works appear in 60 languages in 55 countries. He was nominated for the Nobel prize and won the Pulitzer prize for "Dragon's Teeth," one of the Lanny Budd series which he started after he was 60 years old.

CLIFFORD IRVING
Turbulent cattle and mining country of 19th Century New Mexico is the scene of Irving's new novel, "THE VALLEY," the struggle for power in a family (McGraw-Hill, $4.95).

MENCKEN, the correspondent, had become a legend long before his death. A busy man, he nevertheless answered every letter within 24 hours after he received it. Fascinating epistles are gathered in "LETTERS OF H. L. MENCKEN" selected and annotated by Guy J. Forgue (Knopf, $7.95).

Included are letters to Theodore Dreiser, James Joyce, Louis Untermeyer, Carl Van Vechten, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Sinclair Lewis, Upton Sinclair, Edgar Lee Masters.

Russia Today

In "HOUSE WITHOUT A ROOF," Maurice Hindus, who knows Russia and the Russian people intimately, writes about the country as it is today, 43 years after the Revolution (Doubleday, $4.95).

Born in Russia, Hindus came to this country in 1905, returned there as a journalist and war correspondent, and has visited the Soviet Union twice since the death of Stalin, once in 1958 and again last year.

"House Without a Roof" is a book about accomplishments, cynical betrayals, selfless idealism, ruthless aggrandizement, ceaseless crusades against religion.

Throughout the pages, Soviet humanity passes in review—men, women, peasants, workers, intellectuals, Usbecks, Jews, Siberians, Cossacks and the restless and questioning younger generation.

The reader discovers a new Siberia, a country of vast natural resources and rugged people, of hunters and fishermen, of Canadian muskrat and American mink and of a drug to combat sexual impotence.

Above all else, "House Without a Roof" is a human story of four decades of turmoil and today's results—a valuable book for the present and the future.

A PHASE of the birth of Israel written from a new viewpoint is the novel "WHAT SHIP? WHERE BOUND?" by Shepard Rifkin (Knopf, $3.95). The viewpoint is that of the ill-assorted crew of the shabby ship Felicidad running displaced persons through the British blockade to Palestine. Despite the crude nature of the men who manned the old ship in America, they incredibly made her almost seaworthy and before the voyage to the Promised Land was over had established themselves as heroes.

Under the disparaging circumstances less earthy and expedient men just wouldn't have accomplished the feat of transporting 600 refugees from Europe to Palestine in 1947, the author makes clear before the end of the suspenseful story. A beautiful touch is Levine, member of the crew and an old sailor at the end of his days, disguising himself as a refugee to join the immigrants to the borning country of Israel.

THE SORDID TALE of what happens when four GIs assault a 16-year-old German girl isn't calculated to make the State Department jump with glee. Rather, it is fodder for Communist propaganda. But you may be interested in "TOWN WITHOUT PITY" by Manfred Gregor (Random House, $3.95).

Story of American Firearms

ASSEMBLYMAN Charles Edward Chapel of Inglewood, who for 40 years has collected historical guns and has written about them a good deal of that time, is the author of "GUNS OF THE OLD WEST: The Definitive Book on the Firearms That Opened the Frontier and Conquered the American West" (Coward-McCann, $12.50).

Chapel points out that from 1775 to the end of the 19th Century—from the opening of land beyond the Alleghenies to the securing of most territory to the West Coast—the story of American firearms is an integral part of our country's history.

"Guns of the Old West" describes and illustrates these weapons: shoulder arms, hand guns, percussion and cartridge, military and private. In addition, it tells the exciting stories of men who needed rifles to provide food and furs, weapons to protect them from hostile Indians, guns to protect their homes in brawling settlements.

Special attention is given the Kentucky rifle in the Revolution and the War of 1812; the repeating rifle in the Civil War and Indian hostilities; the Sharp's rifle and the great buffalo hunts; the Colt revolver, standby of cowboy and outlaw, and the Winchester rifle, and the opening of the West.

You Can Influence Others With Your Thinking!

TRY it some time. Concentrate intently upon another person seated in a room with you, without his noticing it. Observe him gradually become restless and finally turn and look in your direction. Simple—yet it is a positive demonstration that thought generates a mental energy which can be projected from your mind to the consciousness of another. Do you realize how much of your success and happiness in life depends upon your influencing others? Is it not important to you to have others understand your point of view—to be receptive to your proposals?

Demonstrable Facts

How many times have you wished there were some way you could impress another favorably—get across to him or her your ideas? That thoughts can be transmitted, received and understood by others is now scientifically demonstrable. The tales of miraculous accomplishments of mind by the ancients are now known to be fact—not fable. The method whereby these things can be intentionally, not accidentally, accomplished has been a secret long cherished by the Rosicrucians—one of the schools of ancient wisdom existing throughout the world. To thousands everywhere, for centuries, the Rosicrucians have privately taught this nearly-lost art of the practical use of mind power.

This Free Book Points Out the Way

The Rosicrucians (not a religious organization) invite you to explore the powers of your mind. Their sensible, simple suggestions have caused intelligent men and women to soar to new heights of accomplishment. They will show you how to use your natural forces and talents to do things you now think are beyond your ability. Use the coupon below and send for a copy of the fascinating sealed free book, "The Mastery of Life," which explains how you may receive this unique wisdom and benefit by its application to your daily affairs.

Solvang to Celebrate

—meaning "welcome"—are to be heard from the gaily costumed natives. Women in full skirts, tiny bonnets, men in knee breeches, and short coats, whirl about the streets.

The celebration is usually opened with an Aebleskive breakfast on Copenhagen Drive. Music and dancing follow, ending with evening programs in Atterdag Bowl.

During the winter celebration of Fastelavn's Fest, which marks the advent of Lent, children (according to old tradition) trim branches with gaily colored ribbons, fashion them into switches, and lightly switch their parents.

In the past, men had their part in ring-riding, pounding down a course on horseback, they would spear rings from a pole. It is said the idea of brass rings on a merry-go-round stemmed from this game.

However, this dangerous game has now been eliminated from the program, replaced by another contest: Slaa Katten ad Tonden (hitting the cat out of the barrel). The first man to break open the barrel is proclaimed King of the Festival. Even this sport has been modified from ancient days when a live cat would leap from its wooden prison. Instead a treat of oranges, apples and candy is the reward.

TOURISTS who hoped to participate in "Danish Days" last year were doomed to disappointment, as the annual celebration was not held. According to the town council, Solvang will commemorate its 50th anniversary this year on Sept. 22-24.

There are modern motels and hotels for guests wishing to stay for the festivities. Nearby Lake Cachuma provides areas for trailers or camping. Reservations may be made in advance for accommodations in the town of Solvang.

If you wish to visit this olden-modern town as well as Atterdag College, whose rooms still echo the whispering of ancient doctrines once taught there, then follow Highway 101 from Los Angeles to the turnoff on Highway 150, over San Marcos Pass, and down into the lush Santa Ynez Valley.

You will know you have reached your destination when you hear the cries of "Velkommen to Solvang."

him by air and auto to Sacramento 30 or 40 times, where he served as chief consultant to the state assembly committee on elections and reapportionment.

Even the most popular professor has detractors. Some of his critics assert that he soiled his hands helping the Democrats "gerrymander" the state. His answer: "Ten years ago I helped the Republicans." His critics say he is too busy in practical politics to be a good teacher. His answer: "To do a good job teaching government you need some experience in it." His critics say he should play less politics and have more regard for ideals. His answer: "Ideals aren't much good unless you play politics to put them over." His critics say he has many foes. His answer: "Anyone who does anything has foes."

His foes do not include the senior class of 1961. Dr. Hardy says he'll keep their trophy on his desk.

Baked stuffed halibut steaks make a tasty, attractive main dish for dinner. For 4 servings, 1¼ to 1½ pounds.

Variety for Halibut

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

HALIBUT steaks, baked and stuffed, are delicious and attractive. If the steaks are small, plan on four whole steaks for four servings. If the steaks are large, four half steaks may be sufficient. An easy rule to remember is that one pound of halibut will serve three. So for the recipe below, buy from one and a quarter to one and a half pounds for serving four.

Baked, Stuffed Halibut Steaks

4 small halibut steaks, or 4 large steak halves, fresh or frozen
6 tblsps finely chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ tsp. dried marjoram crumbled
¼ tsp. dried thyme
1 tsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
3 cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup finely chopped toasted almonds
¼ cup milk
paprika

If halibut is frozen, let thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Place two steaks on bottom of a greased shallow ovenware serving dish. Saute onion in butter or margarine. Add herbs, salt, pepper, bread crumbs and almonds. Mix well and moisten with milk. Spoon part of stuffing over fish and make tiny balls from remaining stuffing to place around fish. Cover fish in dish with remaining fish steaks. Brush tops with lemon butter (2 teaspoons lemon juice in ¼ cup melted butter), retaining some for basting while cooking. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven 375 degrees 30 minutes. Serve garnished with lemon slices and sprigs of parsley. Makes 4 servings.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give brief genealogy on DAILY and DAYLEY.—M.D., G.M., Long Beach.

M.D., G.M.: DAILY and DAYLEY are from the Gaelic Irish "Dalac." This historic name has the unusual interpretation "Frequenter of Assemblies," indicating a family progenitor who daily attended religious, political or philosophical discussions. Dalac's sons assumed the clan name O'Dalac, later converted to Daily and Dayley. Dalac was a descendant of Maine, son of Niall of the Nine Hostages, great 10th century Irish king. The O'Dalacs were natives of Westmeath in the center of Erin. The Daily coat-of-arms has three silver crescents on a blue shield; that for Dayley has three gold buck-deer heads on a red background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like to know about TOMANY. —H. W., Long Beach.

H. W.: TOMANY is an American spelling of the Italian name Tomani. The source was Tomasini, abbreviated by omission of several letters, meaning "Little Thomas." The Biblical "Thomas" meant "Twin." The Tomani coat-of-arms from Milan, Italy, has a silver castle in the center of a blue shield. At the top of the shield are three golden fleurs-de-lis below a red cross.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the genealogy on KENADY and CANADAY.—Mrs. E. L., G. R., Long Beach.

E. L., G. R.: KENADY and CANADAY are spelling variations of KENNEDY. Kennedy had its roots in both Scotland and Ireland. The ancient Gaelic meaning of these names is disputed. All are variations, however, of the word "Cinneide" meaning "Helmetedhead," or from "Ceann-Eidigh" meaning "Ugly Chief." Scotch Kennedys descended from Roland Kennedy of Ayrshire who in 1250 was declared "Caput totius progeniei suae" or "Sole head of his progeny." In all, 24 generations of Kennedys have lived on the family estate at Carrick, Ayrshire. The clan coat-of-arms has three black crosses and a red chevron on a silver shield. Irish Kennedys were the Clan O'Cinneide of County Clare, all descended from Cinneidig, nephew of King Brian Boru who died in 1014. Adam Canaday was a south Pennsylvania land owner in 1711.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on PETTIT.—Mrs. D. L., J. P., Long Beach.

D. L., J. P.: PETTIT had its inception when the Norman-French conquered England in 1066. The source, from the French word "Petit," meant "of short stature." The 13th century Hundred Rolls parchments list Robert Petet, Hamo Petit and Roger Petyt. There were no established rules for spelling at that time. The Pettit coat-of-arms has three silver leopard heads on a blue shield. Pettit descendants were early 18th century settlers of Long Island, New York.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze MILLER. — E. M., Long Beach; D. M., Wilmington.

E. M., D. M.: MILLER was a term applied to the miller of flour in medieval Britain. Later it was assumed as a surname. Early day millers took pride in handing down their trade name to descendants, for they were honored for their profession by fellow townsmen and their king. The Miller coat-of-arms has three red wolf heads on an ermine covered shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish history on JASINSKI and JASIONEK.—Mrs. J. H., Mrs. F. J., Long Beach.

J. H., F. J.: JASINSKI and JASIONEK both refer to ancestors from Slavic central Europe. Jasinski is Polish, translating as "From the place of the oak trees." Jasionek is from Yugoslavia, with a similar meaning, "Son of the resident at the oak forest."

Potions, Posies and Folklore

By Betty Hardesty

MODERN NAMES of many Southland flowers reflect their folklore sources as Old World herbs.

Pansy comes from the French "pensee" given the tricolored violet of old Europe. It is still also sometimes called Heartsease from a concoction made from it to cure pangs of love. If the sad lover "was going into a decline" she was also fed an extract of Rue, the appropriate name given the herb with pink and white flowers.

Folklore, however, gave digitalis, still used for serious heart ailments, the fanciful name of Foxglove which was first written in old English "Foxes glofa." These tall spikes of rose, white and lavender have had medical importance for ages.

THE NAME "stock" is only a few centuries old, having been derived from the resemblance of the stiffly flared petals to the distinctive collars called stocks which men wore in Shakespeare's time. Both the stock and wallflower are members of the mustard or crucifer family of plants. The word "crucifer" refers to the cross-like appearance of the four petals of the wild type. The common wild mustard as well as the condiment got its name from the must or new, unfermented wine with which it was mixed in preparation.

Lice and fleas plagued ancient and medieval people so they used the dried heads of the chrysanthemums to obtain pyrethrum known to Southlanders in garden insect sprays. South American Cholos Indians who live in the Andes still rub fresh mums on their skins to control such insects and relieve "nervousness" in infants.

Pansy (or pensee) once was used to cure the lovelorn.

PINCUSHION flowers are obviously named for their full-of-pins appearance and prickly seed pods. But the species name, Scabiosa, is a linguistic legacy of that lusty period of history when bathing was a luxury and considered an affectation. It is understandable that this plant was cultivated as a cure for the "scabies" or itch.

Without her bath, a lady used the sweet-scented orris root both as a perfume and a dusting powder. The word "orris" is a corruption of our modern word iris. There is a long list of flowers which were first cultivated for perfume and toilet water as a substitute for soap and water. There were also many plants which, when rubbed in water, made soap-like lather. Europeans had a flower species of Saponaria or soapwort which came to America with them and is seen most often today as a roadside flowering weed called Bouncing Bet. To appreciate the source of this name calls for imagination. A dictionary of 18th century English slang explains it as being called formerly Bouncing Betsy because of its association with the family wash. It is associated with a rear view of a laundress bent over a washboard vigorously scrubbing clothes.

Stocks drew their name from similarity to men's collars.

Here's Danger!

Nervous motorists and motorists pulling trailers should definitely not travel over the Big Oak Flat Road to Yosemite, the Automobile Club of Southern California cautions. Heavy and rough construction is in progress (State Rt. 120).

Regardless of construction, however, motorists should be aware that east of Jacksonville the road becomes slow and winding to the park boundary. From the boundary, the next eight miles to Crane Flat is a very narrow oiled road with tight curves and steep grades.

TOKYO.

"... any special health advice needed for a round-the-Pacific cruise?"

CRUISE SHIPS' doctors advise all passengers on health precautions from port to port. Prescription pharmacies with American drugs are in all ports.

A cholera series should be taken—the Far East epidemic seems to be controlled. But nobody knows what's going on in China or what might spill over the borders again.

You need a smallpox vaccination. With a certificate dated within the last three years — to land in some countries and absolutely to get back into the U. S.

Have your local Public Health office validate your doctor's signature. I went into Australia without it once. And they bayonetted me again at the airport.

An odd thing: Any kind of drug is sold without prescription in Japan and the Philippines.

"... the places to get clothing made in Hong Kong?"

THERE ARE dozens and dozens of tailors. I use Original Jimmy Chen on the Kowloon side. I'd avoid anybody who says they'll do a suit in 24 hours.

This is a myth. They do it in 24 hours and it looks like it.

Allow 5 days and 5 fittings minimum.

"... a hotel in Manila if we stay overnight?"

The Manila Hotel on the Luneta Park always seemed best to me. Quite a line of jumping night clubs along Dewey Boulevard nearby. Open 24 hours. Try one about breakfast time.

"... can we get American cigarettes?"

BEST BUY will be on your cruise ship. Shouldn't be more than 25 cents a package. (They sell them to the crew for 10. No tax.)

"... what to do during two-day layover in Yokohama?"

I'd pack a small bag and catch the electric train for Tokyo — one hour. Yokohama's not much of a town unless you're a seaman.

Get a reservation first by phone. Tokyo's always crowded. The new Hotel New Japan, the older Imperial, or the Nikkatsu are all good and have English-speaking help.

"... any good buys in Tahiti or Samoa?"

I NEVER SAW anything except some good shell necklaces and rakish, some-enchanted-evening straw hats.

There's some good tortoise-shell work in Suva, Fijis.

"Do I need a visa for Yugoslavia? ... What about hotels?"

You need a visa. Columnist Herb Caen flipped over Dubrovnik. He stayed at the Argentina and liked it fine. Best time to go is April to October for the coast. In Belgrade the best hotels are the Metropol, Majestic, Moskva or Excelsior, $7 to $10 a day, American plan.

For yachtsmen who want to take a look at the Southern Cross, and learn advanced navigation at the same time, Matson has a special cruise to the South Seas and Australia, leaving November 3. It's led by America's Cup winner, Captain Fred Lawton.

Here's a new gadget that sounds interesting — Tape Tours in Honolulu. Rent a small, open car equipped with a tape recorder. A map marks the places where you operate the tape for background information on high lights of the drive. Tropical Tape Tours, 328 Hawaiian Ave., Honolulu, has the information.

Artist Retreat in Taxco

Perched atop a winding side street about Taxco's main plaza is the home of the Mexican town's most prominent artist, Fidel Figueroa.

The house is furnished with antiques and early dated art objects with the main salon used as a studio. Here visitors weave among stacks of portraits and Mexican landscapes done in vivid oils and water colors.

Although now partly modernized, the home's unique old architecture is still apparent. Originally built during one of Mexico's uprisings, the house had 26 rooms, two windows, and contained a maze of passages and strange constructions.

Because the house is said to have been built by forced labor, Mexicans have labeled it La Casa de Las Lagrimas, The House of Tears. Symbolizing this name, a painting entitled the Madonna of Tears hangs above the household shrine. This tragic but beautiful madonna weeps what are actually exquisite opals set into her cheeks.

Up and Down the Vineyard Trail

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Travel Editor

IN 1769, at Mission San Diego near the Mexican border, Father Junipero Serra planted the first vineyard in Western America.

Today the California vineyard trail stretches for more than 800 miles, from the sandaled padre's first mission to a picturesque old winery in the mountains of Humboldt County — 461,890 lush acres in 48 counties.

Along this time-worn trail are more than 270 wineries which produce 85 per cent of all wine made and consumed in the United States. Some are within easy driving distance from Long Beach and a visit to any one of them at this season of the year—particularly if you like wine—is a pleasant experience.

Visitors enter a vine-covered winery near Cucamonga.

GENERALLY SPEAKING, wineries easiest to reach from here are more or less grouped in the Cucamonga-Etiwanda-Ontario-Guasti area, a few even closer; but if you wish to drive as far as Escondido, you'll find still others.

You'll enjoy every minute of your drive through a countryside laden with vineyards to these places where, step by step, the ripe grapes are transformed into rich wines and champagnes.

Visitors are invited to witness this transformation, of course, with guides explaining each step in the process. Often, you're invited to indulge in winebibbing. Many of the wineries even have barbecue and picnic facilities to make your outing even more pleasant.

ROUTE MAPS, tour schedules and other information designed to facilitate such an excursion is available from Wine Institute, 717 Market St., San Francisco 3. But, in case you don't wish to wait for this material, here are a few wineries—all open Saturdays and Sundays — in the Southland:

Assumption Abbey Winery, Guasti; south of San Bernardino Freeway, one-fourth mile on Archibald Ave.; open daily 8-6.

Louis Cherpin Winery, Fontana, 15567 Valley Blvd. (Hwy. 99); daily 8-5.

Cucamonga Top Winery, Etiwanda, 12737 Foothill Blvd. (Hwy. 66); daily 8-8.

Masi Winery, Cucamonga, 11827 Foothill Blvd. (Hwy. 66); Sunday-Wednesday 10-4; Friday-Saturday 9-9.

Regina Grape Products, Etiwanda, south side of Base Line St., seven-tenths mile west of Etiwanda Ave.; daily 10-8.

Thomas Vinewards, Cucamonga, 8916 Foothill Blvd. and Vineyard Ave.; daily 8-6.

In the Escondido area is the Ferarra Winery, 1120 W. 15th St., west from S. San Diego Blvd.; daily 10-5.

San Antonio Winery, 737 Lamar St., Los Angeles, invites visitors from 10-12 and 2-5 daily.

TRAVEL AGENTS get a break Monday when approximately 100 of Hawaii's hotel executives and their wives, plus 10 top Hawaiian entertainers, will carry the islands' Aloha to Los Angeles' Statler-Hilton at a cocktail reception and show. Sponsored jointly by the Hawaii Hotel Association and Hawaii Visitors Bureau, the entertainment group will include Joe Kahaulelio, singer-dancer-musician; Andy Cummings, recording star and guitarist; Mae Beimes, hula dancer and model; Rose Marie Alvaro, Hawaii Visitors Bureau poster girl, and a covey of hula girls.

GOING PLACES

With the Sloanes

THERE'S a travel trick for many a hobbled vacationist who feels he can't leave the office, the store or the shop, or whose financial status is too badly bent to roam afar.

The idea is to travel at home—and that doesn't mean fretting away the day in a back yard hammock. We're talking about doing just what all those out-of-town license plates have traveled hundreds of miles to do right in your neck of the woods. Only you can do it in a day, a weekend or a week.

Pretend you live in another part of the country. What would you do if you were a tourist here? Try these for size:

1. Check into one of those luxurious new nearby motor hotels with air conditioned rooms, a swimming pool and a fancy restaurant.

Expensive? Whatever it costs, it's less than it would be if you had to invest in half a dozen tanks of gas, two grease jobs and oil changes and enough in highway tolls to buy a mile of road, all just to get there.

And when you run out of money, go home. Think: no making beds, no cooking, no dishes and no need to check out at 7 a.m. to beat the traffic.

2. If you're in the nary (or hardly) a bit of money class, and want to sleep and eat at home, try exploring your own part of the country within a day's round trip distance of where you live. Honestly, have you ever really done it properly?

Get off those crowded, antiseptic turnpikes and onto the back roads that no one seems to use any more. You'll find lots of interesting scenery to view, things to do, people to meet, picnic spots to enjoy.

3. Ride a city bus through town. Silly? Not so. It's amazing what you can see for a quarter that you can't see when you're dodging bumpers and shifting gears through city traffic.

We've gaped at new construction, seen stately old mansions we swear we never knew existed, spotted unique shops (an iron monger, a cigar maker, a candy butcher). Try it.

Abroad we marvel our way through museums and art galleries but blithely scoot by those we may pass on our way to work every day. Our country is full of them, many as distinguished as those in Europe and often more specialized. All are fascinating, inexpensive to visit and—best of all — somewhere near where you live.

4. Visit an airport. It's a busman's holiday for us but never fails to fascinate us. In many cities sightseeing trips are available for a few dollars; these are often operated by scheduled airlines in regular passenger planes.

5. Drop down to the waterfront and take a harbor tour. If you haven't done it, it will open your eyes. If you have, it's fun to try it again.

6. Sportsman? Now that you have the time off, try another golf course. It may work wonders for your game. Or try fishing someplace else. It may change your luck.

7. Camping? Camp grounds within tent-pitching distance of home are also drawing visitors who may have traveled clear across the country to get there.

8. Gourmet? Visitors drive as far from their hotels—let alone their homes — as you would have to from where you live to sample the better restaurants in your part of the country.

9. Natural attractions? You may live near a national or state park preserve or a monument that you've never visited. And a quick look at a road map from the corner filling station will find you places of unusual interest we'll bet you never knew existed.

10. Think! You can think up more ideas; those above are just to get you in gear!

Pan Am Photo

SHOWPLACE OF VADUZ, capital of the principality of Liechtenstein, is the royal castle perched high on a cliff above the town. It now contains a multi-million dollar collection of art and armor. The tiny kingdom, 62 miles square, lies along the banks of the Upper Rhine, between Austria and Switzerland.

More Travel

More travelers from abroad are discovering Germany in winter, according to figures for the months of October to March of last season just released by the German Tourist Information Office.

Total overnight reservations at hotels in 2,364 tourist centers were up 6 per cent over the same period the previous year. Registrations by travelers from countries other than Germany increased 8 per cent. At the same time, big cities, spas and winter sports resorts showed an even greater increase in number of visitors.

now—your dog can take pills to stay tick and flea free all season long

imagine a pill that kills fleas, lice, even ticks

Veterinarians now have ECTORAL, the incredible new pill your dog simply takes with his food. ECTORAL works from the inside out to kill fleas, lice, even ticks that come in contact with your dog. Just one dose of ECTORAL every week can control these parasites all season long.

ECTORAL is the worst news external parasites ever had—an extraordinarily effective way to get rid of ticks, fleas and lice. It was tested for over two years by veterinarians in every region of the United States. Even though ECTORAL is more effective, it is just as economical as old-fashioned powders or sprays—and far more convenient.

During warm weather, disease-carrying parasites lurk everywhere, waiting to attack your dog. Ticks hide in weeds and brush. Fleas hide between floor boards, in the dog's bedding, under rugs. And any passing dog may be carrying these parasites.

Now—all season long—you can keep these troublesome, dangerous pests under control—with ECTORAL. Your veterinarian will tell you how to use ECTORAL. (You can find his address under "Veterinarians" in the yellow pages of the telephone directory.)

PET PARADE

Doberman Pinschers are superb animals, keen of nose, bold, inquisitive, easily disciplined and quick to learn.

Dogs, Cats on Parade

By Eleanor Avery Price

THIS SEASON is always a busy one show-wise. Today for instance, hundreds of Doberman pinscher fanciers will collect at Stoner Playground, 1831 Stoner Ave., West Los Angeles, for the Los Angeles Doberman Pinscher Club specialty. Among Dobes to be exhibited will be Champion Haydenhill's Calais, a best in show winner owned by Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hayden of Beverly Hills. Calais is pictured with this article.

Next Saturday and Sunday, cat fanciers will trek to the Electric Building, Balboa Park, San Diego, for the Silvergate Cat Club show. On Sept. 23, the California Associated Specialty Club will present its big event at Hollywood Turf Grounds, and on Sept. 24, Santa Ana Valley Kennel Club stages its second benched show at Orange County Fairgrounds.

THE HOT dry summer has been hard on your dog. Check his ears for accumulation of wax and dirt in which ear mites thrive. Clean them carefully with cotton squeezed in warm mineral oil. Look at his toenails. If they have grown rapidly during "lazy days," trim them immediately, being careful not to cut into the "quick." If his teeth are yellow, give him a big knuckle bone to chomp on to help clean his teeth, or better yet, take him for a professional tooth scraping. Check his skin carefully. Now is a good time for a real antiseptic bath.

Your dog may have been spoiled during the summer having the children home to keep him entertained, and he may put up a big fuss during school hours. He is blameless, of course, but do everything you can to help him readjust. If he must remain alone in the yard a good part of the time, you should try to teach him not to bark incessantly. Pretend you have gone, then when the dog barks needlessly dash out and give sharp commands of "No! No!" and accompany your words with a newspaper slapped smartly across the palm of your hand.

IF, IN BOREDOM, your dog starts ripping up plants, use a commercial dog repellent that causes sneezing or a spray of nicotine sulphate diluted one teaspoonful to a quart of water. Fresh applications of the above products will have to be used after every rain, but before long your pet may be out of the habit even of sniffing around the forbidden areas.

As soon as children come home from school, they should romp with the dog to let it know it hasn't really been forgotten.

Additional calcium in the dog's diet and Vitamin B1 will help calm a nervous barking dog. And sometimes an extra meal will do him good, even make him a little sleepy. There is no harm in an additional meal so long as you do not stuff your pet and cause obesity.

DOMINGUEZ Riding Club will present a horse drill team show Sept. 17 at 195th and Main Sts., Gardena.

"Today our pictures are sharp, clear and lousy."

By the Shutterbug

TRANSPORTS click, dials spin, shutters snap, and the prize picture of the year is shot—the Normal American Camera Owner at the dizzy height of his dizzy career.

When the tallies are in after their vacation season, industry estimates say, 1961 will have cost up upwards of $3 million at the photo counter. This No. 1 hobby in the U.S. has grown twice as fast as the national economy in the past decade.

But stand in the finishing room at any major film processing room at any major film processing lab and see what we're getting for our money. Defenseless children and kindly old folks lopped off at the eyebrows. Immense nothings bordered by bits of distant scenery. National monuments defying the law of gravity. Loved ones frozen forever in fatal blue or angry orange. A complete movie of perfectly exposed thumb.

ON THE CAMERA shelf today there are about 380 different makes and models—not only more than ever, but better and cheaper. According to Photo Dealer, a trade journal, about 100 have built-in range-finders, 150 let you see what the film will see, a dozen have an electronic eye to meter the light you'll need. The industry figures we'll buy over six million of these marvels this year.

"Ten years ago our pictures were fuzzy, dark and lousy," a spokesman for a mammoth film company says. "But today, with these amazing cameras, our pictures are sharp, clear and lousy."

Today, hardly an American family is without a camera in easy reach. This summer, a record 55 million of us are expected to swell the annual snapshot figure to three billion—and then spend $400 million to find out how the pictures came out.

BETWEEN 20 and 35 per cent of the average roll will be absolutely worthless, says Berkey Service, one of the biggest processing labs in the country. Of the remaining pictures, only half are really adequate. On a roll of 8 mm. color film, for example, that works out to almost $1 thrown out by the consumer.

"It's wrong to assume," a Berkey man says, "that the American snapshooter is interested in getting his money's worth."

THE MOST common reasons for ruined film are camera owners who:

Forget to take the protective cap off the lens.

Neglect to read the instruction with camera or film.

Don't bother to set the camera according to what the light meter says.

Can't remember what film they put in the camera.

Leave the loaded camera in a steamy car.

Don't worry about where their thumb or camera case is when they snap the shutter.

Never learned how to insert the film, set the lens opening or adjust the shutter speed.

The Real Wyatt Earp

issued a warrant for their arrest. He sent a telegram to Tombstone sheriff, Behan, to arrest them upon arrival. But the telegrapher, a friend of the Earps, held the message until the lawmen came into town, and let Wyatt read it first.

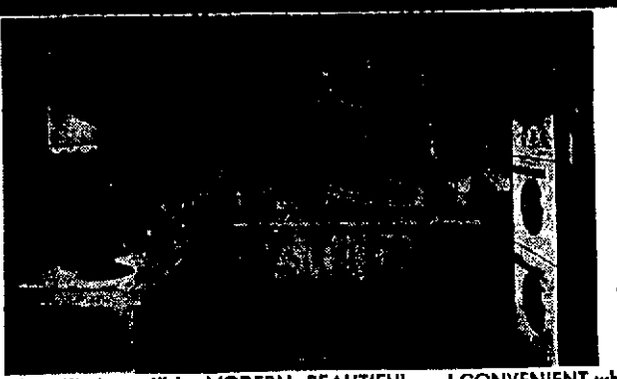

Rather than submit to arrest the Earps and Doc Holliday fled to Colorado, which also was a booming mining state at that period.

It has been hinted that Wyatt wore a steel vest which many times saved his life, but this is hearsay, and has never been proven.

Wyatt's career was a stormy one, but he died in a peaceful manner, living out the last years of his life in a small town near Blythe, where he worked a small copper claim.

He was a solemn man and seldom smiled or laughed. But he never lost the surety of his fast draw. He died in 1928 while on a visit to Tennessee to see relatives, and not in Colorado as historians claim.

Wyatt Earp was no knight in shining armor, but he was a man's man who brought law and order to the West.

Greenhouse in a Window

PROVIDING house plants with proper fresh air, sunshine and humidity while displaying them for best interior and exterior advantage is a problem ingeniously solved by use of a new "window greenhouse" that can accommodate a generous number and variety of plants the year round and help them thrive in porous clay pots under the same conditions as a professional growers' greenhouse.

The all-aluminum greenhouse (developed by Emerson Industries, Hempstead, L.I.) does double duty as an indoor-outdoor picture window where all types of house plants can be attractively displayed. It may be moved at will, installed in any preferred location, is available in a variety of sizes and prices and is practically maintenance-free.

Construction of the greenhouse makes it sufficiently weather-tight to keep out drafts, while warmth from the adjacent room keeps temperatures right for most plants. The greenhouse is useful as a "reserve bank" in which to rotate house plants, or to house bulbs, such as amaryllis, forced daffodils, tulips and crocus, or as a cold frame to start seeds for outdoor planting.

Dorothy Digs

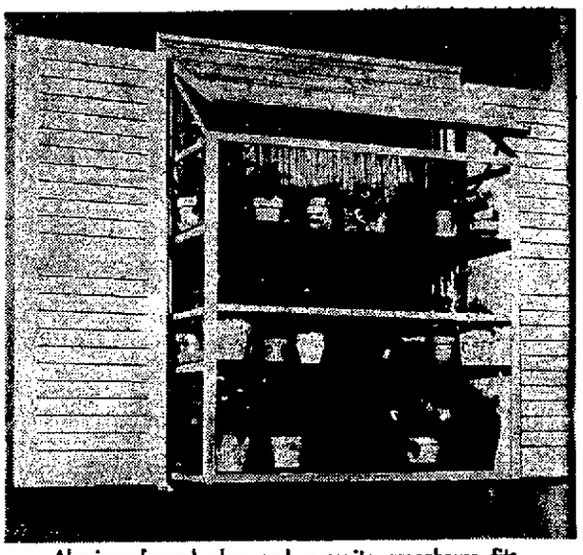

Now is the time when your roses are making new wood so, if you want long stems and good blossoms for the fall blooming season, give the roses a feeding now. This should be the last feeding until after the first of the year when you do your pruning.

To protect roses from the beetles and other "chewers" that seem more prevalent late in the season and cause ragged looking foliage, you can safely use a combination of malathion and dieldrin as necessary. Alternate this with the regular 2-purpose rose spray for mildew, black spot, thrip and aphis. A copper spray containing nicotine is excellent. By doing this you will keep all enemies under control.

If we have our usual mild California winter, you will probably be able to pick beautiful roses until New Year's, if you give them proper care and protection.

Sweet Pea Planting Time Near

Sweet pea seeds should be sown later this month, and soil should be properly prepared, aged in advance.

By Joe Littlefield

SWEET PEA seeds sown too early usually sprout easily and grow too rapidly at the expense of good sturdy root development. Plants are watered too often, and many rot off. Sow them later this month while days are still warm to hot, but nights become cooler.

There are several ways to sow sweet pea seeds. Some gardeners soak the seeds for several hours in water. Others sprout the seeds between two folds of burlap or a discarded turkish towel. They keep the cloth-like material moist and, in about five days, the seeds sprout and may be set out.

Punch holes one inch deep for sweet pea seeds. Dust holes and trench with soil insecticide as insurance against possible soil pests such as wireworms, false wireworms, sowbugs or other pests. Now plant the seeds in the holes and cover them with soil.

COVER the soil area with burlap or premoistened peat moss. Soak planting area well. Do not water again until the seeds have sprouted through the soil. Take off cloth cover and put chicken wire over the plants to prevent birds from rooting out the young seedlings. Then water as the soil dries, but be doubly careful not to keep the soil too wet. As soon as plants are up a couple of inches, water less often, but water longer. Cover plants about inch deep with soil when they've grown around four to six inches high.

Remember this: Your young sweet peas stand more chance of growing if you water less often, but deeply. Sweet peas may rot off if they are watered too often.

DONT SOW sweet peas in unprepared soil. If you didn't prepare the soil in August, do so now and wait several weeks before you sow the seeds. Dig the trench a shovel width and about 18 inches deep. Fill hole half full of steer manure. Scatter two cups of bone meal. Mix bone meal through the manure. Add soil to nearly top of ground level. Thoroughly mix all the materials together digging the area well. Soak down thoroughly. Week or so later dig over again, and soak down. Another week or so later dig over again, then you're ready to sow the seeds.

STEP ABOARD the new Sea Winds restaurant and you'll swear you're on a millionaire's luxury yacht anchored at the water's edge.

This imaginatively designed restaurant is more than swank. Expensively furnished in a ship motif, the Sea Winds has unusual booths arranged on different levels, enabling all guests to enjoy a stunning view of the sea. Each booth, spacious and comfortable, faces a row of picture windows on the restaurant's south side. Through them can be seen such harbor sights as a seaplane landing on the water, large ships riding at anchor beyond the breakwater and small pleasure boats scurrying among them.

The Sea Winds, which cost $250,000, is located at the new Navy Landing at the foot of Magnolia and Daisy Avenues. It is the brain child of George Heinrich, whose firm also owns another beautiful ocean view restaurant — the Captain's Inn on the Marina.

STAIRWAYS topped with gay red, white and blue canvas canopies lead to the Sea Winds' main dining room, which is on the second floor above the coffee shop. The waterfront motif is also reflected in the cute apache costumes of the waitresses who wear French berets, striped shirts and slit skirts.

The view deck's cuisine is superb. The dinners, priced from $2.45 to $3.95, include soup du jour or chilled heart of lettuce salad; potatoes au gratin Delmonico or foil-wrapped large Idaho baked potato; a basket of hot garlic bread and yacht-sized coffee mugs kept filled from individual coffee pots warmed on flaming servers left on the table. Among the entrees are New York and Porterhouse steaks, a marinated teriyaki steak served with a special spicy sauce, lobster tail, grilled halibut steak, barbecued spare ribs and fried chicken. —TEDD THOMEY

TEACHING MACHINES

This fall you're going to hear a lot about them. ✧ Never before has an innovation so swiftly captured the fancy of public and educators. ✧ First described in detail only three years ago in a Harvard psychologist's technical paper, a laboratory plaything only two years ago, tested en masse for the first time last fall, teaching machines are invading classrooms, business offices and homes in vast numbers this school term. ✧ Nearly 200 firms are manufacturing them or the lessons that go into them. They are being hawked to school boards by high-pressure salesmen, peddled door-to-door to education-conscious parents. ✧ Research organizations, foundations, universities and the federal government are conducting large-scale evaluations of them. ✧ They have even inspired a limerick: The latest advice from the dean / To come down on the teaching machine / Is that Oedipus Rex / Could have learned about sex / Without even both'ring the queen.

STARTLINGLY, the jingle is grounded in fact. Students at the University of Kansas City are learning the facts of life from machines. "Instruction is private," says the teacher. "It saves embarrassment."

Many claims have been made for teaching machines, but what are the machines really? How do they work? Will they replace teachers? Will they solve school problems? Will they help your child?

First thing to know, the experts say, is that machines themselves don't teach. Programs—the printed lessons that are fed into the machines—do.

The unique feature of "programming" is that it breaks the subject matter into hundreds or even thousands of minuscule fragments and then strings them together in a logical sequence, leading the student from one to another in simple steps.

With each step or frame, the student is required to make a response: he either fills in a blank or punches a button. Then he compares his answer to the correct one. (Some machines make the comparison for him.) Thus he knows immediately whether he's right or wrong. Psychologists say this "reinforces" his right answers, weeds out his incorrect ones and helps him to retain what he has learned.

If printed lessons do the teaching, what do machines do? The simplest (Grolier's $20 Min-max, shown being tested in Albuquerque, N.M., schools, above) is merely a metal box with a window and a knob. Others (priced up to $5,000) "think" for the student. Depending upon his response in one frame, they "decide" what he should learn next. But a number of programmers have abandoned machines completely, substituting books and looseleaf binders and cheatproofing with shields and slides. Eventually, this system will replace machines, they predict.

All this activity has grown out of the work of a Harvard psychologist named B. F. Skinner, who discovered some years ago that laboratory pigeons learned more readily if immediately rewarded for correct responses with corn. Applying the same principle to people, he concluded they could learn best if "rewarded" with correct answers. Psychologists everywhere hopped on the bandwagon.

Programmed instruction seems to offer:

✧ Speedier, better learning. The average student seems to learn the same material in half the time. Roanoke, Virginia, students, for instance, completed a year's work in algebra between September and Christmas. Failures drop drastically, sponsors claim, and grades are raised all along the line. In one instance, program-taught students in college logic averaged nearly 20 points higher than conventional students.

✧ More help for individuals. Working at their own clip, bright students breeze through programmed instruction. A classic case is that of Larry Hill, 18, of Roanoke, who recently raced through a one-semester solid geometry course in five days. Less brilliant youngsters, meanwhile, plod along as slowly as they wish. One recently wound up a geometry course two months after the rest of the class. Nonetheless, tests showed he had the subject down pat. However, some students simply don't learn under programming, according to Lewis D. Eigen, of New York's Center for Programmed Instruction, and no one knows why. "This is one of those important questions that still must be answered," Eigen says.

✧ Limitations on what can be taught. Courses offered so far run heavily to exact subjects like math, science, foreign languages, English grammar. No one has made a serious stab at programming social studies. "We don't know if it can be done," says Allan D. Calvin, the supercharged young director of Encyclopaedia Britannica Films programming.

✧ Better use of teachers. Less and less is heard now about machines replacing teachers. Instead programmers talk about how machines will aid teachers and save time. "The teacher will be freed from routine drudgery," says Thomas Clemens, the thoughtful, pipe-smoking young supervisor of federally-sponsored research into programming. "Now she can plan, diagnose, assist, do remedial work—all the things for which you need a qualified human. She won't have to say the same thing five times a day."

✧ More effective home learning. Programming allows for supervised study anywhere. The student can supplement classroom learning with related work at home —what teachers call "enrichment." Furthermore, programming works equally well with adults, and many programs are being prepared for them.

✧ Reasons to go slow. The field is mushrooming so fast that it is attracting get-rich-quick operators. "If I were on a school board," says EBF's Calvin, "I'd ask salesmen hard questions: Who did the research? What were their results? How big was their test?" Almost everyone agrees schools should not plunge wildly into programming this year. But they should get their feet wet by buying a few machines.

✧ Enormous promise. Whatever the loopholes still existing in machines and programming, they unquestionably have walloping potential. "They will prove the greatest single innovation in a generation," says Theodore Waller, of Grolier, Inc., a pioneer in the home market. One programmer is even less reserved: "It's the wave of the future," he predicts.

FEWER CALORIES

in a bowlful than any other kind of cereal!

How else can you get so much good eating with so few calories first thing in the morning, than with Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice . . . ?

A bowl of either has about half as many calories, on the average, as a bowl of any other kind of cereal—full standard measuring cup servings.

. . . Less calories than a piece of toast, or any other breakfast food you've always thought of as low-caloried. Yet, both Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice offer good nutrition that's especially important when you're watching weight.

Nutrition . . . flavor . . . lots of fun in these weight-watcher's cereals "Shot from Guns!"

ARTHUR GODFREY

What happens to a man once he's been cancer-stricken?

by LLOYD SHEARER

Hospitalization makes most men philosophical. "If I ever get out of here alive," one favorite made-in-bed resolution holds, "I'm going to take it easy. No more of the rat race for me."

Arthur Godfrey, 58, different from most men, had an opposite reaction two years ago when a surgeon removed a portion of his cancerous left lung.

"That thing," he explained, "that damnable thing was not only imbedded in my lung, it was wrapped around the aorta, the main blood vessel to the heart. And because the surgeon I had was great—he doesn't want me to mention his name, that's the kind of modest guy he is—because he was great and he had courage, he got it out, and I got a break."

Tears trickling down his cheeks, Godfrey continued huskily, "I'm grateful, and I'm going to do my best to deserve my break. I'm going to try to accomplish all the things I've always wanted to accomplish."

Most victims of lung cancer—an approximate 35,000 Americans per year—die within six months following the discovery of the chest malignancy or the ensuing surgery.

Less than 5 per cent survive the five-year period which is necessary for a cure.

It has been 31 months now since Godfrey hobbled out of New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center. In those 31 months he has lived the life of a man who secretly feels that time is running out on him. He tries not to show it, but it twinges him like an aching tooth, and there are always manifestations of the omnipresent worry that each day is his last.

For example, as we sat on the terrace of his bungalow at the Kona Kai Inn in San Diego recently, he kept running his hand over his chest, superficially feeling for a possible tumor.

Last year he underwent physical check-ups every month to see if "that damnable thing had started up again." This year it's been two months between visits.

Godfrey tries not to think of cancer, but there is so much that calls it to mind: Gary Cooper's death, thousands of letters from fans inquiring about his health, his friendship with Gen. Nathan Twining, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who came down with lung cancer five days after he did.

While Twining was recovering at Walter Reed Hospital and Godfrey at Presbyterian, Arthur dropped him a note. "The way I feel today," he scribbled, "only Khrushchev should feel." Twining and Godfrey still keep in touch with each other, charter members in a club of the similarly afflicted.

Constant activity is the escape-mechanism that keeps Godfrey buoyant and optimistic. Since his operation in 1959, he has done the following:

"I went back to Honolulu after the operation," he says, "and did a television show there. Then I came home, did my daily radio program, also a TV special in Jamaica. Last year I went to India. I was supposed to stay five weeks, was gone almost two months. Went to Tokyo, Hong Kong, Laos, saw Dr. Tom Dooley before he died—cancer sure gets around.

BUT WHAT'S THE GIMMICK?

"When I got back to this country, CBS talked me into doing Candid Camera with Allen Funt. I shouldn't have done it, but I did. Anyway, that's finished now, and I don't want to go into any of the sordid details. Just say I'm not doing it any more and don't tell why.

"What I'd like to do best is a weekly television show—like the ones I did this past April and May—but the network says it has no time for me.

"Funny thing—I guess over the years I've sold more than $25 million worth of time for the network. But now they just can't find a spot for me. A few weeks ago one of the executives came up to see me, very nice guy, very polite, very pleasant. I discussed the show I had in mind.

" 'But what's the gimmick?' he asked. 'Tell me the gimmick, Arthur. Surely your program's got a gimmick?'

"I said to him, 'I'm the gimmick, if that's what you want to call me. That's the only gimmick. Otherwise it's an entertainment show, a variety program. I'd like to give the American public some plain, simple, wholesome, delightful, amusing entertainment. In the past I've come up with Pat Boone and the Chordettes and the McGuire Sisters and Carmel Quinn and people like that, little known artists of genuine talent.' "

Godfrey shook his head in disbelief. "You won't believe it, but this network executive, this big man, he was very polite, mind you, wasn't convinced. 'I'm sorry, Arthur,' he said. 'We just don't have the right time available for you.' I said, 'How about 1962?' 'No,' he said, 'I'm afraid that's true for 1962 also.'

"I didn't want to say, 'Look here, I might not be around in '62 or '63.' But that's the truth. Once a fellow's had cancer, it shows he's got the type of body in which another cancer can spring up. So who knows how long any of us is going to be around?

"I just know that I'm very happy working in radio, working in television, and I'd like to do both. Insofar as TV is concerned, I guess the only thing I can do is syndicate my own show this fall to independent stations. I'd like to do a half-hour weekly show with a one-hour special every month or so."

As he spoke there was no bitterness in Godfrey's voice, no truculence in his attitude, no feeling that CBS was a network manned by ingrates.

While he may have no role in TV at the moment, Godfrey is one of the two remaining personality-pillars of network radio. The other one is Don McNeill of

The Breakfast Club. Each morning from 10:10 to 11 the "Huck Finn of Radio," which is what Fred Allen used to call Godfrey, broadcasts over the CBS network in his warm, familiar, informal, husky voice, deleting the stuffiness from commercials, a practice he originated 30 years ago. He features "the sincere sell" and has reached the point where he will not advertise any product he doesn't personally approve of.

TWO KINDS OF RADIO LISTENERS

Of radio, his first love, Godfrey says, "I'm going to stay in it as long as it exists, because in my opinion radio is still the favorite listening post of what I call the thinking people in America.

"There are two kinds of radio listeners. The background listeners consist of 80 per cent of the public, I'm afraid. They don't want to listen to anything except background music.

"They want Muzak for free, the latest records for nothing, just music all day long, and if you open your mouth, they turn you off and find another record. No sponsor, not even the guy who sells used cars, gets his money's worth from them because they just don't represent any thinking population at all.

"But the others—those I call the foreground listeners—they're very much interested in what somebody thinks, the latest dope that there is, interviews that you have, the development of talent. Those are the kind of people I try to sell.

"Primarily I'm a salesman, you know, and if I'm a good salesman, it's because I believe firmly in what I'm selling, and I have the ability to enthuse about it and infect you with that enthusiasm. That's the art of salesmanship—creating a desire in other people for your product.

"To do that you have to get people to like you or believe in you. And you've got to put yourself on the side of the person listening. When I used to go from door-to-door back in the old days, I couldn't do that because the housewives didn't know who the hell I was. But on the air it's different. They know I'm Arthur Godfrey, a guy they can trust."

Although his bout with cancer has mellowed Godfrey, and he is no longer a self-appointed authority on national defense, he remains essentially the man he always was, open-handed, alert, perceptive, zestful, fun-loving, optimistic, quick to comment and, when as a result he puts his foot in it, even quicker to apologize.

This past summer he was showing his palomino stallion, Goldie, trained in dressage, at a horse show in Del Mar, Calif. On his way through San Diego to the fair grounds in the early morning of July 4th, he saw only a handful of American flags out for Independence Day. On his program he commented on the apparent lack of patriotism by San Diegans, a fatuous and inaccurate remark for which the mayor and local dignitaries roasted him, since San Diego, a Navy town, had thousands of flags on display. Godfrey abjectly apologized.

A few weeks later a lady guest on his radio program dropped a four-letter word ladies usually don't drop. In an attempt at gallantry, Arthur explained to his listeners that times had indeed changed when words that formerly were banned from polite print could now fall from such beautiful female lips.

For this explanation Godfrey was figuratively raked over the coals by Archbishop William O. Brady of the St. Paul (Minn.) Archdiocese, who asserted, "If Arthur's mother could have heard his defense of words on the radio, she would have washed his mouth out with soap."

In short, Arthur Michael Godfrey is still no saint, which doesn't bother him one bit, since he has never evaluated himself as a paragon of virtue. In fact, he owes his successful rise as a show business personality to a complaint filed against him by a radio listener.

Not many people know this, but 30 years ago when he was working as an early-morning announcer at the Washington, D.C., station WJSV (now WTOP), Godfrey tired of the Bulova Watch spot announcements: "Seven o'clock Bulova Watch time . . . Seven-thirty Bulova Watch time . . . Eight o'clock Bulova Watch time . . . Eight-thirty Bulova Watch time."

IN TROUBLE OR TRIUMPH

One night he rambled through the station record library, picked out a sound effects record of a cow loudly moo-oo-ing. The following morning he played it on the air, then asked jokingly, "Whatsamatter, cow? Did you have a bulova time?"

An irate listener complained to the advertising manager of the Bulova Watch Company. The advertising manager complained to the account executive at the agency. The account executive complained to the station manager, who laughed it off, but the response was so electric that Godfrey realized he had found a worthy, attention-attracting device in departing from the sponsor's sirupy script and criticizing the inane copy he was supposed to read.

Since then Arthur Godfrey has always spoken his mind, come trouble or triumph.

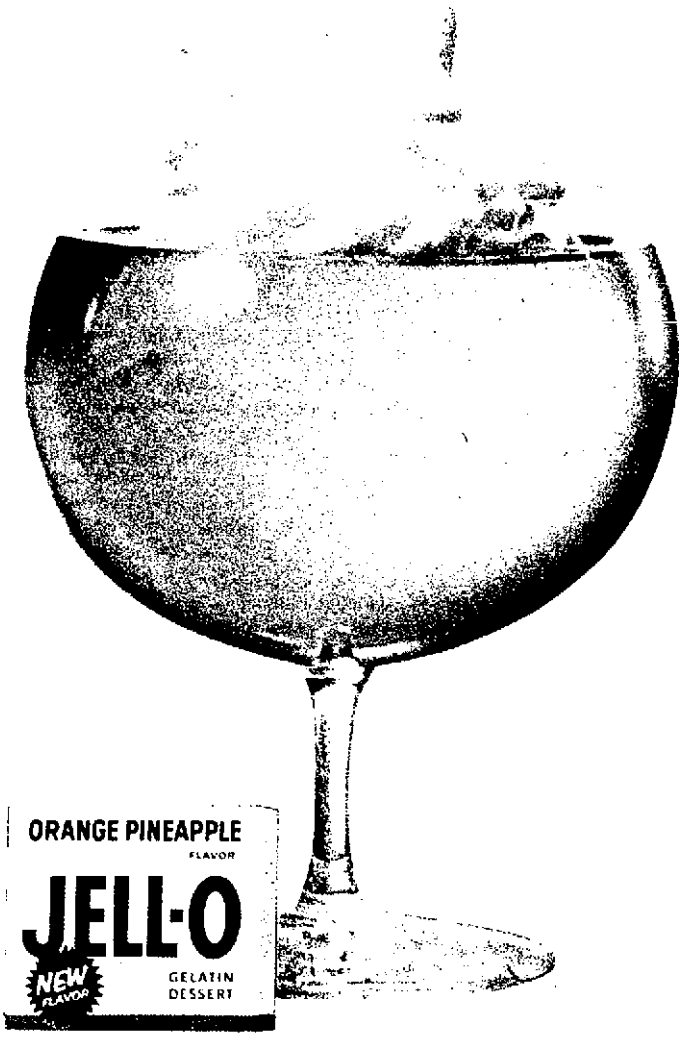

Cancer-cured or not, he still meets life as if it were his own adventurous invention.

"I'm not one," he says self-encouragingly, "to let a little thing like a lousy lung get me down."

In the words of Mary Ann Vann, his faithful and long-suffering secretary, "Arthur's first name should be Guts." ■

How Heidi's mama fixed the Sheik

Princess Heidi adjusts herself happily to life in her Kuwait palace. With her is Mama Dichter (left), whose threatened law suit persuaded Sheik Abdullah (right) to change his mind, install the German-born beauty as Wife Number Five of his seraglio.

TWO-TIME PRINCESS

THOSE OIL-RICH Arabian sheiks really lead the life.

They whiz into Europe with their entourages. They dazzle the beauties of the Continent with their extravagances—a diamond clip here, a pearl necklace there. They marry an irresistible, long-stemmed lovely. After three or four weeks, they obtain a Moslem divorce by renouncing the marriage. And presto! They're free to play the field again. What a life!

Take as a case in point Prince Abdullah Al Jabber Al Sahan, 42, who happens to be the Minister of Justice and Culture of Kuwait on the Persian Gulf.

Some weeks ago the Prince flew into Hamburg, Germany, a seaport city well-known for its uninhibited night life. There he met Heidi Dichter, a young, curvaceous, blue-eyed charmer on vacation from Kiel.

Heidi speaks no Arabic, the Prince no German, but they held eyes across the table, hands under the table, and since they both speak the language of love, they were quickly married in Heidi's home city. Everyone in Kiel said Heidi was the luckiest girl in the world. What a catch she'd made! A real Arabian Prince, so fabulously rich he had his own plane.

The newlyweds flew to Capri for their honeymoon. But then the Prince, who already had four wives, had to return home on business.

PRINCESS HEIDI went on to Majorca to await her husband. But the Prince never showed. Under Moslem law, a man can divorce his wife by making a formal statement in front of witnesses that the marriage is finished. Abdullah did so.

Heidi, a princess for all of a month, returned to Kiel where she told the full, sad story to her mother.

Mama Dichter, a tough, proud, German Hausfrau of the old school, said, "Nobody can treat my daughter this way." She hired a lawyer to file suit against the Sheik for $500,000. Suddenly from Kuwait came the news that Abdullah had searched his soul and discovered he was still in love with Heidi, wanted her always beside him as his fifth wife. So to Kuwait flew Heidi and moved into her Sheik's palace.

There she reigns today, a princess for more than a month. How much more is anyone's guess.

Anyway, Mama isn't quite as angry as she used to be. It seems her new Arabian son-in-law has agreed to pay $75 per month for her rent. —NANCY HAGEN

Reconciled couple seem pleased with outcome of marital chase. Abdullah is oil-rich prince of Kuwait.

Center	DAVE MORGAN, USC	BILL VAN BUREN, Iowa
Quarterback	ROMAN GABRIEL, N.C. State	JOHN HADL, Kansas
Halfbacks	ERNIE DAVIS, Syracuse LARRY FERGUSON, Iowa	GARY BALLMAN, Michigan State JIMMY SAXTON, Texas
Fullback	BOB FERGUSON, Ohio State	RONNIE BULL, Baylor

According to football experts all over the nation, 1961 will be one of college football's most interesting and topsy-turvy seasons in decades.

They predict that Ohio State, UCLA, Penn State, Kansas, Rice and LSU will all bid for the mythical national championship, but warn that Iowa, Syracuse, Miami, Texas, N.C. State, Missouri and at least a dozen others could easily upset these front-runners.

This is the way sports editors and writers see the 1961 All-America backfield:

Bob Ferguson, Ohio State: a bruising 6-foot, 217-pound, human battering ram, Bob ran up 13 TDs and a 5-yard-plus rushing average as a junior, which won him All-America recognition last year.

Ernie Davis, Syracuse: the nation's No. 3 ground gainer with a 7.8 average for 877 yards, Ernie will repeat his All-America rating this year.

Larry Ferguson, Iowa: no relation to Ohio State's Bob Ferguson, Larry is an explosive breakaway runner who averaged 7.3 yards per carry last season.

Roman Gabriel, N.C. State: an imaginative signal caller and poised passer, Roman is rated one of the great quarterback prospects to come out of the South.

Among the linemen, Maryland end Gary Collins was singled out for special praise. The Philadelphia Eagles and Baltimore Colts rate him as "the best player with pro potential in the country."

Marshall Shirk, a 6-foot-1, 230-pound mastodon from UCLA, was voted a stand-out tackle.

Here's how experts rate the squads:

THE EAST

Rip Engle's Nittany Lions of Penn State look classiest. Galen Hall, developing into an All-America possibility at quarterback, will have another potential All-America, end Bob Mitinger, to catch his long strikes.

Syracuse will challenge for top honors, their chances hinging largely on a return to 1959 form by quarterback Dave Sarette, who slipped badly last year, and another great season from Ernie Davis.

The Pittsburgh Panthers, spearheaded by stocky (5 feet 11, 218 pounds) guard Larry Vignali, could challenge the leaders, as could Boston College, if they're not swallowed up by a murderous schedule.

This isn't the year for the service academies. Army has little depth; Navy lost super-star Joe Bellino and a host of starters from their Orange Bowl team and will be rebuilding.

In the Ivy League, it finally seems as if the Big Red of Cornell are out of the red and will challenge Yale for the title.

THE SOUTH

An old-fashioned Donnybrook for top Dixie honors is predicted. LSU and guard Roy Winston are given a razor-thin edge over Alabama and Ole Miss in the Southeastern Conference. Massive tackle Billy Neighbors could turn the tide for the Crimson Tide of Alabama, however.

N.C. State, on the arm of Roman Gabriel, has to figure as Atlantic Coast Conference champ with stiff opposition from Clemson and always-tough Duke.

Miami, with end Bill Miller and triple-threat back Eddie Johns, should edge out Florida State as top independent.

VMI should top the Southern Conference, although under fire from West Virginia and Furman.

Maryland, Georgia Tech and Tennessee all could scramble the picture.

MIDDLE WEST

Ohio State and Iowa will battle it out for honors here, meeting head on on November 4, with the edge going to the Buckeyes on a break in the schedule, bypassing Michigan State, the Big Ten sleeper, and Minnesota. The loss of quarterback Tom Matte will hurt OSU, but 26 returning letterman will compensate.

Notre Dame seems to be on the way up. If they make it all the way back, look for coach Joe Kuharich to stroll off with Coach-of-the-Year honors. Detroit, on the passing of diminutive (5 feet 9, 168 pounds) Jerry Gross, will be tough.

SOUTHWEST

The Southwest Conference is loaded this year and there promises to be a real dogfight for the brass ring.

From here it looks as if Rice will nose out Texas and Baylor. The Owls locked up the title in '49, '53 and '57 and the four-year cycle should hold up again, thanks to a wealth of experienced seniors and a tough line. Fullback Ronnie Bull, converted from All-America halfback this season, could make the difference for Baylor if his forward wall holds up.

Kansas must be rated the titan of the rugged Big Eight. Coach Jack Mitchell has almost his entire line intact from last year's 10th-rated team, plus All-America quarterback John Hadl. Missouri, conqueror of Navy and Joe Bellino in the Orange Bowl last year, will challenge more strongly than Colorado or a rebounding Oklahoma. In the Border Conference, Arizona State will be pressed by New Mexico State, but should prevail.

ROCKY MOUNTAINS

In the Skyline Conference—this is its last year—co-champs Wyoming and Utah State will slug it out again, with the timid wink going to Wyoming. The Air Force Academy will certainly fare no better than her sister academies with quarterback Richie Mayo gone.

FAR WEST

UCLA, hampered by an inexperienced backfield, nonetheless must be chosen for the Big Five title and the Rose Bowl. A rockbound forward wall anchored by tackle Marshall Shirk and center Ron Hull should open holes large enough for even green tailbacks to filter through. Washington, the defending champ, have lost too many of their Rose Bowl stars, but will make it interesting. So will Southern Cal with 23 returning lettermen. Cal and Stanford figure as pesky also-rans.

Oregon State, switching to the T from the Single Wing to take full advantage of their star quarterback, Terry Baker, could cause a lot of excitement among the independents if they jell. Oregon and San Jose State will give them a tussle. ■

How to tell what a family quarrel means

What's all the shouting about?

EVEN IN THE MOST enlightened family, husband and wife occasionally get angry and hurl ultimatums that are not nearly as ultimate as they sound. All the comments below, for example, are old hat, to the caseworkers of Family Service Association, which represents 300 counseling and family-help agencies across the country. Most of these comments reflect nothing more than the normal wear and tear of married life. But a few are more serious. They too seem commonplace—but actually are symptoms of serious trouble, calling for a change of basic attitude by husband or wife before it's too late. Can you find the three booby traps in each list?

—ROBERT WACKER JR.

THE HUSBAND SHOUTS

1 "Must you always wait till I'm halfway off to sleep before reminding me about the garbage?"

2 "What makes you pick the one afternoon I try to reach you to stage one of your famous telephone filibusters?"

3 "If you make one more affectionate wisecrack in front of company about my baldness . . . ."

4 "You've let me run out of shirts again!"

5 "If you don't stop vetoing what I'm saying every time I tell the kids to do something . . . ."

6 "Let me have an illness all to myself just once, will you? Any time I tell you a symptom, it turns out you've got the same thing, only worse."

7 "If you run to that mother of yours the next time we have a fight and come back babbling any more do-it-yourself psychiatry, I'll wash your mouth out with soap."

8 "If I hear one more reminiscence about your old boy friend who's now a vice president at General Motors . . . ."

9 "You've got our account so fouled up that I have to hold my breath when I write a check."

THE WIFE SHOUTS

1 "If you lift the cover of one more pot, sniff and put it back without saying anything once more . . . ."

2 "How dare you come home from that comfortable office and ask, in that tone of voice, what I've been doing all day?"

3 "You always do that when we're having a discussion—you run into the bedroom and slam the door. Come out here and fight like a man!"

4 "If you tell me once more that all this house needs is a little organization . . . ."

5 "You come home and follow me around telling me your news while I'm battling the kids into bed; then, when it's quiet and I want to talk you turn on TV."

6 "Must you swallow your morning juice in one GOLLOP like a trout striking at a fly?"

7 "If you break any more promises to Johnny because of business . . . ."

8 "If you look one more woman up and down that way when we're out together . . . ."

9 "If you doze in bed one more morning until 7:55, and then shout for a general family mobilization to get you on the 8:17 . . . ."

Any of these protests, explains the Family Service Association experts, actually could mean danger if repeated so often it indicated complete disregard for the other's rights. But that would be unusual. In most cases, marital counselors see a red flag if either husband or wife lists complaints Nos. 3, 5 or 7. Below are the reasons why, as caseworkers see them.

WHEN THE HUSBAND COMPLAINS

3 Public ridicule about baldness or any other unchangeable characteristic inflicts pain for no purpose It may mask hidden resentment, be a way of getting even for something else the wife won't talk about. Examine your motives, discover what you're really sore about and fling that at him—in private.

5 Vetoing his edicts undercuts Daddy's authority and deprives the children of needed confidence in their father. Even if he's wrong, it's better to discuss the situation after bedtime than to bawl him out on the spot and convince the youngsters their father doesn't amount to much.

7 Running home to Mother indicates you're still a selfish little girl at heart, not a married adult. Don't postpone the showdown; have it out. Using psychiatric jargon as a weapon is silly and dangerous. If you knew enough to understand what you were saying, you would know better than to say it.

WHEN THE WIFE COMPLAINS

3 Slamming the door and sulking is the counterpart of her going home to Mother. Stand up and face her, no matter what. A breakdown of family communication of this kind can only mean real trouble ahead.

5 Shouting your news at her and refusing to listen to her report of the day's doings indicates how important you think she is in the partnership. She's not a machine. Give her equal time. In fact, why not try putting the kids to bed yourself?

7 Maybe you can't help breaking a promise occasionally because of business pressure but it should be pretty rare. Doing it often shows that family needs rank low on your priority scale. You are turning your back on those who need you most. Perhaps a solution might be to make your promises a little more sparingly. Value them more highly and don't make so many of them, and it will be easier to keep the ones you do make.

The Listerine way kills germs that tooth paste doesn't even reach

Tooth paste covers only a small area of the mouth, yet most bad breath is caused by germs throughout the mouth and throat. With the Listerine way*, the recommended way, you get antiseptic action all over the mouth and in the farthest recesses of the throat . . . and in germ-harboring crevices too tiny for tooth paste, or even water, to enter. This means Listerine acts in four times as much area—to stop bad breath four times better than tooth paste, and for hours on end. News for golfers: The first golf clubs with all-Fiberglas shafts are now available. Running the entire length, the glass fibers absorb all vibration, make the club non-conductive and safe for use in electrical storms, and easy to clean with a damp rag. The construction is said to lengthen drives—and also to modify hooks and slices since the shaft recovers quickly when twisted by a poor hit. Details: *Burke Golf Equipment, Comptometer Corp., Dept. In-the-wall night light: This new one (left) neatly recesses into a wall, casts a soft downward glow, always is cool to touch, safe for children. Its 4-watt fluorescent lamp lasts up to 6,000 hours, almost six times as long as a 25-watt incandescent counterpart, and uses one-fourth the current. Even day and night operation costs under $2.50 a year. 8½" x 6⅞". $15.30. Day-Brite, Dept. PP, 6260 N. Broadway, St. Louis 15, Mo.

The untold story of one man's epic bravery

THE BISHOP and

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

SAN JUAN, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.

THE LATE JOSEF STALIN in Moscow once sneered: "How many divisions has the Pope?" But it remained for a tinhorn tyrant named Rafael Trujillo to find the answer here on America's doorstep. He imposed his will and whims upon the Dominican Republic for 31 years before assassins finally paid him off in hot lead. But the cruel dictator really met his fate in the Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana where Bishop Thomas Reilly preached belief in God and the rights of man.

The bishop's struggle for freedom went largely unnoticed by the outside world. He suffered the stones and cudgels of mobs, endless humiliation and harassment by Trujillo's goons. Once he was dragged out of a convent in the middle of the night and thrown roughly into jail. At times he was opposed even by his brother bishops, who were intimidated by threats against their relatives. Yet he proved that a single brave man, fired by blazing conviction, can sometimes be a division in himself.

Unlike Stalin, Trujillo never tried to abolish religion; he merely claimed a place for himself in the godhead. It pleased him to be called "Lord of the People," and he papered his domain with the slogan, "God and Trujillo." He decreed that time in Trujillo-land should be reckoned not from the birth of Christ but from his own ascension to power. Thus May 16 became New Year's Day here, and the year 31 was understood to mean E.T. (Era of Trujillo) not A.D.

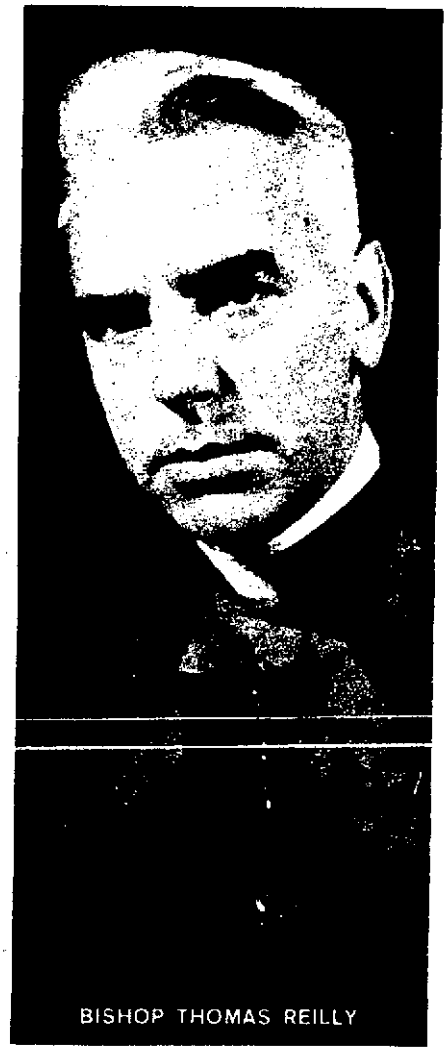

AN INSPIRATION TO ALL FREE MEN

The bishop who dared to defy him, Boston-born Thomas Reilly, is a slight man with twinkling blue eyes and a quick, disarming Irish smile. His 14 harrowing years here have turned his hair white. He speaks softly, with a trace of Boston twang. But beneath the gentleness and quiet humor lies the stuff of which heroes and saints are made.

The bishop's full story never has been told. His Excellency himself will not discuss it. When I visited him in his See here, he quietly but firmly turned aside most of my questions. "I am the representative of the Church in this area," he told me, "and I shall make no statement that might affect the delicate relationship between church and state."

His admiring priests, however, are less reticent. From their revelations and others, PARADE pieced together an account of deeds that are an inspiration to all free men.

Ordained in 1933 to the Redemptorist Order, Reilly began a life of service on forgotten fronts. He spent most of World War II as a chaplain on the barren, freezing, fog-shrouded Aleutians where a small force of GIs had more trouble with the elements than the enemy in dislodging the Japanese from their only foothold on this continent. A transfer to the tropics came just in time for him to hit the beaches with the first assault troops retaking the Philippines.

BISHOP THOMAS REILLY

Back in his robes after the war, he was assigned in 1947 to the Dominican Republic, to the arid, mountainous scrub country near the border of Haiti. Here he found the most forgotten front of all: villages of flimsy thatched huts, slums in the sun overflowing with hungry, naked children. He worked among the poorest of the poor, who often couldn't afford the few pathetic pennies it took to buy bananas, the bread of the tropics. Father Reilly found families who had lived for weeks, even months, on wild mangoes scrabbled from the tangled underbrush.

He also found discrimination against the descamisados, the shirtless ones, even in the Church. First as a priest, then nine years later as the new bishop, Thomas Reilly worked to change all that, to make the Church a place where all were equal, where the most ragged were welcome in the sight of God.

It was inevitable that the humble bishop and the haughty tyrant would collide. Fugitives from Trujillo's terror soon found a fearless friend in the quiet-spoken Bostonian. He sheltered them in his diocese, helped more than one to escape. A high diplomat relates how Reilly saved opposition leader Guido d'Alessandri by smuggling him out of the country in a nun's habit.

FIRST SHOTS IN A QUIET WAR

The bishop also began speaking out boldly against Trujillo from the pulpit. It was the first time such political heresy had been heard in the land. But Reilly was only one of six Catholic bishops in the Dominican Republic. Four were Dominican citizens whose families could be terrorized. When he sought to unite the hierarchy against Trujillo's oppression, only Spanish-born Bishop Francisco Panal Ramirez stood with him. They were usually outvoted, 4 to 2.

Then late in 1959 came a powerful reinforcement. Papal Nuncio Lino Zanini, a tall, dynamic man, arrived in Ciudad Trujillo. He listened to the opposing views: the Dominican bishops pleading for caution, Reilly insisting that the Church must stand for the freedom and dignity of man. Zanini threw his immense authority on the side of Bishop Reilly, and on January 25, 1960, the Church delivered an ecclesiastical bombshell.

The bishops signed a pastoral letter calling for recognition of "the rights of all men to freedom of conscience, of press and of assembly." The language had the ring of 1776, as if it had been drafted, say, by someone from Boston. "The basis and foundation of all positive law is the inviolable dignity of the human person," the letter went on. "We hope that by a program of mutual understanding, excesses can be avoided . . . tears dried, wounds healed and peace restored to so many homes." In a final, subtle thrust at Trujillo, the bishops added that they would seek a special boon from God that no member of the dictator's own family "should ever experience during his lifetime the suffering that afflicts today so many Dominicans."

This stirring document was read at all masses of all 624 Catholic churches in the Dominican Republic, including the oldest cathedral in the Western hemisphere, the 421-year-old Cathedral of Santa Maria la Menoir, which holds the tomb of Christopher Columbus. The churches were packed with grim-faced men and women, drawn by whispers of the freedom document. They listened, tense with excitement, as the bishops and their priests hurled down the challenge.

Trujillo raged and replied with the familiar weapons of terrorism. Bishop Reilly was dogged by the secret police. He received whispered warnings about the danger of automobile "accidents" — a favorite Trujillo method of eliminating critics. The bishop confided to a friend: "I expected every automobile ride to be my last." The Dominican bishops got the same warnings, extended to their relatives.

THE DICTATOR

Simultaneously, the puppet press began an attack upon the priests, calling them "psychotics, perverts and parasites." Priests were expelled from the country on the slightest pretext until more than 50 had been thrown out. Trujillo goons would dress in cassocks and cavort in bars and brothels to bring shame on the Church. The government put the squeeze on parents to remove their children from parochial schools.

As for the old dictator, he swung like a pendulum between fits of passion and attempts at placation. When he wasn't screaming invectives at the priests, he was pleading for the Church to settle differences quietly. He even hinted that, as a personal favor to the Church, he might free political prisoners. He also put on a feverish public show of being a good Catholic.

But to Papal Nuncio Zanini he sent a blunt message: "This is war." Zanini replied blandly: "On the contrary, this is a declaration of peace." Trujillo then sent his Foreign Minister, Porfirio Herrera Baez, to the Vatican to press for Zanini's removal and the silencing of the bishops. The Pope refused both requests. "The Church," he said gently, "cannot do otherwise than concern itself with justice."

All the while, Trujillo concentrated on making it hot for Bishop Reilly. He intensified the persecution of priests and nuns in the Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana until Bishop Reilly pulled them out and served notice that he wanted to talk to Trujillo.

It wasn't the first time the two men had met—the tyrant and the churchman—but in the past Trujillo had always been a model of cordiality. Now he stamped into the room, snapping out short, blunt orders to aides. "These troubles with the priests in San Juan must end," he barked. "The general up there is no good. He will have to be moved. I am sorry, Bishop, for your difficulties. But you see I am trying to put them right."

THE ARMED TRUCE AND HOW IT ENDED

Bishop Reilly was not taken in by all this good will. But the Dominican bishops pressed for a modus vivendi with Trujillo. The result in January 1961 was a mild petition to El Benefactor, as Trujillo was called, asking him to stop his minions from interfering in religious affairs and to stop other abuses against the church. For their part, the bishops promised the priests would be instructed to cooperate and not go beyond their religious duties.

Trujillo chose to treat the appeasement offer as a petition of surrender. In an insolent tone, the government began its reply: "We have devoted the most careful consideration to your intention to correct the imprudences which, as you loyally acknowledge, have been committed in the Church." Then as the price for ending the persecution, the government demanded: "The circumstances are propitious for you to support the initiative to grant to His Excellency the title of Benefactor of the Catholic Church."

The last time this title had been granted was in 1167 to the Holy Roman Emperor Friedrich Barbarossa. The bishops, choking on Trujillo's effrontery, made a barbed reply. They pointed out that only the Holy See could create such titles, then added: "We are sure, however, that God, the Infallible Recompenser, will not let merit go unrewarded." Trujillo could read that statement any way he chose.

GENERALISSIMO RAFAEL TRUJILLO

The dictator privately blamed Bishop Reilly for the rebuff and swore to drive him out of the country. He accused Bishop Reilly of heading a terrorist conspiracy against the government. Three men were produced who eagerly confessed their guilt and named Bishop Reilly as their leader. The alleged confession claimed that the bishop "put the finishing touches on explosive bombs." Of course, Reilly denied the fantastic charge and continued to speak out against Generalissimo Trujillo.

From words, the old tyrant fell back on violence. A dutiful mob, directed by Trujillo's soldiers in mufti, attacked and sacked the bishop's home. Reilly in his robes watched the havoc, then calmly walked toward the mob—which parted like the Red Sea at the approach of Moses and let him through. With quiet modesty, the bishop now disclaims any heroism. His comment: "There was nowhere else to go."

Having watched his home reduced to a shell (not a window, dish, door or ornament was left) the bishop made his way to the rectory. This was also attacked by a mob led by soldiers in civilian clothes. The surging, shouting rabble, using huge metal gate hinges to batter down the doors, hit the rectory in waves with military precision. The leaders told the mob exactly what to do, what to loot.

One priest told PARADE he was on the second floor with a baseball bat, defending a narrow staircase. He was a big, burly Spanish priest, clearly a Horatius to be reckoned with at any bridge. Two dogs also helped to defend the rectory. One attacked a soldier and was bayoneted to death. The other was muzzled and dragged off with the loot. It was learned later that the mob was under strict orders not to harm any nuns or priests. Says Bishop Reilly: "If they had only told us that in advance, we should have felt considerably more comfortable."

THE FINAL ACT — OR IS IT?

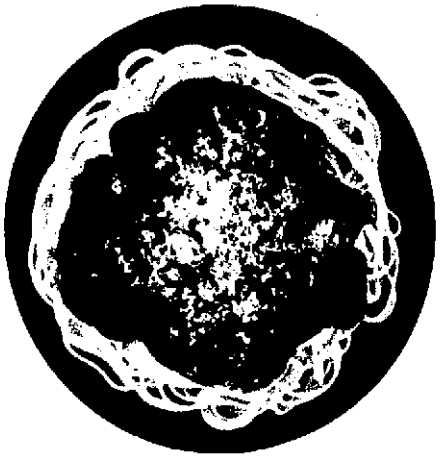

For the second time in a year, he pulled all his priests out of the mountains and led them to Ciudad Trujillo where they took refuge in a convent. He remained there under house arrest until Trujillo's assassination on the night of May 30. Early the following morning, revenge-seeking police hammered at the convent door, knocked down two nuns, seized Bishop Reilly and dragged him off to jail. But calmer heads prevailed; the bishop was released and allowed to return with his priests to San Juan.

Here his sorely tested faith was restored. He found his people—the shirtless ones—full of shame and repentance for the attack on his home and rectory. They had wanted no part of it, but they could not defy the soldiers. They regarded Trujillo's death as God's punishment for the man who had ordered the attack on their beloved bishop.

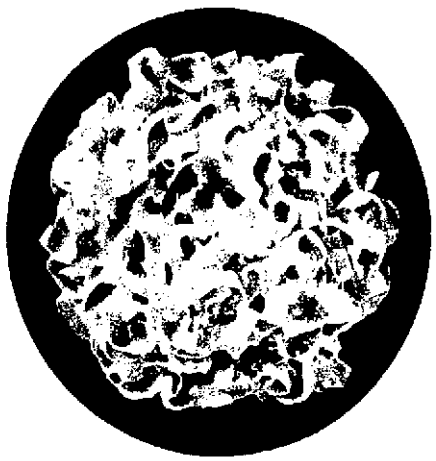

They pooled their poor pennies and scoured the black market to buy back the bishop's looted belongings. They even found the stolen dog and bought him back for five pesos.

The new Dominican government now seems eager for peace with Bishop Reilly and his priests. But the police still watch his every move. They questioned my driver as I was dining one evening with the bishop. We ate canned soup and Spam served on a long, battered table in the wrecked rectory.

As we munched on the Spam, a telegram arrived for Bishop Reilly. It read: "The windows will be ready on Wednesday." The bishop chuckled, then explained: "It is from one of my priests, notifying me of a meeting. Things are better now, but we must still be careful." ■

An extra special dessert:

ICE CREAM PIE

by BETH MERRIMAN
Parade food editor

THIS VERSION of ice cream pie has an air of elegance that establishes it at once as a dessert for company. The pastry shell is flecked with finely chopped walnuts that take on rich flavor as the pastry bakes. The filling is creamy peach ice cream crowned with swirls of soft meringue. And, for the final touch, a spoonful of satin-smooth fudge sauce. Not a dessert for every day, as you can see, but one to remember when you want to make an impression.

The dinner leading up to this dessert should be worthy of it. Begin with frosty cold cranberry juice. For the main course, serve broiled club or shell steaks garnished with buttery brown mushrooms, fluffy mashed potatoes with chives, asparagus spears and a crisp green salad with French dressing.

Peach Alaska Pie

Walnut pastry
1 quart peach ice cream, slightly softened
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
Satin fudge sauce

To make the walnut pastry, add ½ cup finely chopped walnuts to the dry ingredients for pastry for one-crust pie. Line 9" pie pan with pastry; trim edges, press to rim of pan with tines of fork. Prick surface with fork. Bake in hot oven (450°) for 12 to 15 minutes. Cool thoroughly. Fill with ice cream; freeze until ice cream is firm. Beat egg whites until foamy; add sugar slowly; beat until stiff peaks form. Beat 5 minutes longer. Swirl over ice cream, making sure that all ice cream is thickly covered. Bake in hot oven (400°) for 3 to 5 minutes or until golden brown. Serve at once with sauce.

To make satin fudge sauce, combine 1 package (¼ pound) sweet cooking chocolate and 2 tablespoons water in small saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat until chocolate is melted, about 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add 3 tablespoons cream; stir until smooth.

HEMINGWAY BIOGRAPHY. Leicester Hemingway, younger brother of Ernest Hemingway, has finished a biography of his famous brother to be published in January 1962. It contains intimate family material, many heretofore unpublished photos.

SELF-LIGHTING CIGARETS. By Christmas a self-lighting cigaret is scheduled to go on sale in the American market. The cigaret tip will be ignited by gently rubbing the treated end on a specially impregnated package surface. The application to the striking surface will cause the entire end of the cigaret to glow evenly. The cigaret can be lit under all weather conditions. American Machine & Foundry is producing the machines for the Continental Tobacco Company, which has put in four years on the project.

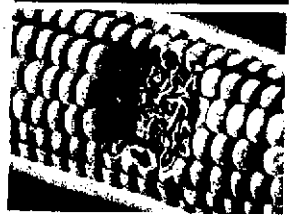

CHANDLER'S DEATH. Hollywood expects an investigation to be made concerning the untimely death of actor Jeff Chandler following an operation. The actor's former wife has hired attorney Irving Green to look into the full circumstances of Chandler's death and, if necessary, take necessary legal steps to determine the entire truth. Green handled most of the damage suits filed by victims of the 1956 airplane crash over the Grand Canyon.

FEMALE ROAD GANGS. New and welcome on Midwestern highways are female flaggers. These are college girls hired by contractors working on highway repair jobs. The girls, young, attractive, clad in shorts or blue jeans, flag down approaching cars. Idea, which started in Iowa, is that girl flaggers antagonize male motorists much less than men do.

COMPULSORY POLIO SHOTS. Immunization against polio is now mandatory for admission to elementary and secondary schools in about half our states. In many of these states the law exempts only those persons who stipulate in writing that polio immunization is against their religious or private beliefs.

IMMIGRATION CURBS. Influx of West Indian Negroes, Pakistanis and Indians is compelling Great Britain to pass new laws curbing immigration. To be introduced later this fall is legislation proposing that immigrants be of good health, have guaranteed employment awaiting them, have some job skill. The law will apply to all immigrants irrespective of color, but will serve to keep out of the United Kingdom those immigrants who contribute the least, take the most. The British are now face to face with their own "color problem."

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Genius, they say, often is misunderstood.

I am not sure that I always understand the genius of playwright Eugene O'Neill.

But I marvel at it.

And I am absorbed in the strength and depth of his characterizations, although the players that walk across the O'Neill stage are spiritual and moral weaklings.

Their strongness lies in the feeling for life—or death—that the mastery of O'Neill's pen has transfused to them.

Even the most mediocre of actors, with these lines from life, acquires a stature far above his every-day capability.

No cardboard characters, these. How unlike the run-of-the-mill, flip, TV private-eye they are. How unlike the gurgling video skin-diver.

For four hours last Wednesday, I had the privilege of previewing O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh."

The first two-hour part will be aired next Thursday on "The Play of the Week" at 8 p. m., channel 13. On the following Thursday, the conclusion will be shown.

It is depressing. It is exhilarating.

It is sustained quality that attains the greatness of TV's potential.

It is torment alive—the torment that was O'Neill and the torment he bled onto the pages of his script.

Jason Robards Jr., an actor whom I have not seen before, has the lead role of "Hickey."

Although he is a young man, I cannot imagine how, in his continuing career, he will ever top this performance.

Robards, particularly in the concluding part, wraps his feelings around you and engulfs the viewer in turbulent, soul-searching emotion.

He's great. Simply great.

THE SETTING for "The Iceman Cometh" is a water-front bar. The bar's habituees are the human dregs for whom every-day life daily starts with an eye opener and nightly ends in passed-out stupor.

Their life is the bottle and pipe dreams.

Into this palace of pipe dreams comes Hickey, a one-time boozing buddy.

But he is a reformed Hickey and he's peddling peace of mind.

Not peace of mind through old-fashioned religion, oh, no. Pied Piper Hickey, the black-sheep son of a preacher, wants none of that.

What he's selling is a facing of the pipe dreams and recognition that they're nothing but smoke.

That's enough about the plot.

No editor, no critic, no "Reader's Digest" condensation could do plot-line justice to this giant.

It is a profane giant. A controversial giant.

Before the play starts, Al Flanagan, general manager of KCOP, makes this announcement:

"If there are children in your home, may we suggest another form of entertainment or another channel."

Parents should take that as fair warning.

While there is nothing of the strip-tease physical, very little else of what can be verbally expressed is left to the imagination.

I am not sure that the majority of viewers will like "The Iceman Cometh."

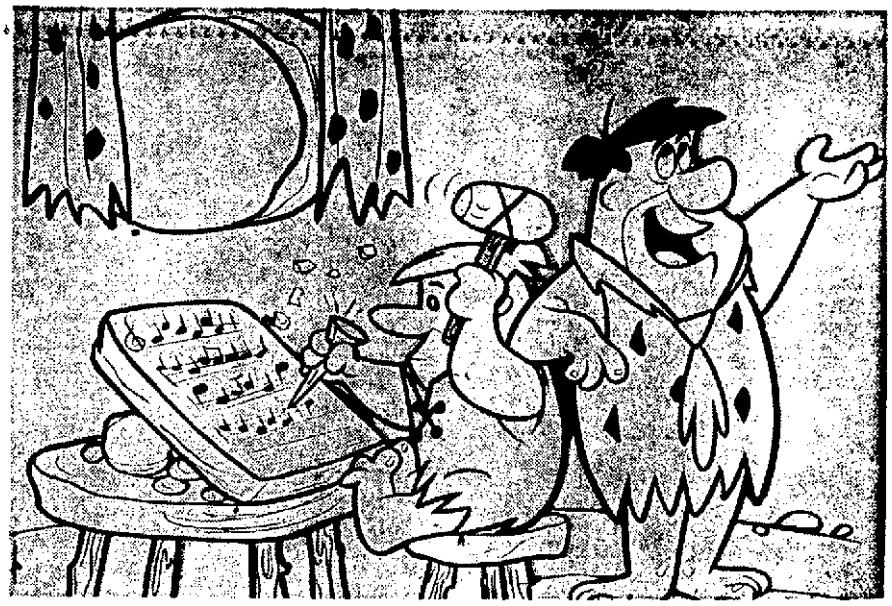

I am sure that the production is not just intended to appeal to the intellectual or psuedo-intellectual.

A man with a diploma from the "School of Experience" can as readily appreciate this play as a Harvard professor.

Make no mistake about "The Iceman Cometh." It is not a joyful thing. Its basic feeling is that of defeat.

You won't have a happy "entertained" feeling like watching the "Ed Sullivan Show."

But it is a feeling of defeat that is victoriously sculpted with a genius that touches all man, each uncommon in his individuality.

BARNEY RUBBLE (left) and Fred Flintstone pool their talents to make a fortune in the "Hit Song Writers" episode opening "The Flintstones" second season 8:30 p.m. Friday, channel 7. Real-life composer Hoagy Carmichael also had his voice recorded for this sequence.

IRENE DUNNE LIKES TV 'CHALLENGE'

SURROUNDED BY LIONS

Irene Dunne Appears in TV's 'Frontier Circus'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Irene Dunne was back before the cameras working in a TV show called "Frontier Circus," of all things.

She likes TV, she said. After a long career of plowing through feature pictures, she enjoys the hit-and-run schedules of television.

"It's a challenge," said the actress, as regally lovely as ever at 56. "You're entirely on your own. You've got to work out your own characterization before you start, because you won't have time afterward."

She was working on the back lot of Universal, where she made "Back Street" and "Show Boat" early in her film career. There was something incongruous about the great lady being surrounded by bears, lions and roustabouts of the slightly seedy circus. She plays a lady doctor who becomes involved with Chill Wills, inpresario of the traveling troupe.

"I haven't retired," Miss Dunne remarked. 'I never would retire, because I love this business. And you know, there's something strange about it. No matter how long you've been gone, you can come back and it seems as if you've never left it."

* * * *

SHE DOES AN occasional TV show, but most of her time is devoted to charities and her work for the United Nations. One of her big jobs this year was lining up the deal for "How the West Was Won." The MGM cinerama epic is a unique project which will benefit St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica. She is married to Dr. Francis Griffin.

"I was practically the casting director for the picture," Miss Dunne said. "I spent weeks going around to the different stars to line them up. Each of them works only three or four weeks and they get a pro rata payment of their usual salary. I must say they've all been wonderful about it."

Among the stars: James Stewart, Henry Fonda, Debbie Reynolds, Richard Widmark, John Wayne, Carroll Baker, Hope Lange, George Peppard, Karl Malden, Walter Brennan, Gregory Peck, Robert Preston.

Miss Dunne is not in the cast, nor has she made a feature since "It Grows On Trees" in 1952. Will she do another one?

"I don't know," she said dubiously. "I had a long and wonderful career in films. Would I ever be able to find a picture as good as some of those I've done?"

1 Don't let an amateur "fiddle" with your TV. One tube put into the wrong socket could easily cause $100 damage. MORAL: Get our well-qualified TV service. We can't afford costly mistakes if we expect to stay in business long. Our prices are honest too.

2 Stop trouble before it starts. Buy the best tubes made. That's where we deliver again. Example? We offer you the very same kind of picture tube 7 out of 10 leading manufacturers use in their own NEW sets! It's Sylvania's Silver Screen 85 Picture Tube. Perhaps the trouble isn't with tubes at all. We'll find it, whatever it is. If we can't get your TV working like new again, nobody can.

David Brinkley Prepares New Show

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—TV newsman David Brinkley—the girls call him "Twinkly Brinkley"—promises he will not give away washing machines on his new half-hour show.

He isn't sure just exactly what he will do with his weekly Wednesday night program.

"But I can say what it won't be," he declared.

"It won't be a news show. Every station in the country has a news program of its own at that hour (10:30) every night and the news would be old by that time.

"And I won't do a weekly review of the news. That's just a rehash of everything viewers have heard before."

Neither will Dave play the banjo, sing, dance, tell jokes or talk about his horse and airplane like Arthur Godfrey does. Brinkley doesn't happen to own either a horse or plane. And friends say his singing voice leaves something to be desired.

So here's a man with 30 minutes of NBC network time to fill beginning Oct. 11 and he's working overtime to get things organized.

"I DON'T HAVE a format or a gimmick," he said. "Documentaries are out, too. Some weeks we'll cover just one subject, and other times we'll have three or four different subjects.

"If you have to make a comparison, it might be like the feature and editorial page of a newspaper."

Some of the ideas Brinkley and his staff of 12 are working on:

A critical examination of the British press.

The boomtown of Cocoa Beach near the Cape Canavaral space activities.

A story of the 1961 cowboy and what he really is like.

"The British press story has me worked up," Brinkley said in a soft Southern accent that had a bit of steel behind it.

"WHEN WE SHOT Virgil Grissom into space the British papers said we shouldn't have done it because, 'There was nothing to be gained.' They said it was risky and silly.

"Then the head of our space administration began answering the English papers. In effect he was answering their editorials. Why the hell should we bother with them? With a couple of exceptions, British newspapers are lousy. I'm going to point this out."

From all indications Brinkley is going to hit hard whenever he feels like it. Even his own medium, TV, is not safe.

"My new show is the type of thing television can do best," he said.

"Entertainment—westerns, thrillers, drama—can be done better on the stage or in movies.

"Our show (The David Brinkley Journal) will be mostly live with film and tape segments. Right now there are five camera crews working all over the world for our material.

"I think it will be a different kind of TV show, and think I'll enjoy doing it."

DAVD 'TWINKLY' BRINKLEY

THE STORY of Will Rogers' life, including his friendship with Charles A. Lindbergh (left), is repeated 9 p.m. Tuesday on channel 4. Bob Hope narrates.

'TELEVUES' DEADLINE SEPT. 23

Deadline for entering the "Why I like TeleVues" contest is Sept. 23.

Letters should be limited to 100 words and addressed to "TeleVues, care of Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif."

Winners will be announced Oct. 1.

A check for $25 will be presented to the top winner.

The runner-up and a guest will have lunch with Donald May, featured on ABC-TV's "The Roaring 20's," at the Warner Bros. Studios' commissary. The pair will also be conducted on a tour of the lot.

The third-prize winner will have his choice of four tickets for a Dinah Shore NBC-TV special on Oct. 6 or a Bob Newhardt program at a later date.

Holiday Show

Gordon MacRae will star in a musical variety show, "Home for the Holidays," set for airing Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 23, on NBC-TV. Other show principals will include Patrice Munsel, Carol Haney and Al Hirt.

CYNTHIA PEPPER AND STAN MORESS
Off for Hot Campaign

IN RACOON COAT

Tub-Thumper Has Hot Time Publicizing 'Margie'

The kookie capers of press agents often become legendary in the world of show business.

The latest stunt to come from Hollywood involves a young flack named Stan Moress who is tub-thumping around the country for "Margie," a new half-hour comedy series which premieres on Oct. 12 on ABC-TV.

While everyone else tries to beat the heat in lightweight summer clothing, Stan happily dons white flannel slacks, a bright corduroy blazer and a 35-pound racoon coat straight from the Twenties, the period in which "Margie" is set.

Oblivious to the curious glances he receives, he dutifully climbs into an old touring car, arms himself with publicity material and sets out to visit newspapermen.

Stan, who takes these things in stride, follows in a long line of enterprising publicists, many of whom have become famous in their own right.

PROBABLY THE MOST CELEBRATED drum beater in America is bearded Jim Moran.

During his colorful career, Moran has promoted refrigerators by selling them to Eskimos and, for the movie "The Egg and I," he crouched in a huge egg in a department store window until it "hatched."

At one time he also gave another press agent the scare of his life.

His colleague had brought Rhubarb, Hollywood's acting cat, to New York to publicize a picture. Part of the stunt called for the cat to be interviewed at "21," the well known restaurant. The press agent was called to the phone before the interview began and when he returned, Rhubarb, worth thousands of dollars, was missing.

It was later discovered that Moran had filched Rhubarb and taken him to Texas much to the horror of the studio press agent.

But all was forgiven when the story broke nationally which, after all, was the purpose of the original idea.

SOMETIMES, DESPITE CAREFUL planning, unforeseen events occur which completely ruin a promotion.

To publicize a Mae West picture titled "It Ain't No Sin," an old pro rounded up a hundred parrots and locked them in a room with a recording which repeated the title of the movie. After two weeks, all the parrots were faithfully babbling "It Ain't No Sin" and the press agent was ready to send them to movie editors around the country when he got a message from the producer.

The title had been changed to "I'm No Angel!!"

Another stunt that backfired happened during the campaign on a sailing-ship movie. The studio planned to truck the ship on a nationwide tour but it didn't get further than Pasadena. The 30-foot masts just wouldn't squeeze under a railroad bridge!

'Toy World'

The joy of children with toys will be TV captured in an hour-long special set for airing Nov. 12 on NBC-TV. It is entitled "The Wonderful World of Toys."

Pilot Plots 'Hoax' Public

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Did you ever stop to think about the ways in which television insults you?

OK, let's think about it. There now are several "preview" programs. Their names are unimportant; there have been programs like them every summer for years. They are a series of unsold pilot films. They aren't repeats, because you haven't seen them before. These are previously unused half-hour films which cost a lot of money, because a script had to be bought; producer, director, and actors hired; sets built and film and camera men utilized.

The pilot films were made to be sold as forerunners of successful series.

The only trouble is: they didn't sell.

* * * *

IN OTHER WORDS, these are failures. What you are seeing is a parade of flops. These are the have-nots of TV—the programs that were by-passed when the networks and the agencies bought those "great" shows—"Happy" or "My Sister Eileen" or "One Happy Family" or "Mr. Garlund."

Those were bad. These are worse.

Can you think of any other art form where the flops, the failures, the dogs are commercially sponsored?

Take book publishing. Just supose that a publisher took all his rejected manuscripts and put them out. He might call them "Preview Editions," or some other jazzy title.

Or take music .Even songwriters have their bad days. If they adopted TV's philosophy of making capital out of rejects, they could bundle up their most miserable, unpublished tunes and put them out on one big LP—call it "And Then I Almost Wrote."

How about the Broadway theater? There are plays that are given one or two performances and then quietly fold in the face of the critics' onslaught. But you should see the ones that don't even make it into town. Using TV's approach, these theatrical gems would be showcased in an attractive repertory season—"The Best of Way-Off Broadway."

THE TRAGEDY of TV's philosophy is that we, the public, are paying (for we pay for all TV, actually, by buying products) to see shows which admittedly are poor. And not merely poor, but so bad nobody wanted to invest in them. Yet they are offered up with great fanfare, as sommething new in the way of summer viewing.

INVEST NOW! PRICES WILL DEFINITELY GO UP IN THE NEAR FUTURE!*

WHO WILL WIN NEW RATING DERBY?

Can 'Sing Along With Mitch' Gun Down 'The Untouchables'?

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They're off and running in the 1961-62 TV rating race.

Perhaps you couldn't care less, but up and down Madison Avenue they're all a-tingle. You and I can tell at a glance whether a show is good or lousy. But the ad man never knows until the ratings tell him so.

As always, the main interest in the rating derby concerns the long-running, high-rated champions and whether they can be toppled from their thrones. Here's how the races shape up:

"Gunsmoke" is going double-barreled this season, expanding to an hour. That may or may not aid its chances of retaining CBS' Saturday night monopoly with "Have Gun, Will Travel." NBC is countering with an unimaginative but potentially successful plan of offering old Fox movies. ABC is sticking with swinging Larry Welk and the fights.

WHO CAN BEAT "The Untouchables"? Nobody, judging from the opposition: "CBS Reports and NBC's "Sing Along With Mitch."

Will the public continue to swing along with "Wagon Train"? Probably. CBS can muster only "Alvin and the Chipmunks" and "Father Knows Best" reruns. ABC is pitting Steve Allen against the westerners. Remember when he was NBC's choice to lick Ed Sullivan?

The unlickable Sullivan faces NBC's Walt Disney, who was earlier downed by "Wagon Train" (this gets to be a round-robin). ABC's sacrifice offering is "Follow the Sun," south-sea adventure out of the 20th Fox mill.

"The Rifleman" faces real trouble from Robert Young's new show on CBS, plus "The Price Is Right" on NBC.

DANNY THOMAS, the Satchel Paige of TV, seems to have easy going against ABC's potboiler "Surfside Six" and something called "7th Precinct."

"The Real McCoys" faces some tough competition with the rejuvenation of "Dr. Kildare" on NBC and the third coming to TV of Robert Cummings on CBS.

Ratings, ratings, ratings. Everyone condemns them, but the television industry continues to live by them.

The dreamer likes to think of what might happen if ratings were abolished for a season. For one whole season the network bosses, ad men and advertisers would have to provide programming without regard to how many sets were tuned in. The yardstick would be intelligence, taste and quality of entertainment.

An idle dream, but fun to think about.

'The Defenders' Lose Cases but Win TV Slot

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — All right, so another series about the law, and its servants, and the people who run—as the papers sometimes say—afoul of it, is getting under way next Saturday. What's so new and different about that? Perry Mason's been around for years.

Matter of fact, this new one-hour show named "The Defenders" is coming on CBS-TV (channel 2) at 8:30 p.m. right after Mason gets through winning his case every week. But these new boys—a father and son team of lawyers—don't always win. And the show portrays practically no violence on screen. And it's legally accurate.

"We've finished 18 shows so far, and they've already lost four or five times," said Reginald Rose, the creator of the series. Rose wrote a number of the scripts and is script editor of the others.

He's the man who won an Emmy for "Twelve Angry Men" and has a list of other notable TV plays to his credit. This is his first series.

* * * *

"I'M VERY excited about it," he said. "For us, it's a chance to prove you can do a mature series on TV and be successful. We're trying as best we can to take on adult topics and handle them in an adult manner and still be entertaining.

"And CBS has gone along with us on some pretty tough topics. Not one of our ideas has been turned down. Some of them are subjects that TV usually doesn't deal with: Abortion, religious sects that don't allow surgery, the rape of a small child.

"In one of them we discuss the pros and cons of mercy killing very thoroughly. It deals with a doctor who kills a newborn infant who was born a mongoloid idiot. He was a friend of the parents. He's caught by a nurse and tried for first degree murder."

E. G. MARSHALL SUMS UP DEFENSE

Rose got interested in trials when he served on a jury in 1954. It was there he got the idea of "Twelve Angry Men," a drama set entirely in a jury room. Then, in 1957: "My own lawyer more or less dared me to write an authentic courtroom drama—he said it had never been done, with the technicalities, and such, accurate—so he sat down and helped me write 'The Defender.'"

* * * *

THIS PLAY ran in two one-hour instalments that winter. The new series is sort of an outgrowth of that idea, with two defenders instead of one. It will attempt a realistic depiction of the legal profession, but not necessarily stay tied to a courtroom.

"We've hired my lawyer, who has been a trial attorney for 14 years, as a technical assistant," Rose said. "Sometimes he sits down and writes the courtroom scenes with the writers so that things are technically right.

"But what we've tried to do, rather than run a show of trials and hearings, is to deal with the real problems of people—the people rather than the gimmicks. And also, our DA's are not villains and the judges are human beings; we meet all of them outside the courtroom.

Tucson dogs check new dog food claims

TUCSON, Ariz.—Local dogs turned out in force recently when General Mills held dramatic, informal dog food tests right in the heart of downtown Tucson. This test, one of several held in various West Coast cities, confirmed earlier kennel tests in which 2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket from their regular dry dog food.

2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket in General Mills' Kennel Tests

$1.00 GUARANTEE OFFERED

One of America's leading food producers, General Mills, has created a new dog food called Surechamp Meal Ticket with such an appealing and different taste that:

- 2 out of 3 dogs tested switched to it from their regular dry dog food in scientific kennel tests.
- In a series of public feeding tests 2 out of 3 dogs also chose new Surechamp Meal Ticket over their owner's choice of five leading packaged dog foods.
- General Mills guarantees dogs will enjoy the new food and backs the guarantee with the offer of a $1.00 coupon, good toward the purchase of any dry dog food.

Meal Ticket is a greatly improved formulation of Surechamp, a food long popular among West Coast dogs.

Tests prove theories

The feeding tests, General Mills spokesmen say, gave scientific proof to widely held theories that dogs, like people, welcome exciting new flavor in their diets.

Discoveries about the importance of a combination of ingredients, cooking, shape and texture in the enhancement of dog food flavor produced the taste triumph.

Unique new shape

The product's unique new roll shape is of great importance, General Mills officials say. Kennel tests show dogs are especially fond of this new form.

And, certain ingredients not only enhance flavor but add vitamins and proteins to an already completely balanced canine meal.

"EATIN' GOOD" GUARANTEE

Following are details of the product's guarantee, believed to be the most daring in the history of the dog food industry.

New—guaranteed eatin' good. Your dog will eat and enjoy Surechamp Meal Ticket. If he doesn't, send the certificate of guarantee from any package of New Surechamp Meal Ticket and a letter describing your dog's reaction to: General Mills, Inc., Box 37, Minneapolis 60, Minn. We'll send you a $1.00 coupon good on any dry dog food at your grocer's. Limit, one coupon to a customer.
